Arabs Say Israel Massing for War

Forces Placed On Alert

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Reports reaching Amman and Beirut said today that Israeli forces are massing for a big new attack on Jordan.

There was no confirmation or comment from Israel.

Reports to Amman from the Israeli-occupied west bank of the River Jordan and a report in the Lebanese newspaper Al Nahar said all Israeli armed forces have been placed on the alert, reserves have been told to join their units, and the assembling of Israeli troops can be seen all along the hills overlooking the Jordan Valley.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban at a news conference Wednesday intimated his government might negotiate separately with the Palestine Arab community if attempts to reach a permanent peace settlement with the Arab states fails. He described Israeli contacts with the Arab community in the occupied areas as "admirable."

Al Nahar, however, reported that Israeli helicopters hovered over the town of Salt, on the east bank of the Jordan, and dropped leaflets Wednesday afternoon warning of an impending strike.

Inhabitants of Salt, the newspaper said, were told to "stay in your houses and remain quiet if the Israeli defence forces should appear to cleanse the area of saboteurs."

Salt is approximately 12 miles east of the River Jordan ceasefire line and 40 miles south of the town of Irbed, which was heavily damaged in an Israeli strike June 4.

The newspaper said about 40,000 Israeli troops were concentrated on the west bank of the river.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli army said four Israeli civilians were wounded in a brief Jordanian mortar night time attack on the settlement of Gesher, south of the Sea of Galilee.

Police Ignore Rebels

Thousands Take Part In French Marches

PARIS (Reuters)—Thousands of people marched through the streets of Paris and other French cities Wednesday night in open defiance of a government ban on demonstrations.

But only in Strasbourg, in eastern France near the German border, did riot police interfere, dragging away students squatting in the street outside the university.

There was none of the violence seen previously in the week which caused three deaths and led to a government ban on open air meetings until general elections June 23 and 30.

Police watched from a distance as marchers called out by students and labor unions walked quietly through Montpelier, Bordeaux, Marseille, Caen, Poitiers, Dijon and Besancon.

In Paris, members of the March 22 Movement of Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit marched around the suburban Cite Universitaire buildings housing foreign students.

They were protesting the expulsion of several foreign students accused by the government of fermenting discord and a ban on the movement and six other extreme left-wing groups.

BLAMES COMMUNISTS

But while French students and workers remained calm, politicians exchanged angry accusations in the first television appearances of the election campaign.

Premier Georges Pompidou in a prepared statement said the Communists were to blame for the recent riots.

Waldeck Rochet, Communist party secretary-general, retorted his party acted wisely to prevent establishment of a military dictatorship.

Gaullist policy "directly caused the crises and the present disorders," he alleged.

Militant car workers and employees of the state-run radio and television service virtually were the only groups still on strike today.

Talks between union leaders and employers went on at the Renault auto works at Flins, north of Paris, through the night and further discussions were arranged at the Sochaux works of the Peugeot car company where two persons died in fights earlier this week between riot police and strikers.

WIRE BRIEFS

Seventeen Injured

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)—A time bomb exploded in a cramped downtown U.S. office building at noon today, wounding 17 U.S. servicemen and South Vietnamese. Eight Americans and three Vietnamese were hospitalized in serious condition.

Still Negotiating

Landslides Kill 12

HONK KONG (AP)—Landslides and a storm carrying 14 inches of rain killed at least 12 persons today and a number of others are missing.

Nine bodies were dug from the shattered wreckage of hillside shacks. Police said another 11 persons and possibly more were buried beneath tons of rock and silt "and there is no reasonable hope that they could live through it."

PRICES JACKED UP

East German Travel Block Worth Millions

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany today collected jacked-up prices for overland travel to West Berlin and put into effect a series of time-consuming bureaucratic regulations for travellers.

Britain, the United States and France denounced the new restrictions. By mid-morning, the measures had forced 300 trucks and thousands of cars to line up more than two miles for processing at border points.

The new regulations, which include increased freight fees, do not constitute a blockade such as that unsuccessfully imposed.

West Germans previously were able to travel by car from Berlin, a Western island surrounded by East Germany, with only their identity cards. But the new rules announced Tuesday imposed visa fees and require that West Germans obtain passports by July 15.

MAKE APPLICATION

German travellers at the Helmstedt crossing found after midnight that the East Germans had erected two tents. Entering them, they made a visa application and paid a visa fee—$1.25 for one way and $2.50 for a round trip—on the 110-mile autobahn or superhighway that runs through East Germany.

The East Germans also have imposed new taxes on goods shipped between West Germany and West Berlin.

The three Western wartime allies who still are the occupation powers in West Berlin planned official protests to the Soviet Union. They said the East German measures were "contrary to long-standing international agreements and practice, tending to deepen the division of Germany and Europe."

West German and Allied officials viewed the regulations as another East German attempt to deny the sovereignty which West Germany claims over West Berlin

Saigon Students Seek Peace Plan

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — The students of Saigon University urged the government of Premier Tran Van Huong today to find a "realistic peace formula" to end the Vietnam war by negotiation."

The declaration issued by the central committee of the university's student association made no direct reference to negotiations with the Viet Cong's political arm, the National Liberation Front, but seemed to suggest that was what the students had in mind.

An unknown number of students and youth leaders are in custody for advocating direct talks with the front, a course ruled out by the Saigon government.

Meanwhile a South Vietnamese minister cabled Prime Minister Tran Van Huong confirming reports that he had advocated direct talks with the National Liberation Front, government sources said here.

Dr. Phan Quang Dan, minister for the open arms defector program, was reported early this month to have suggested the talks during a speech at Stanford, Calif.

The speech caused a stir in Saigon, and the National Assembly requested a full explanation. Huong asked the minister to return home to explain the reports.

Attractive Girl Stood Near Gunman

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The accused assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was standing with a girl and had a "very sick looking smile on his face" when he opened fire on the senator, a grand jury was told.

The testimony, made public today said Sirhan B. Sirhan was standing with a girl "on a tray stacker" about four to six inches off the floor in a pantry area of the Ambassador Hotel where Kennedy was shot early June 5, moments after he claimed victory in the California presidential primary.

"As he got down, he (Sirhan) was smiling," hotel waiter Vincent Thomas di Pierro testified. "In fact the minute the first two shots were fired, he still had a very sick looking smile on his face. That's one thing I can never forget."

GOOD FIGURE

Di Pierro said, "the only reason I noticed him (Sirhan) was because there was a very good looking girl next to him. After the shooting I did not see her."

The witness said the girl with Sirhan was wearing a "white dress and it had either black or dark purple polka dots on it.

"She had dark hair, that was cut, I would say, just above the shoulders. She had what looked like a short nose. She wasn't too-facially, she wasn't too pretty. She was not that pretty and like I say, she had a very good figure."

NEAR KENNEDY

Di Pierro said he noticed Sirhan and the girl when he had walked up with Sen. Kennedy to an ice machine. The witness said he (Di Pierro) was within five feet of Kennedy at that moment.

"I saw him (Sirhan) get down off the tray stand and when I went to turn, the next thing I saw was him holding the gun. He kind of moved around Mr. (Karl) Uecker (assistant banquet manager of the Ambassador Hotel) and he kind of motioned around him and stuck the gun straight out and nobody could move.

"It was — you were just frozen; you didn't know what

'Arab Homes Confiscated'

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — Jordan accused Israel today of driving 5,000 Arabs from Old Jerusalem and expropriating their property.

Jordanian Ambassador Muhammed El-Farra said in a letter to Secretary - General U Thant Israel was replacing the Arabs with "thousands of Jews" to live in the former Arab dwellings and sending "thousands more" to live in buildings to be built by Israel.

30 Months For Seizing Couple

DUNCAN—The man charged with forcibly seizing an Alberta couple in Ivy Green campsite May 15 was sentenced today to 30 months in the B.C, Penitentiary.

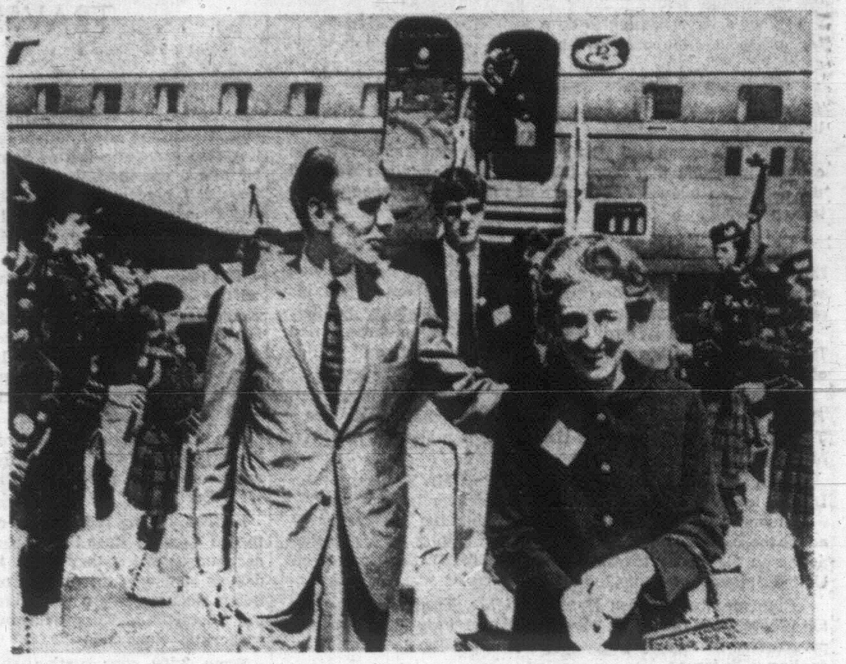
William Charles Smith, 38, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to the charge, which Magistrate Lance Heard said had been reduced from kidnapping, carrying a penalty of life imprisonment.

Smith acted in his own defence.

He was arrested at an RCMP roadblock in Duncan after John Howard Frank and Audrey Lois Swanson, both of Emonton got a message to a service station attendant. Smith was armed with a loaded Webley revolver and a sheathed hunting knife.

Smith had been declared mentally fit to stand trial in a report from Riverview Mental Hospital.

He was also sentenced to a concurrent term of 18 months for unlawful possession of an offensive weapon.



PIPED TO TOWN after arrival at Vancouver airport Wednesday are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanfield, who are scheduled to land at Victoria airport about 5 p.m. today. The national Conservative leader will address rally in Memorial Arena at 8:30 p.m. today. (CP Wirephoto.)

Relaxed Tory Chief Begins Island Tour

By BRUCE YEMEN
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield opened his Vancouver Island campaign tour here today on a folksy note.

Clutching a banana and a split-leaf philodendron which somebody handed him after he landed, Mr. Stanfield obligingly posed for photographers sitting in the Harewood Fire Department racing bathtub.

He told a crowd of about 300 at Harbor Park Shopping Plaza that he was being nonpolitical this morning but urged Canadians to travel their country and try to understand its many points of view.

●

He thanked "those good-natured Trudeau boys" for their courteous behaviour when they infiltrated a crowd and hoisted large photographs of Prime Minister Trudeau at the plaza.

Mr. Stanfield left Vancouver without ceremony and was greeted at Cassidy airport by Geoffrey Brock, Tory candidate in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and about 25 supporters.

A 13-car motorcade accompanied the Tory leader into Nanaimo. It was infiltrated by several large and homely trucks, by accident rather than political design.

In Nanaimo Mr. Stanfield repeatedly stopped to chat with bystanders and one of them, teen-ager Ronald King of Chemainus, told reporters, "I guess he's just about the same as anybody else."

David Elgin, 11, of Nanaimo, walked up to Mr. Stanfield and asked him why he wanted to be prime minister.

"He said he wanted to make Canada better for when I grow up," said the boy.

"I think he will if he gets to be prime minister."

Early this afternoon the party leader was to address another crowd of 300 at the Tally-Ho Inn before moving on to Comox and Courtenay, where similar mainstreet appearances were planned.

●

He was to arrive in Victoria by air at about 5 p.m. and will rest at Empress Hotel until 8:30 p.m. when he is to appear at a mass rally at Memorial Arena.

Mr. Stanfield is accompanied by his wife and daughter Sarah 25 and son Max, 21.

'PM DISTORTS MY PLAN' STANFIELD COMPLAINS

Special to the Times

VANCOUVER — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday of attempting to distort his proposal for a guaranteed minimum income for those unable to earn.

"Trudeau has attempted to distort my proposal by claiming we are promising to pay everyone an unstated income." Stanfield said in a paid political telecast in Vancouver.

"That is simply Trudeau's version of my policy and it is not correct."

Stanfield said he had never pledged a guaranteed national income for everyone, but simply propose a guaranteed income for a select number of people, such as the aged and disabled who are unable to work.

Stanfield was reacting to Trudeau's statement Tuesday night that Stanfield's proposals for an eventual guaranteed income plan would cost as high as $3 billion annually.

While Stanfield did not mention any estimated cost for his selective guaranteed income plan, he said:

"Early in the campaign we committed ourselves to the goal of assisting the thousands of Canadians who live below the poverty line, namely the aged and disabled, who are prevented from earning an income through working.

DECENT INCOME

"A Conservative government would have the objective of providing them with a decent income."

At the same time, he said, the government has to encourage those able to help themselves through expanded manpower training and retraining programs.

"This would be designed for those who are physically and mentally able to work, but cannot find employment opportunities.

"We want to stop the waste and inefficiency in the present welfare system."

Stanfield denied a charge by an interviewer that he was backtracking on his minimum-income proposal.

"No, we have always spoken in these terms (of a selective guaranteed income)." he said.

An interviewer pointed out that Trudeau said the plan would cost up to $3 billion annually and quoted Trudeau as saying, "I would not make a promise if I did not know what it would cost."

Stanfield replied: "We have no intention of raising taxes. Any government I lead will not increase services until the economy expands enough to afford it."

'Cocktail Party Adults Can't Give Pot Lectures'

HARRISON, B.C. (CP)—The older generation will never be able to reply to youth's demand for legalized marijuana unless it cuts out its cocktail parties, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Wednesday.

He told the annual convention of the British Columbia Pharmaceutical Association at this Fraser Valley community that young people say marijuana effects are no worse than those of alcohol.

The minister said he believes it is true that debilitating effect of marijuana is no worse than that of alcohol.

In an interview later, he said treatment of alcoholics is an enormous hospital and medical cost.

"If we are going to have publicly - financed medical and hospital services then the public has the right to expect people to live a life that will not put an undue burden on the public," he said.

The minister said it costs $30,000 to $40,000 a bed in hospital construction and another $30 to $35 a day to look after the person in it.

Angry Housewives Stop St. Valentine's Day Massacre

BURNABY (CP)—A horde of housewives has stopped a re-enactment of the infamous St. Valentine's Day gangland massacre.

The housewives deluged the Brentwood Shopping Centre in this Vancouver suburb with protest telephone calls after the centre announced it would permit promoter George Patey to stage his version of the Feb. 14, 1929, slayings.

The show, a sound and light re-creation—with a section of the actual bullet-riddled brick wall of a Chicago garage where the shootings took place—was to open Wednesday, but it was cancelled after about 300 protest calls.

Jack Viner, a spokesman for the centre, said most callers threatened to boycott shops if the show opened. Many also threatened to turn in their credit cards for major department stores.

One woman told the centre that if the exhibit opened, she would send her teen-age sons over to wreck it. A United Church congregation voted almost unanimously to boycott the centre.

Mr. Viner and Mr. Patey said the assassination last week of Senator Robert Kennedy apparently prompted most of the phone calls.

The show, housed in a mobile caravan, recreates the slaying of seven of Bugs Moran's gangsters by five Al Capone men dressed in police uniforms.

Parties to Blame For Dull TV Show

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA—Television is not noted for silence. A sudden lull, either in programming or commercials, is anathema to it.

It is therefore all the more surprising that the CBC and CTV networks have been taking it stoically on the chin while the politicans and public have indicated they are responsible for dullness in Sunday's debate among party leaders.

The main complaint of the party leaders afterwards was that the so-called debate was stultified because there was no provision for rebuttal.

Spokesmen for the networks say the parties themselves drew up the format for the alleged debate.

"We pleaded with the parties to make time for rebuttal," one spokesman said.

"They'd have nothing to do with it. They were horrified at the prospect that one leader might score real points off another.

"We tried to set up a real debate. But the parties, said, 'forget it, this is the way we want it, and this is the way it will be.' "

The CBC announced Wednesday a survey taken across the country indicated that more than 9,000,000 Canadians watched the debate on television. The size of the radio audience will be known shortly.

BURNABY—The 15 members of Simon Fraser Univesrity's Liberal Club Wednesday condemned Prime Minister Trudeau at a regular monthly meeting for what members called his refusal to discuss issues and reliance on personality politics.

Member Gordon Hardy said he and other members find Trudeau girls and the prime minister's "kiss and run" tactics objectionable.

Liberal president Robby McAninch and vice-president Bob Enoch, resigned from the club. Mr. Enoch charged that Mr. Trudeau, in failing to discuss the issues, is making a mockery of democracy.

Both students had demonstrated against Mr. Trudeau at the Liberal leader's press conference in Vancouver last month.

Students passed resolutions demanding the Liberal party adopt the New Democratic party position calling for legislative aciton on the Carter taxation report and the Watkins report on United States control of Canadian industry.

Club member Gordon Hardy said Mr. Trudeau and other top Liberals are deceiving young people, making the party look progressive merely by projecting a youthful image and not by dealing with issues.

TORONTO — Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of the Supreme Court of Ontario refused Wednesday to grant an interim injunction ordering an unofficial Liberal candiate to stop calling himself a Liberal in campaigning for the June 25 federal election.

. . . court bid fails

The injunction was sought by Ian Wahn, 52, MP for St. Paul's riding since 1962, and by the riding's Liberal association which has endorsed Mr. Wahn's candidacy.

They were trying to block Liberal by Dr. Russel Taylor, 36, who filed papers Monday as a Liberal and has printed the party name.

Don Murray, Liberal association president, said he signed an affidavit Wednesday asking the court "to get Dr. Taylor to cease and desist using campaign material saying he's a Liberal."

"As far as I know he doesn't represent anybody and has no sanction from anybody," said Mr. Murray.

Mr. Wahn said Dr. Taylor's candidacy "will cause some confusion and I want to make it entirely clear he's not the official candidate nor is there any split in our organization."

Dr. Taylor said he is running because he feels Mr. Wahn has done an ineffective job in Ottawa.

"I've always been a Liberal, but I feel the party has been guilty of imposing candidates on ridings whether they are wanted or not."

TORONTO — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is "tactile" like a carved Indian mask; Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is a Yankee horse trader; NDP Leader T. C. Douglas has a "bubbles image" that belongs in the 19th century.

This is how the prophet of the electronic age, Marshall McLuhan, sees the contestants for prime minister in the June 25 election.

Mr. McLuhan watched the two-hour television debate Sunday night and came here to give his assessment on a television show.

Prof. McLuhan said if he had been called on to advise either Mr. Trudeau or Mr. Stanfield he would have told them "not to project themselves."

He said that although he hadn't been fillowing the arguments, on the televised debate at least and in "purely technical terms, the Trudeau image has everyhting." He said it was "soothing, cool, and includes all age groups".

He said the Trudeau profile was "tactile," like a carved Indian mask but "without lights or shadows."

"Trudeau understands the temptation in the electrical age is to become tribal again not nationalist. But Trudeau is fighting it—quite consciously fighting tribalism—because he knows that a national outlook has richer possibilities."

Mr. McLuhan said Mr. Stanfied appears as "the shrewd old New Englander, a Yankee horse-trader and vote-splitter." Stanfield's image is "noble" and "Abe Lincoln" but that of "an archeological exhibit."

500,000 residents of West German support. The West German cabinet said it would increase subsidies to the city to offset anticipated economic losses. Some Germans consider the restrictions the biggest threat to the city's economy since the 11-month Berlin Blockade in 1948-49.

The Bonn government estimated the new taxes and visa fees would total more than $18,500,000 yearly. Western sources said they violate the May 12, 1949, four-power agreement which ended the Berlin blockade.

The East German measures drew protests from both leftist and conservative students in West Berlin.

Leftists waving red flags were turned back by East Berlin border guards when they tried to deliver a note to Communist officials accusing them of replacing "Socialist politics with bureaucratic stipulations."

Some 2,500 conservative students marched on the four-power Air Safety Control Centre with a resolution demanding "decisive steps for the maintenance of our freedom."

The Opposition leader told a crowd of between 3,200 and 3,500 people in Kerrisdale Arena Wednesday night that more attention must be paid to pollution.

The big turnout at the arena was the bright spot of the Tory leader's visit to Vancouver and New Westminster on Wednesday. When Stanfield arrived earlier at Vancouver International Airport, he was greeted by a crowd of about 200.

ONLY FEW WAVED

And only a few persons waved as Stanfield and his entourage moved from the airport to the arena, where he arrived shortly after noon.

But it was a different story when he arrived at the arena with his wife, Mary, son Max, 21, and daughter Sarah, 26.

Stanfield was mobbed by the crowd at the arena for a luncheon reception.

The Tory leader and his family had to fight their way through the crowd, which blocked the front door and floor of the arena.

The sign-waving fans chanted. "Let's go, Bob" as the family moved to the stand at the far end of the arena.

Following his talk, the lightly-tanned leader, dressed in a light-grey suit and sporting a red rose in his lapel, moved through the crowd drinking a bottle of pop and eating a hotdog.

Voters' Lists In Oak Bay Confusing

Voter confusion in Oak Bay, where the federal election is being closely followed by a provincial byelection, is worrying provincial campaigners.

They fear that many voters, having been listed on the federal voting list will think they are also safely on the provincial voters' list.

And they are afraid that many voters don't realize the provincial list closes next Tuesday.

They point out that all persons who voted in the last provincial general election in 1966 are automatically on the list unless deceased or unless they moved away, in the interim.

To update the list the local electoral office has just complleted a house-to-house enumeration. Anyone not visited by an enumerator in recent days, who is in doubt about his listing should phone the registrar of voters at 388-6685.

The enumeration was conducted by 35 university students over a two-week period. Registrar of voters J. W. Smallwood is hopeful there will be few omissions.

As usual, people who are certain they were enumerated or on the list previously, but who do not find themselves listed for this election, may vote under section 80 of the Elections Act.

In such a case the voter signs an affidavit stating that he has been enumerated and left off the list by clerical error. His vote is placed in a sealed envelope. It is not opened and counted until and unless his enumeration is confirmed by a later check.

Officials say that in past years many people have voted under section 80 but when it was found they were not in fact registred, their votes never were counted.

Another source of confusion is caused by the fact the municipality of Oak Bay and the provincial electoral district use the same names, although the boundaries are different. (See adv. and map, Wednesday's Times.)

Persons who intend phoning the registrar of voters were advised today that the office at 910 Gordon will remain open until 9 p.m. each night this week, Monday and Tuesday, until 9 p.m.

OPINION SWITCHES

Irate Parisian Becomes Hero

PARIS (Reuters) — An irate Parisian who Tuesday night grabbed a gun and fired over the heads of a crowd of rioting students has become a local hero to many people here.

Public opinion appears to have made an almost complete about-face on the student rebellion.

Parisians first gave cautious encouragement to students when their attempts to win university reform began a month ago, then swung fully behind them after nights of street fighting in which the press concentrated mainly on reports of police brutality against demonstrators.

But since then Parisians seem to feel the student movement has surged into wanton destruction and pointless violence.

Cars have been burned, trees pulled down, streets torn up, news-stands set on fire, bystanders beaten up and buildings damaged.

Public opinion does not blame the students entirely for this violence.

"Funny sort of student," a man remarked Wednesday as he watched a man in his 30s expertly destroy a parked car with a Molotov cocktail.

But the fact that the militant Students' Union has continued to give its backing to street demonstrations inevitably led the public to associate the continued savagery with students.

One group of Parisians has announced it intends to organize its own defence against marauding bands in the future.

The testimony was given in secret last Friday prior to the grand jury's returning of a indictment against Sirhan, charging him with Kennedy's murder and five counts of assault with intent to commit murder in the wounding of five other persons.

BACHELORS GET BLAME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Robert Stanfield says election itineraries must be compiled by bachelors.

"They leave so little time for hair-dos and things," the Conservative leader's wife said in an interview Wednesday.

Mrs. Stanfield said she finds the dinner hour the best time during the day because it's the only time she and her husband are really alone.

She doesn't campaign actively because "I don't always think the same as Bob, and I might undo some of his policies."

BUT WHO WILL SIGN?

UN Passes Draft Pact To Stem A-Bomb Flow

By KEN PRITCHARD

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly gave its approval Wednesday to a draft treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons, hailed by its sponsors as a major step toward making the world safer.

The treaty, which will be opened for signatures at once, was approved by a vote of 95 to 4 with 21 abstentions. Canada was one of the strongest backers of the treaty.

The wording in the treaty was changed from "endorse" to "commend." This enabled countries to support the treaty without undertaking any commitment to sign it.

Earlier in the day the 124-nation assembly approved a softened resolution on South-West Africa which in effect turned back to the 15-nation Security Council the problem of how to get South Africa to yield control of the former German colony.

That vote was 96 to 2 with 18 abstentions. The abstainers include Canada and four other council members—the United States, Britain, France and Denmark.

The two topics had been under debate since late in April when the General Assembly resumed its 22nd session, which started last Sept. 19 and was adjourned Dec. 19.

SPEAKS TO ASSEMBLY

President Johnson spoke to the assembly just after the vote commending the non-proliferation treaty, which he called "the most important international agreement in the field of disarmament since the nuclear age began."

There was little advance warning of the U.S. president's visit, for security reasons.

Johnson pledged that the U.S. would begin "early discussions on the limitation of strategic offensive and defensive nuclear weapons systems."

He said the treaty, in addition to barring transfer of nuclear weapons among signatories, commits the nuclear powers to redouble their efforts to end the nuclear arms race and achieve nuclear disarmament and "will insure equitable sharing of the peaceful uses of nuclear energy, under effective safeguards, for the benefit of all nations."

The draft treaty was proposed jointly by the Soviet Union and the United States, and they have been joined by Britain in pledging to give Security Council assurances protecting non-nuclear powers against nuclear attack or blackmail.

APPLAUDS TREATY

Speaking after Johnson, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov called endorsement of the treaty "a major step towards the lessening of the threat of devastating nuclear war and the achievement of a more secure and reliable peace."

Lord Caradon of Britain said the non-proliferation treaty follows naturally the limited test ban treaty and the treaty barring nuclear weapons from outer space, agreed upon earlier.

The treaty goes into force when approved by the governments of its three nuclear-weapons sponsors and 40 other countries.

●

Russ-U.S. Treaty Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S.-Soviet consular convention, first bilateral treaty between the two nations since the Russian revolution, was formally concluded today in ceremonies in the east room of the White House.

With President Johnson looking on, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin exchanged "instruments of ratification." That act meant the treaty will go into effect in 30 days—on July 13.

The pact will provide better protection for American tourists and businessmen travelling in Russia, and also lay the groundwork for future U.S. consulates in the Soviet Union and Soviet consulates in major cities in the United States.

The treaty takes the unusual step of extending diplomatic immunity to each nation's consular representatives.

This last provision drew considerable criticism in Congress from lawmakers who expressed fear the treaty would permit Soviet espionage agents to operate under the cover of consular representatives and be immune from prosecution.

The Johnson administration won Senate approval of the treaty March 16, 1967, after eight days of heated debate.

●

After the assembly adjourned, Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States asked for an early meeting of the Security Council to approve a resolution they have drafted to pledge protection against nuclear attack to non-nuclear countries adhering to the treaty.

Canada, which participated in the seven years of UN disarmament committee negotiations in Geneva which eventually brought about the draft non-proliferation treaty, backed it strongly during debate here.

The treaty, somewhat strengthened to meet criticisms, was commended by the political committee Monday by a vote of 92 to 4, with 22 abstentions, and sent on the plenary session for Wednesday's vote.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp praised the draft treaty during an April 30 speech to the United Nations and E. L. M. Burns, Canada's chief negotiator at Geneva, spoke in its favor May 23.

Voting against the resolution were Albania, Cuba, Tanzania and Zambia.

Among the 21 countries that abstained was France, a nuclear power, whose delegate said the draft treaty did not go far enough towards obtaining a reduction in armaments. France would not sign the treaty, he said, but would adhere to it the same as its nuclear-weapons sponsors.

China, the world's fifth nuclear power, has spurned the treaty as a U.S.-Soviet plot aimed at establishing a nuclear monopoly.

That Canada would abstain on the South-West Africa resolution was indicated as far back as May 15. On that date, Ambassador George Ignatieff urged that the Afro-Asians, intent upon forcing South Africa to quit South-West Africa in obedience to an assembly resolution, urged that diplomacy be given priority.

Again the Challenge

EAST GERMANY'S SUDDEN and unilateral imposition of new regulations on the surface movement of people and goods either way between West Germany and West Berlin is an obvious attempt to force diplomatic recognition of the Communist part of the former Reich. The demand for passports and visas, and for doubled taxation of goods in transit, being given the full support of Russia, threatens to disrupt the uneasy peace which has prevailed in the Berlin situation for some time. The repercussions could be direct, or in the form of retaliation on other diplomatic fronts—such as West German refusal to participate in nuclear control agreements. The intent of the new Communist demands is seen in the stipulation that the required visas must recognize East Germany as the issuing authority (rather than the Soviet Union), and that documents covering the shipment of goods must not refer to West Berlin as part of West Germany.

These considerations, of course, strike at the whole basis of West German policy, as well as that of the Western allies: Britain, France and the United States. The regulations were proclaimed within a week of the West German parliament passing the Emergency Powers Act which, in effect, phased out Allied control of the country's internal security, restoring its sovereignty in all fields except those governing a German-Soviet peace treaty and the question of German re-unification. And since re-unification is certainly not in the cards for the foreseeable future, what could be more logical from the Communist viewpoint, than using access to West Berlin to force the West to recognize the legitimacy of the Eastern regime?

Whether a secondary purpose might be an attempt to force the abandonment of West Berlin as a "showcase of capitalism" is more doubtful. Since the building of the Berlin Wall seven years ago, this aspect of West Berlin has not been very important as East Germans have largely been shielded from its bourgeois contamination. The new transit taxes, estimated to be worth $20 millions a year, would undoubtedly hurt the West Berlin economy but in view of the city's symbolic importance this is not an insuperable obstacle.

It will be unfortunate if this bit of East German bravado, encouraged by Moscow probably as a reward for loyalty in resisting the pull of East European liberalization movements, results in a worsening of overall East-West relations. But there can be no doubt that a serious confrontation has again been precipitated and it will take the best of diplomatic skill to keep it within peaceful bounds.

No Excuse for Further Delay

ALDERMAN FRAMPTON HAS raised an objection to the city's plan to turn over Thetis Lake Park to the regional authority for $100,000 and underwrite three years of maintenance costs. He complains that Victoria is giving away parkland to other municipalities and the regional district and getting little in return. This is a most short-sighted view, for a moment's thought should make it clear that parkland cannot be given away.

What is lost by changing the name of the ostensible owner? If the land is to continue to be used as parkland by all residents and visitors regardless of which municipality they live in, "ownership" means nothing. A park belongs to anyone who strolls through it, and the responsibility for any park such as Thetis Lake should lie with the region whose inhabitants enjoy its use. All that Victoria can eventually lose in such a case is the honor of paying for its upkeep, and that is an honor which even Mr. Frampton should be willing to share.

The other matter that has arisen in connection with the transfer of Thetis Lake park is a more serious one. Both Alderman Frampton and Alderman Baird are quoted as being in favor of considering retention of the 40-acre portion of the park which lies south of the Trans-Canada Highway, with a view to subdividing it for private sale.

Such opinions offer the chief reason for getting the parkland safely under regional control as quickly as possible, and out of reach of proposals so incredibly lacking in understanding and vision. City Council should lose no time in further laboring of the obvious, but get this sensible parkland transfer completed.

To Stifle Criticism

MR. LESLIE PETERSON USES a strange argument in his appeal for Oak Bay's support of the Social Credit candidate in next month's provincial byelection. He sees a difference between a general election and a byelection, noting that in the former not only can the electors choose the representative they want, but by their choice they can also pass judgment on the government. No matter what happens in a byelection, he says, the government will not be changed.

Admittedly re-election of a Liberal in Oak Bay will not change the government. But the decision of the voters will be no less a judgment of the existing regime. In Oak Bay, during the past years of Social Credit administration, the voters have consistently registered opposition to the government by electing, first, the late Mr. Archie Gibbs, and then Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane prior to his elevation to the bench. They were excellent members who in addition to heeding the wishes of the electors spoke out in honest and necessary criticism of Mr. Bennett's administration and policies. Oak Bay next month will have the opportunity to elect a worthy successor, Mr. Allen Cox, former reeve of the municipality.

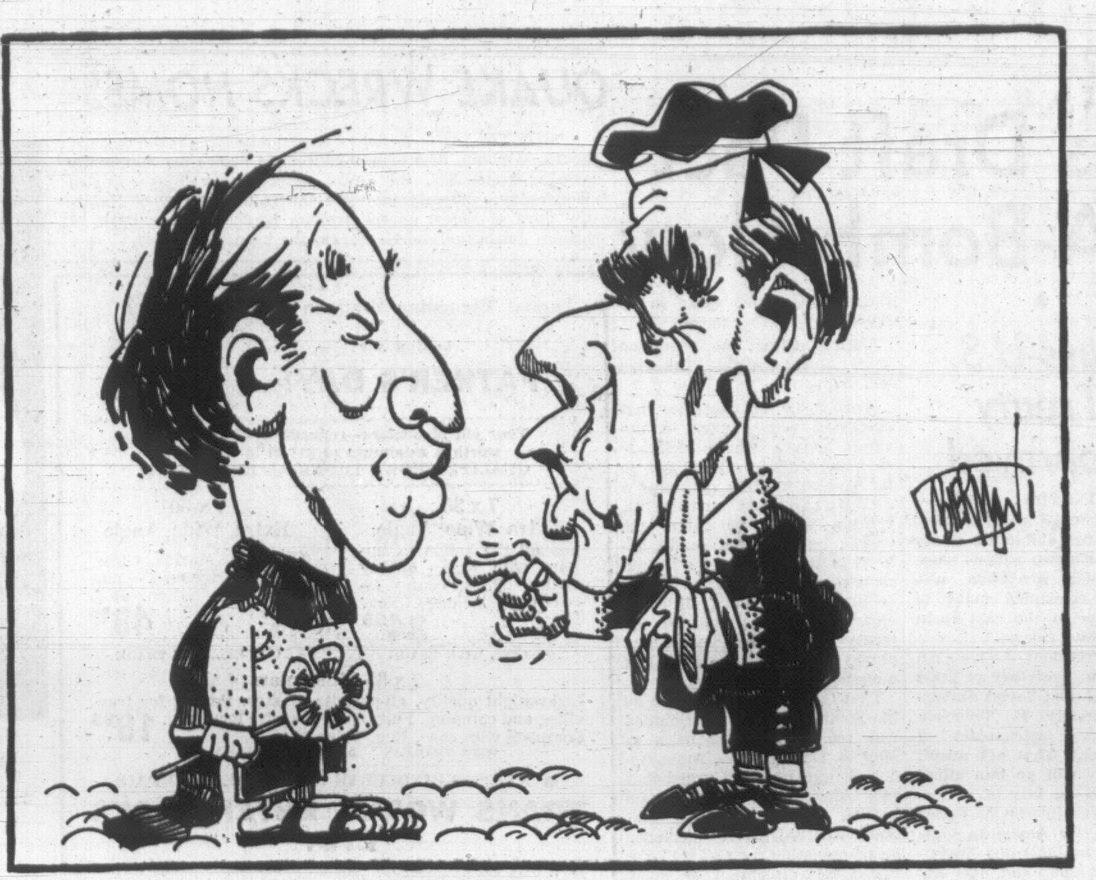
Mr. Peterson, like the voters, should recognize his argument as a request to stifle criticism, no matter how valuable that criticism may be. When Social Credit leaders call on Oak Bay for help, the cry may be justified on the narrowly partisan grounds of a government in increasing trouble. But on any other grounds, Oak Bay voters can profitably follow the course they have adopted since 1952 and thereby give themselves and the rest of British Columbia a strong voice of dissent when dissent is urgently needed.

The Vital Ingredient

A MUSICAL INSTRUMENT OF India, the sitar, is apparently in heavy demand as the result of its popularization by well-known modern entertainers, and makers of the real sitar are hard-pressed to provide an adequate supply. They insist on putting into the instrument's creation a month's work—more if the weather is hot and humid.

But an American firm says it has perfected an aluminum sitar, available at a cheap price through mass production and sounding exactly like its Indian cousin — a claim which makers of the original instruments deride.

Our credibility goes to the East Indians. When the diesel succeeded the old "lokie" on the tracks of Canada, this nation lost its most haunting music, the melodic ululation of the steam train whistle, superseded by the diesel horn's flat "blat." So science and ingenuity produced a facsimile of the steam whistle's chord—and all that was destroyed was the soul of the thing.



"... My future government can lick your past government anytime ..."

FROM REGINA

By JAMES H. GRAY

They Ask for Bread—a Higher Price

THE best laid election plans of both the Liberals and Conservatives for Western Canada may well become booby-trapped by the organized wheat growers' new demands for guaranteed, and much higher, floor prices for wheat. The Liberal Government has already promised a floor of $1.95½ basis No. 1 Northern wheat in store in Fort William for the 1967 crop. The Conservatives have promised to extend that floor price for another year. But this is a far cry from what the wheat growers are prepared to accept.

Gray

They have been working through the Western Agriculture Conference of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. Last month they came up with their demands. These include a floor price at $2.12 per bushel plus an additional $1 a bushel for all the wheat sold for domestic consumption. In a normal year, Canadians eat about 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, or about 10 per cent of a low average Prairie crop.

For almost 20 years, the wheat farmers have claimed that they have been subsidizing Canadian bread eaters. The prices paid for most of the crop are based on international wheat agreements. These agreements are commitments by foreign countries to purchase certain quantities of wheat within a range of fixed prices.

Wheat growers claim that Canadian millers have no price or quantity commitments but buy their wheat at the Wheat Board minimum price which is only available to countries with contracts. They claim Canadian consumers should pay a much higher non-wheat-agreement world price. The farmers have now put that price at $1 a bushel more than the floor price and say that it should be raised by increasing the price of bread by two cents per loaf.

Costs

The effect of this demand would be to increase the income of the Prairie farmers by $50 million a year and increase the cost of living of consumers by at least that much. But this would be much less than the cost of raising the floor price by roughly 17 cents a bushel to $2.12. There are now between 900 million and 1,000 million bushels of wheat on hand in Canada. The cost to the taxpayers of the farmers' demands could be $150 million plus what is tacked onto the next crop.

The farmers will dispute that figure. They can even argue that there could be little cost to the taxpayer because the floor price can be realized through export sales by a more vigorous sales policy. The $2.12 price is in fact the average price obtained for the 1966-67 crop.

Unhappily the entire world wheat outlook has changed since then. Surplus has replaced shortage. The United States has been undercutting the Canadian prices and grabbing off export markets. There is little hope that anything more than the bare International Wheat Agreement minimum can be obtained. It was, indeed, the fear of a world wheat price collapse brought on by bumper crops and U.S. sales policy that produced the Liberal floor price of $1.95½ in the first place. So the deep resentment of the wheat growers over being caught in the inflation spiral as consumers and in a world glut situation as producers is a fact of life on the prairies.

There can be no doubt of the seriousness of the mood of prairie wheat growers. At every farm organization meeting in recent years agonizing oratory over rising costs and static wheat prices has featured the debates. The wheat pools and all other farm organizations are solidly lined up behind the new demands. There are 198,000 registered wheat growers on the prairiers and that number can be roughly recalculated into almost 500,000 votes at this election.

So where does that leave both the Grits and Tories? Ducking under the barn for the moment; but ultimately every rural candidate in the west will have to stand up and be counted.

It is easy to anticipate what the reply of both the Grit and Tory high command is likely to be. Both are in an unpromising mood, both are emphasizing economy and the end of handouts, coupled with easing tax loads. The farmers' demands would destroy the retrenchment posture and make the struggle against inflation all the more difficult.

Likely Reply

To this the farmers are likely to reply: What struggle against inflation? Only last week the federal government joined with Quebec to work out a $25 million program to develop the downstream St. Lawrence river area. It has joined with British Columbia to develop a new port at Vancouver to serve the potash, coal and sulphur interests. It has promised vague but grandiose sounding plans to revitalize the economy of the Maritimes and beef up the backward regions elsewhere in the country.

The wheat price issue is the sort of gut issue that could well change the political complexion of the west, at least to the extent of changing it back. Before "following John" became a prairie passion, the wheat growers habitually sent a dozen CCF'ers to Ottawa. They conceivably could do so again if the NDP can find some way of breaking the Tory grip on Saskatchewan with the wheat price argument.

Letters

Research Under Way

Re: editorial; For a Federal Study of Pollution, dated June 6, 1968.

It seems strange that with all the problems Saanich has with its waste disposal it appears to be only now looking for solutions which should have been solved years ago. Saanich is also a bit late in efforts to seek intensive senior government research on sewage disposal. Two years ago in 1966 the Department of Health and Welfare released a bulletin which stated that;

"Research is increasingly being directed towards the development of new methods for the treatment of domestic and industrial wastes for application on a large scale. Currently the Public Health Engineering Division, Department of National Health and Welfare, is considering ways and means of eliminating phosphates and nitrates from treated sewage; development of efficient treatment systems to replace the antiquated septic tank; application of these systems to wastes from single dwelling households, institutions and small isloated subdivisions."

I wish to disagree with Mr. Life if he believes that science and society have been satisfied with very minor modifications in the traditional approach to the sewer problem. I have just read an article on a "Biochemical Fuel Cell" which converts organic wastes into electricity. Another article describes using "Human Waste as Rocket Fuel."

Perhaps instead of searching for a new-fangled miracle, the natural biological processes should be adhered to.

A study of how sewage problems have been solved in other areas should give a guideline. Extending outfalls and polluting a little further from the shore is not the answer. — Mrs. W. R. Walters, 908 Alexander.

Scarcely Starry-Eyed

Your correspondent's letter "The Public Pays" would be amusing if it were not so dangerous.

Mr. Paine classifies the implementation of the Carter report as a "socialist dream." I would remind Mr. Paine that the Royal Commission on Taxation was instituted by a Conservative government and the members were selected by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The six members consisted of two chartered accountants, one executive of a trust company, one member of the bankers association, one business-woman from Winnipeg and a member of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture. I would hardly classify these people as starry-eyed socialists and uninformed persons.

The Carter report as anticipated, has been vigorously opposed by a very small minority but unfortunately, as this small minority supplies the political funds for the Liberal and Conservative parties the report will be shelved and our present system of unjust taxation will continue. The same fate will befall the Watkins Report for the same reason. Never was there a truer saying "He who pays the piper calls the tune."

I also disagree with Mr. Paine that the socialists have "wrecked Britain." —M. P. B. WRIXON, 1254 Rockland.

FROM LONDON

By TIM TRAYNOR

A Royal Attack on Smothering Frustration

"PEOPLE say this is the permissive society. But we live in the most regimented society ever in this country. You have practically to have a licence to breathe. You cannot move without people asking what you are doing."

Traynor

Any reader could be forgiven for mistaking the quotation above for the introduction to a New Left sermon. Nor would subsequent passages destroy the illusion.

"For the young people at universities, there is a feeling of blanketing authority, and the feeling that they are in any way responsibly involved is discouraged."

Is this perhaps the voice of a sympathetic professor? Is there not something there of Marcuse, however muted? Certainly there is an identification with youth. Consider another sample.

"Every generation and every community gets precisely the younger generation it deserves. The young will not conform to a patently shallow, self-seeking and callous attitude among their elders

"Equally, they cannot be expected to feel they belong to a community which ignores their existence and makes no attempt to involve them in the opportunities of adult society."

The exercise can be repeated with appropriate variations. In our subject's themes there is frequently an echo of student protest. He insists, as they insist, that industries are to serve people rather than vice versa. He sees, as they see, dangers in uncontrolled technological development.

Comment on Rebels

It all smacks of the London School of Economics, or, at least, Cambridge. Yet the individual in question is far removed from either milieu. The quotes are those of His Royal Highness, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

It is a comment on the student rebels that their sentiments are shared, up to a point, by an occupant of Buckingham Palace. Lest any irate young anarchist imagine that the prince is but trimming to the contemporary wind, it should be pointed out that he speaks from long experience of his topics. He has expended considerable energy on youth work and his special passion is technology in all its ramifications. Though the fact tends to be obscured by ballyhoo, his adventures at the controls of jet aircraft are a manifestation of this.

None of this is to suggest that there is nothing of radicalism in the prince's pronouncements. By the standards of the constitutional monarchy, he was always an experimenter, and the passage of time has only strengthened his natural impulse.

Plain speaking, always his hallmark, has of late been applied to the most topical, not to say explosive, of issues. He has sympathized with those joining the brain drain to escape "the smothering and frustrating conditions we have created for them," and he has worried out loud about the decline of Britain's international reputation. He is a tireless booster of the export drive and, in a famous economic critique, said he was "sick and tired" of apologizing for the country. Left-wing Labor MPs were enraged. There were complaints from pulpits when he warned governments against alienating trade partners by making moral judgments on them.

The storms that attended his recent tour of Australlia and New Zealand bear witness to his capacity for trampling on preconceptions. There was astonishment when he suggested the Catholic-Protestant division was reflected in Australia's political parties; press censure followed. It was echoed in New Zealand by the tabloid Truth which called his trip a "costly disaster." (However, Truth's competitors in the main applauded his liveliness.)

There is, in short, something of the gadfly in the distinguished - looking athlete with the twinkle in his eye. To that extent he is a radical and he has nailed his colors firmly to the mast in recent, unprecedented television interviews here and in New Zealand. He has said he is prepared to risk immersing himself in controversy in the interests of stimulating fresh thought about contemporary problems.

Not for him the maxim: "Once bitten, twice shy." At most one can expect a blunt demarche such as that which followed his Australian intervention. "As so very often happens," he said, "I discover that it would have been very much better if I had kept my trap shut."

No Fount of Radicalism

But the prince is still a prince and hardly the fount of any very virulent radicalism. In his mouth, the catalogue of complaints and fears so dear to the students can be seen for what it is: a complex of problems recognizable to any moderately progressive adult. They hardly appear earth-shaking and certainly not grounds for casting down the whole of modern society.

As might be expected, the prince puts his finger on the essential points. He notes that the accumulation of legislation that can lead to a sense of suffocation is the answer of governments to conditions of which the young have no knowledge. "It must seem ironical that much of the legislation is intended to protect that freedom which has always been a feature of our democratic system.

As to the technological problem, humanization and the pursuit of efficiency were not conflicting but complementary. The aim of structural reform should be to allow men to co-operate "with the greatest efficiency and with the least friction."

It is perfectly possible to forsee the development and application of this line of thinking; indeed, the prince's espousal of it suggests it is already well established. Clearly, it is necessary to look again for an authentic revolutionary rationale.

Toba Inlet is the destination of the Gwenol, the fine little yacht belonging to Donald G. Forbes of this city. She has on board her owner, Warburton Pike, formerly a big game hunter, but now a camera fiend, and the noted literateur and politician Clive Phillippe-Wolley of Piers Island.

The party has been organized for the purpose of securing photographs of big game, particularly of the mountain goat. Toba Inlet is just south of Bute Inlet on the mainland side of the gulf.

Yugoslav Heretic Looks At the Student Revolts

By ANATOLE SHUB

BELGRADE—Yugoslavia's most famous Communist heretic, Milovan Djilas, has been watching the revolt of 40,000 Belgrade university students and professors with sympathy and considers it great and something authentically new.

In his view, it is a movement for democratic socialism, which has already brought fresh currents into stagnant political waters and shattered the bureaucratic monolith which superficially dominated Yugoslav society.

Djilas, a partisan war hero and former Yugoslav vice-president jailed for nearly nine years until released 18 months ago, has not been taking part in the university revolt, although officials and the Communist press have attacked "Djilasite" influence on the movement.

In a conversation with three Western correspondents he emphasized his view that the professors and students need no spiritual mentors. He himself is barred from political activity by the terms of his parole.

Conviction

Djilas believes the students' firmness and resolution in the week-old crisis express both self-confidence and genuine conviction. While the authorities are trying to steer the movement into official channels and calm it by economic concessions, he thinks they have no chance of achieving any deep or lasting success.

Although small groups of students have expressed dognatic and utopian views similar to those of West German New Left groups. the Yugoslav student movement in Djilas' view is essentially a movement for democracy in political and other organizations, for freedom of assembly and demonstrations, impartial press, and abolition of special privileges.

Djilas thinks revolutionary phraseology used by the leftist sects in the first days of the strike made it easier for the authorities to block a linking up between the students and factory workers. He believes strongly that the peoples of Yugoslavia are in need of ordinary material goods and efficient administration, rather than beautiful dogmas or heroes like Che Guevara and Rudi Dutschke.

Early Ferment

Although the university revolt broke out explosively, with last Sunday's bloody clash between students and police at New Belgrade, Djilas found signs of ferment earlier.

The day after the police assault, Djilas believes, it became clear that the issue was not merely spontaneous protest but democratic political aspiration.

To Djilas, the movement has demonstrated that the young generation in Yugloslavia is new not only in the way it dresses and behaves but in its very outlook on the world.

The attacks on "Djilasite" influence, as well as numerous other items in Sunday's press, appeared to indicate a tougher line by the authorities toward the six-day student occupation of the two dozen university buildings.

The students have resisted official pressures to resume classes and rejected compromise formulas which failed to satisfy their main demand: Dismisal of high police officlas responsible for police brutality a week ago Sunday and Monday.

The press has centered its attacks on the university's philosophy faculty, which along with the dental school and the new Belgrade Student Center have been most determined to obtain satisfaction of the essential student demands.

Two faculty members, philosopher Vojin Milic and sociologist Dragoljub Micunovic, both extremely popular among the students, were singled out for personal attack.

According to Djilas, a former student there, the philosphical faculty was also the hotbed of the revolutionary movement before the war.

Tide of Violence Must Run Course

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

Needham

The world is mad. There are times, of course, when it's madder than usual or, as I would put it, displays its madness a bit more openly, more blatantly, than usual. We are perhaps living in such a time, but we have lived in many such times before, and will again. They come as certainly as blizzards and heat waves, as death and taxes. They manifest themselves in the form of brutal and bloody deeds, collective or individual as the case may be — assassination, war, revolution, racial and religious persecution.

Viewing the upsurge of violence in the United States, the rebellions in many countries of Europe, Nigeria tearing itself apart, the Vietnam charnelhouse, people ask, "What is happening? What has gone wrong?"

To this, as an amateur historian, as a person who has certainly lived through a great deal of history, I would answer, "Nothing has gone wrong. This is simply history repeating itself. The world is as it always has been — passionate, cruel, disorderly, seething with hatred, fear, envy. But you are seeing it more clearly at this moment, just as you see the moon more clearly when it pops out from behind the clouds."

●

Living as we do in a country like Canada, many of us fail to perceive the true nature of humanity and human history. We say in effect, "Disputes are settled peacefully here, why not elsewhere?"

Or we say, "Nobody is battling the police here, so why are they doing it in Paris?"

Or we say, "Nobody murders public figures in Canada, so why do they do it in the States?"

But this is to assume that all other countries in the world are or could be or should be or want to be like Canada; this is to assume that all other humans in the world are or could be or should be or want to be like Canadians.

The fact of the matter is that our own history, dominated so long by the attitudes and values of Victorian Britain, has produced an unusually tractable and orderly people — a people unaccustomed to violence.

That's a good thing in its own way; I enjoy being able to go all over Canada, without the apprehension of being robbed, beaten up or murdered.

●

But this accomplishment (which we take so much for granted) blinds many of us to the reality which George Santayana saw, which I have come increasingly to see: "The world is not respectable; it is mortal, tormented, confused, deluded forever."

That's the case indeed; one might say of the world what Henrich Heine said of a certain ambassador, "Ordinarily he is insane, but he has moments when he is only stupid."

This is not to say that we in Canada are "right" and "good" while the rest of the world is "wrong" and "bad"; but rather that we in Canada are not typical of the world, any more than sensible Swedes and efficient Netherlanders are typical of the world.

So, after a lull — a rather long lull as history understands these things — we come to normalcy, to times of trouble which are only beginning.

I do not see (though others may), how the mounting tide of hatred and violence can be halted; it must run its course.

I think all individual people can do is to abstain on their own part from anger, hatred and violence; and more positively, to practice goodwill, love and peace wherever and whenever they can.

A mad world needs sane individuals; for someone in the end, after all the death and destruction, has to pick up the pieces.

What Difference Will Caouette Make in Quebec?

Creditiste Caouette: No Sign of Revival

By LEWIS SEALE
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA—"We'll show Mr. Trudeau that the lousy ones want the Creditistes."

This curious boast came from a Creditiste stalwart in Real Caouette's new constituency of Temiscaming, and it refers to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's crack that many Quebeckers speak lousy French.

These are the people — the isolated, the alienated, the poor — who have underwritten the Creditiste phenomenon in Quebec.

Tired of political parties that seemed concerned with only the well-fed and the articulate, they responded to Mr. Caouette's slogan: "We have nothing to lose."

To the surprise of most of the experts, they sent 26 Creditiste MPs to Parliament in 1962.

This year, Mr. Caouette is trying to recapture those days when rural Quebec seemed to be in revolt. The goal he set in his first big speech of the campaign was 35 Creditistes elected and the balance of power between Liberals and Conservatives stalemated in the Commons.

His chances of pulling it off seem to be slim. Too much has happened since 1962 — to the Creditistes, to the shape of federal politics, to the country and the people of Quebec.

Catalyst

The economic recession that was an important catalyst in the 1962 upset is gone, and despite continuing pockets of poverty most people are much better off.

The Conservative Party has gone a long way toward making itself respectable in Quebec once again. The Liberals themselves have become much more sensitive to grass roots feeling. The Creditistes have gone through a series of internal troubles.

But one of the most important changes was to the mentality of the people for whom the Creditistes were an authentic voice.

"We awakened the national conscience of French Canadians," said Mr. Caouette, looking back on the past six years. "The Quebecker today realizes that he is somebody, in the measure that he wants to be. You know the song: Be Yourself in This World of Today. Be ourselves, but be somebody."

Frustrated

The 1962 election was an educational experience. For an electorate frustrated by the apparent disinterest of the traditional politicians in their problems, it was proof that they could use the ballot box to be heard.

For the traditional politicians, it was a warning that they could be replaced. For the Creditistes, this apparently meant decline.

In the 1963 election, they elected only 20 MPs from Quebec. In 1965, after Mr. Caouette led some of the Quebeckers out of the Social Credit Party, they elected nine.

This year, rural Quebec does not seem to have awakened much to the campaign yet, and there is no sign of a Creditiste revival.

"There doesn't seem to be much excitement around any party," said a former Creditiste organizer in Lapointe. This is the riding, located in the heart of the Lake St. John-Saguenay stronghold, that has been represented since 1962 by Gilles Gregoire. Until his defection to the separatists in 1966, Mr. Gregoire was the leading Creditiste strategist.

Hard Time

In nearby Chicoutimi, Liberal sources claim that the Creditistes are having a hard time lining up a candidate. Creditiste spokesmen are uncommunicative. Yet this was a riding won by the Creditistes in 1962 and 1963.

At its height, the Creditiste belt formed a great pincer around Montreal. Starting in Mr. Caouette's own territory around Rouyn-Noranda, it swept across Northern Quebec to Lake St. John, to Quebec City and the lower St. Lawrence and then into the Eastern Townships through Sherbrooke to the Granby area, 50 miles east of Montreal.

Mr. Caouette's hopes this year are to spread the arc again. He expressed little hope of penetrating Montreal, but spoke confidently of gains in Quebec City, the rural ridings south of it and some Eastern Townships ridings.

The platform has already taken shape. All the familiar elements are there — interest free loans for public works, the balance of power in the Commons, bilingualism, a better deal for eastern farmers, bigger income tax exemptions to save money for the low-wage earner.

Another familiar feature at every meeting is the passing of a hat to raise funds for the campaign, and the patter that goes with it: "Put in what you can. If you have a dollar, put in a dollar; if you have a quarter, put in a quarter. If you're flat broke, put in your hand and take what you need."

What the Creditistes seem to be becoming is a small but permanent feature of federal politics, very much like the orthodox Social Credit group, concentrated in one area and speaking the language of a few ridings which have not been able to come to terms with any of the large parties.

Canada's Unrealistic Policy on Middle East

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Fisher is a former NDP MP who has returned to politics and is again seeking election as an NDP member. He is a lecturer in Canadian government at Carleton University. Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College.)

Fisher

It sounds unbelievable, but just one year after Egyptian President Nasser denied Israel access to its port of Elath and precipitated last summer's chapter of the war of the Arab states against Israel, Nasser and the Soviet Union are again at work at the game of brinkmanship.

For many months information has been accumulating on the extent and the nature of Soviet rearmament of Egypt and Syria, and of the greatly increased involvement of Soviet technicians. Defence Minister Moshe Dayan has said repeatedly that the lesson which the Arab states could not have missed learning in the summer of 1967 is that the war could not be renewed unless there was certainty of a much more active backing by the Soviet Union.

Crowe

There is increasing evidence of Arab preparation for war and increasing Russian diplomatic activity, parallel to its military aid, in support of Egypt and Syria. And now there is the "Fawzy Memorandum" — a document issued in late May throughout the Egyptian army launching it upon an eight-week crash program to prepare for a renewal of the war.

What does it mean? Is it a dramatic move in a war of nerves and designed to strengthen the diplomatic moves of Moscow in the Middle East against Israel? Is it an attempt to influence the internal politics of the Eshkol government, and if so, would it it be to support the position of Abba Eban or of his critics?

Who can tell for sure? The Communist mind, and the Arab mind, can be inscrutable enough, even when they are not in combination.

It is certainly not for us to take a side or express an opinion on the great debate now taking place in Israel as to whether there should be more or less diplomatic "flexibility" in matters vital to the security of Israel. But whatever may be about to unfold in the Middle East, we are deeply concerned about the position and the role of the government of Canada.

It would be helpful to put down in one place some of the recent developments in the Canadian Middle East policy.

Canada's ambassador to the United Nations associated with other nations in a statement designed to dissuade Israel from a symbolic show of military force in Jerusalem. Diplomatically this was also symbolic. It associated Canada with the unrealistic view that Israel should return to the status quo ante, to the borders before the Six Day War.

★ ★ ★

Mitchell Sharp made a statement that George Ignatieff at the UN was simply expressing existing and continuing Canadian external policy. Shortly afterwards Mr. Trudeau addressed a meeting in Montreal and said that there will be no change in Canada's attitude on the Middle East.

What then is that policy?

To put it bluntly, and we hope not uncharitably, in the telling words of Abba Eban it is to "take away the umbrella as soon as it begins to rain," and to run at least mild interference with Israel as that nation endeavors to get under a little bigger and more rain-proof umbrella of its own.

The main statement of position by the Liberal government, issued by Price Minister Pearson in the second week of June last year, is perfectly clear, remarkably detailed — and much to be regretted.

It is the policy which Mr. Trudeau has now reaffirmed.

The day after Mr. Pearson's Six Point Plan for the Middle East was made public on June 12, 1967, we said: "Mr. Pearson's plan does not seem suitable in the light of two decades' experience, and especially of the last two weeks' experience.

"It is all 'on the one hand' and 'on the other hand'. It is based on the myth of equality or equal virtue in all adversary issues ... On the one hand, Israel will return to its borders; on the other hand the Big Four (who have not looked very big in recent weeks) will guarantee stability.

"On the one hand, the Arabs will be left in practical control of the access to the Gulf of Aqaba; on the other hand, they won't exercise their practical control and there will be recognition by the Arabs that Elath is an Israeli port.

"On the one hand, there will be rights for Israeli shipping in the Suez; on the other hand, there will be no means to preserve them.

"On the one hand, there will be an expanded UN presence along the borders; on the other hand, it will be on Israeli soil also, thereby denying the flexibility Israel needs as she is surrounded by nations bent upon her destruction.

"On the one hand, the Palestinian Arabs, who have been kept in concentration camps for 20 years by the Arabs as a propaganda weapon, will be settled; on the other hand, the Israelis, who have taken in some 600,000 Jews who had been evicted by Arab states, will be asked to absorb some of these Arab refugees."

★ ★ ★

This was the Middle East policy of the Liberal government as laid down by Mr. Pearson a year ago, and also, is what we thought of it. Mr. Trudeau says the Liberal policy is unchanged. What we think of it is unchanged.

What we declared at the time we declare again as the Arab-Israeli conflict enters this new and uncertain stage. The Pearson-Trudeau position fails to take into account these two facts:

First, the main objective of our diplomacy must be to induce Arabs to accept and recognize Israel.

Second, the race which was herded helplessly into Auschwitz cannot be told at this point in history that it cannot fight in its self-defence and that it must put its faith in others."

Victorians Asked to Help In 'Operation Cowbird'

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Carl

Some readers may recall that last season about this time a request was made through this column for reports of cowbirds parasitizing local birds. This was on behalf of some specially interested members of the Victoria Natural History Society and the request is repeated this year for more observations.

Cowbirds are not particularly striking to look at. The male resembles a Brewer blackbird but is smaller in size and has a brownish head, differences likely to be noted only by an ardent bird-watcher, and the female is drab grey and has short bill. In habits, however, the cowbird is of particular interest because it is our only parasitic species. Rather than build a nest and rear young the female cowbird lays her eggs in the nests of other birds letting the foster parents do all the work of incubating and feeding fledglings.

How this unusual behavior arose is a most interesting question and hasn't been satisfactorily answered yet. One explanation is that the habit probably originated from "sloppy house-keeping." Some members of the cowbird group construct rather flimsy nests and it is presumed ancestors of modern cowbirds were of this type and finally found it less troublesome to simply lay eggs in nests of other birds.

★ ★ ★

Another interesting aspect of the subject is the wide variety of species that is parasitized by the cowbird. The list of local birds known to be more or less regularly victimized includes yellow warbler, goldfinch, white-crowned sparrow, song sparrow, bush-tit, solitary vireo, warbling vireo, red-winged blackbird and robin. Last season Victoria bird-watchers noted two more hot species, chipping sparrow and Bewick wrens.

The latter is most unusual. Authorities in charge of the Pacific Nest Record Scheme at the University of British Columbia have only one other record of a cowbird victimizing a Bewick wren and this from Tennessee in 1966. The Victoria observation is apparently the first for British Columbia if not for the Pacific Coast.

The cowbird seems to be on the increase on Vanouver Island. A few years ago it was quite rare but now the species is relatively common and the numbers may be building up. What members of the Natural History Society would like to know is how abundant is the cowbird now on southern Vancouver Island and what species are its victims. They would also like to know how many eggs of the rightful owner are present in any nest and how many eggs of cowbirds.

This involves peeking into any nest that is discovered and noting its contents. The egg of the cowbird is usually fairly conspicuous since it is often larger than the others and of a different color. Young cowbirds, too, are easily spotted since they are usually much bigger than their foster brothers and sisters, if any are left in the nest, and may be even larger than the foster parents.

Sometimes nests are found with an extra lining built over the original structure covering one or more cowbird eggs below. At first sight this looks like a smart move on the part of the bird—a device to circumvent the cowbird's attempt to foist an unwanted egg on innocent victims. However, study has shown that intelligence really isn't involved; the bird has merely reacted in a normal way to a disturbing factor. Instead of completely abandoning the nest when a foreign egg suddenly appears in it, the bird interrupts its laying cycle, rebuilds part of the nest and lays a new set of eggs.

If you discover such a multiple nest, or one containing an egg of the cowbird, or see a fledgling cowbird being fed please contact a member of the Victoria Natural History Society or phone the Provincial Museum giving the place and date of the observation as well as name and address of the observer. Don't be concerned if you are not sure of your identification; a member of the "Operation Cowbird" team will be pleased to call and verify any doubtful identities.

TWO-WEEK VISA PROTESTED

Agitator's Visit Ires U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Conservative members of Parliament today protested the Labor government's decision to let Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit into Britain for two weeks to appear on a radio-television program Students in Revolt.

The critics feared he would incite British students whose scattered rebellions have been a pale imitation of the Continental ones.

Cohn-Bendit, 23, German-born idol of France's rioting students, arrived in England Tuesday night to appear with student dissidents from other countries on the BBC program. Admitted for 24 hours only, he was given a two-week visa Wednesday.

Patrick Wall, a Conservative MP who was beaten up by Leeds University students three weeks ago, called the government decision "very foolish."

TIME TO ORGANIZE

"This means that with Tariq Ali (a Pakistani organizer, of British student demonstrations) he has two weeks to organize whatever trouble he can at British universities," Wall added.

"I understand the French government regards it as an unfriendly act that we have let him in. Anyway, we have quite enough student agitators of our own."

Danny, called "the Red" because of the red hair he dyed black to slip back into France recently, said he may try to visit the United States and Soviet Union.

Although coming to Britain with 10 other students to take part in the BBC program to be shown tonight, his main activity likely will centre on a three-hour seminar on studentt protests at the London School of Economics.

The conference. set for Friday and Saturday, will see about 200 youthful radicals trying to organize a British equivalent of student groups which set off widespread agitation in France and West Germany.

The projected organization would oppose control of education by "the ruling class," fight "imperialism," denounce restrictions on immigration, and work for greater employee control of factories.

Cohn-Bendit told students Wednesday night he will seek to set up a "Free French" resistance movement against the man who organized the first "Free French" movement in London—President de Gaulle.

Pope Takes Mass to Beach

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI, concerned that so many Italians forsake the church for the seaside, headed for the beach today to take the church to the people. The Pope was to celebrate mass at Ostia Lido, the favorite beach of Romans since the days of Julius Caesar. The holy day is the Feast of Corpus Christi.

Law Reform Commission Planned to Update B.C. Statutes

VERNON (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today announced that a law reform commission will be established in British Columbia.

Speaking at the opening session of the joint meeting of the Canadian Bar Association's B.C. branch and the Law Society of B.C., Mr. Peterson said the commission would likely consist of five to seven members who would "be of great help to us in simplifying and updating law."

"Illustrations would include the law of landlord and tenant, the whole statute of limitations and other limitations scattered throughout other statutes, the four or five statutes dealing with the courts, together with the Laws Declaratory Act which might be revised into one judicature act, the legislation dealing with jails and probation services, some of which require rescuing from antiquity, and a new jury act."

Mr. Peterson said also to be examined is "the whole of our legislation on personal property security transactions now dealt with by way of chattel mortgages, conditional sales, bills of sale, bulk sales and other chattel securities."

Mr. Peterson, who became attorney general May 27 following the resignation of Robert Bonner, said the law reform commission would not interfere with the "normal day-to-day activity" of the attorney - general's department but would supplement and add continuing review to the existing methods of improving B.C. laws."

"I think the work of such a commission would be extremely helpful to those of us who have responsibility for framing new laws or administering existing laws," Mr. Peterson said. "In this respect I think the sections of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association could well be assigned specific work."

"As well, the University of British Columbia law faculty presents a most fertile field for research work."

Mr. Peterson said he had not yet determined the precise constitution of the law reform committee or worked out the detailed terms of reference for it. He said he would welcome suggestions as to the topics that should be referred to it but "it would be my intention to refer specific problems for their consideration."

Indian Record Sorriest Blot Says Trudeau

Special to the Times

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I.—Canada's treatment of its Indians is one of the sorriest blots on the national record, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Wednesday night.

He stated that finding solutions to the problems of the Indians — and the Eskimo people — would rank in priority with a re-elected Liberal government to tackling regional economic disparity.

Trudeau freely admitted he was not fully conversant with the problems. But he repeated his pledge to involve the Indians themselves to the fullest in trying to reach solutions.

The prime minister stated," I do feel that we have done very badly by the Indian and Eskimo problem in Canada."

BLOTS ON RECORD

He added, it is one of the most sorry blots on our records as a Canadian people, and I feel extremely strongly that we need to find solutions for that as I do about under-development in the poorer parts of the provinces."

Trudeau made the statements in Toronto before leaving by chartered jet for a day's campaigning today in Prince Edward Island and in the Cape Breton region of Noval Scotia. He stated his case while being interviewed by CBC reporters and invited public guests at the taping of a television show to be seen next Tuesday.

It was after 11 o-clock at night when he arrived at Summerside, but there was a good crowd on hand to greet him at the airport. Fireworks burst in the sky to announce his arrival, and a mob of cheering students formed the basis of a crowd that jammed around the cavalcade taking him to his motel. He got out of the car briefly, but the people crowded in so closely that he was forced to beat a retreat back into the car.

RIOTING DECRIED

Mr. Trudeau said in Toronto he hoped the possible inability of some students to find summer employment this year would not lead to any rioting as carried out by unhappy students in other parts of the world.

Trudeau said he did not have any immediate solutions for the problem, nor large amounts or money to dish out, and added the matter had not been given enough consideration by governments, business and other segments of society. He pointed to education being a provincial responsibility. He said he hoped the students would show patience until solutions could be worked out by all concerned. A crowd also gathered outside his suite after he got to the motel. Trudeau appeared briefly on a small balcony outside the unit.

He quipped that following a famous speech in Montreal last summer — the "Vive Quebec Libre" performance by French President Charles de Gaulle — he made it a point never to make balcony speeches.

Trudeau gave the crowd a wave, wished them goodnight, and turned in. The people gave him three cheers and went home.

In the Toronto taping for the TV show, Trudeau was at his best—relaxed, witty, lively and articulate. It was a different performance from the one he put on Sunday in the national television debate- cum-press-conference.

Trudeau said he thought some analysts were wrong in maintaining that personal charisma was contributing to much of the interest in this election.

ENSURE UNITY

The prime minister said he thought people wanted to become involved in the Canadian political scene, and wanted to make sure that Canadian unity stays a reality and that the country is not plunged into the troubles affecting other nations.

"We want to plug them in to the decision-making "processes," he stated.

Trudeau was asked about student loans by a young girl in the audience. He said he had become conscious of the problems facing students unable to get work this summer, but was not sure that loans were the right solution.

The prime minister said the manual labor types of jobs that students formerly got were drying up. He stated that possible ways out would be free education or having the universisites operate longer and have quicker courses. He added that it was obvious not enough attention had been given to the problem. He promised to talk to the provinces, to industry, and tions.

Chinese 'Massacred'

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The Indonesian government has massacred 4,000 Chinese in western Borneo, the New China news agency charged Monday. The official Chinese news agency said the Indonesian government also committed other "Fascist atrocities," and warned "the blood debt . . . must be repaid." The agency claimed many Chinese died of starvation and lack of medical care while others were brutally tortured to death in concentration camps.

SIRHAN

CHECK SIRHAN MOVES

Middle East Visits Investigated

LONDON (AP) — A British newspaper said today an Arab government has evidence that Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused assassin of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, returned to the Middle East in 1964 and 1966.

The evening Standard said this evidence could open a new line of investigation into the motivation for the Kennedy shooting and the organization behind it.

The paper said the Arab government, which was not identified, was forwarding its findings to the United States.

In 1964, The Standard said, Sirhan returned to the Middle East for seven months, including four in Damascus, Syria. It said there was no indication where he spent the other three months.

It said he spend a longer period in the Middle East in 1966, including five moonths in Cairo. This time he returned to the United States at the beginning of 1967, the paper said.

The standard said the investigation also had uncovered a number of other facts on Sirhan's background which vary with earlier accounts of his past.

His full name was give as Sirhan, Bishara Sirhan Abu Khatar. It said he was first brought to the United States as a four-year-old child in 1948, not in 1957 as earlier believed.

These records, the paper said, show that Sirhan returned to Jordan in 1957, and, at the age of 13, married Leila Yussef Mikhael in EsSalt, 15 miles west of Amman, June 27, 1957.

It said he returned to the United States that same year and his wife joined him three months later.

The paper said the Arab government is convinced its investigation is correct, but had asked that it be checked with the findings of the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The story was written by Jon Kimche, a free lance journalist and former editor of the Jewish Observer and Middle East Review, a weekly published in London.

Bank Official Introduced In Victoria

The new Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce vice-chairman for western Canada, William Masterton Currie, 58, was presented to Victoria's business and professional society Wednesday night.

W. H. Armstrong, the bank's senior manager in Victoria, said the reception "represents quite a change" in bankers' thinking.

"At this party, we're not exposing the customers to Mr. Currie," he said, indicating the mostly grey-haired guests, "we're exposing Mr. Currie to them."

It was a far cary from the days when banks were mysterious, vaulted institutions where it was considered something of "a privilege" if one was permitted to do business.

"In the last few years we've become quite concerned about our image," he said.

Creation of the Vancouver-based vice-chairmanship and the appointment of former president Currie to it led to some speculation among guests that it might be a response to the Bank of British Columbia which is to open its first branch next month in Vancouver.

PRAIRIE START

Mr. Currie, a Medicine Hat native who started in Prairie bank branches, was quick to deny his move from Toronto to Vancouver had anything to do with the B.C. bank.

He said it was a "logical extension" of a plan to spread the bank's administration from its Toronto headquarters. Vice-chairmen were earlier appointed in Toronto and Montreal.

Competition and image aside, the bank's business has been booming. A recent interim financial report shows Canadian Imperial among the six largest national banks that earned more, took in more and paid out more during the last six months than in any similar period in their history.

Its revenues rose to $232.5 million from $186.6 million a year earlier. Its earnings rose to $14.4 million from $12.6 million.

COMPETITIVE

Mr. Armstrong said banks have become competitive insofar as they have realized they are incorporations with a responsibility to bring their investors the biggest return for their dollar.

"We've always stressed service, but we have never pushed it like it's being pushed now."

"It's the same old idea of responsibility, but now the idea is that we've got to give something back."

Mr. Armstrong said the impending appearance of the B.C. bank was a healthy move, not a competitive threat.

SUPERMARKETS

"So long as it's a good bank, it's like having two supermarkets across the street from one another—it brings the traffic."

Mr. Currie rejoined the then Bank of Commerce after leaving the Second-World-War navy as a lieutenant. He served at branches in London, England, the West Indies and Winnipeg and was in Toronto when the bank amalgamated with the Imperial Bank of Canada in 1961.

He was named chief general manager in 1963 and president a year later.

Strike Vote To Be Taken In Few Days

Employees of Canadian Linen Supply Co., 841 View, are expected to hold a strike vote within a few days, it was announced today.

The 30 employees, members of Local 580, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, asked May 28 for a government-supervised strike vote, the announcement says.

Since negotiations began in November, the company has failed to appoint a B.C. resident with authority to bargain with the union and concluded a collective agreement, it adds.

Among employee demands are 50 cent to $1.25 increases on wage rates now ranging from $1.37½ to $2.14

The market was piling up tremendous volume on the day after Wall Street took the first of a series of days off from market action in order to clear up the huge backlog of paperwork caused by record volume.

On the American Stock Exchange, too, there was a record of near-record trading volume.

Tumultuous conditions ranged on the amorphous over-the-counter market where one Wall Street source said pandemonium reigned and lines of trading houses were jammed by telephone calls.

In late dealings, American Standard preferred, up nearly a point, held the lead on volume.

Global Marine ran up more than 4, National General about 4, American Machine and Foundry, Commercial Credit and Tenneco a point or more.

Great American Holdings and RCA sagged more than a point each.

General Motors held firmly to a rise exceeding a point while other auto stocks softened. Steels were weak.

Control Data dropped 4, IBM and Raytheon 3, Union Carbide, General Foods, Penn Central and Eastern Airlines a point or more.

AT TORONTO the stock market was mixed at the close of active trading today.

On index, industrials dropped .11 to 161.60, golds rose 5.20 to 228.33, base metals climbed .66 to 103.11 and western oils advanced 4.65 to 216.64.

Final volume was 4,483,000 shares compared with 3,827,000 Wednesday.

AT VANCOUVER share values of Neon Products surged forward another $4 today during quiet morning trading.

Stock in the diversified Vancouver-based company touched a new high of $33 on a turnover of 6,785 shares. The rise comes in the wake of Neon's announced takeover bid for Imbrex a Montreal-based floor covering firm.

Imbrex share values also climbed, showing an advance of $1.25 to $12.

Prices in all sections of the market were generally strong although volume to 11 a.m. was only 951,164 shares, well below recent totals.

Kimberley Copper advanced .18 to $1.45 on a volume of 93,200 shares. Northlode was up .04 to $2.16, Interprovincial Silver moved up .06 to $2.07 and Alwin advanced .06 to $1.75.

Oil stocks were stronger with Central Del Rio up $1.12 to $18.50 Giant Reef up .09 to $1.80 and Sunlite up .10 to $6.

AT MONTREAL the exchange continued to be moderately active this afternoon.

AT LONDON Australian Nickel shares were marked sharply lower in hectic trading today.

JOINT STATEMENT

HILLCREST LUMBER COMPANY LIMITED
PACIFIC LOGGING COMPANY LIMITED

The closing of the mill at Hillcrest has become the subject of considerable comment in this area.

Many suggestions have been made recently by various citizens and groups, all of whom are sincere in their attempts to find a way to extend the life of Hillcrest at Mesachie Lake.

These recent statements seem to have caused some confusion in the public's mind as to the facts of the matter and we feel that it is desirable at this time, to clarify the situation.

During the past few years, many discussions have been held between our two Companies, which explored all the possibilities under which Hillcrest could continue its operations. Every recognition was given in these discussions to the community and social interest, because of the long term association of each Company in the district.

Considerations that made a milling operation economic at Mesachie Lake 25 years ago are no longer valid and having due regard to the technological changes in milling, logging, log utilization, lumber market patterns, the location of the plant and the overall timber reserves in the area, we came to the only conclusion possible: that it was inevitable even though very much regretted by all parties, that the operation could no longer continue.

We trust that this brief statement will assist the general public in reaching a full understanding of the situation.

TROUBLES ON HORIZON

Canada Booms If No Strikes

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canada's economy is showing signs of making a vigorous recovery but a series of strike threats loom as dark clouds on the horizon.

BENSON
. . . workers hold key

A difference of over six cents an hour in wage increases could lead to a strike on the St. Lawrence Seaway. The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers has rejected a majority report of a conciliation board which dealt with the contract dispute between the seaway authority and its 1,200 employees.

Canada's postal workers and letter carriers have voted to call a nationwide mail strike for more money and improved working conditions. The postal workers have given their union leaders overwhelming support to call a nationwide strike this summer if a satisfactory contract is not granted by the federal government.

A wage increase of 24 per cent over three years for passenger train firemen and 15 per cent for firemen on freight and yard engines has been recommended by a federal conciliation board, much to the dismay of a government that is attempting to hold the line on inflationary pressures.

8 PER CENT

Finance Minister E. J. Benson has forecast that the gross national product will rise by 8 per cent to about $67,000,000,000 in 1968 compared with a 6.8 per cent gain in 1967.

But if the economy becomes again strike-ridden it could throw all the economic forecasts out of line.

It was a strike on the seaway in 1966 when the dockworkers tied up shipping and the seaway workers later went on strike that saw the federal government finally agree to a 30 per cent hike for the dockworkers. That set the pattern for wage raises across the country and fed the fires of inflation.

Another seaway walkout is on the horizon. Meetings have been called by six locals for today to take a strike vote. Results will be relayed to the CBRT's Ottawa headquarters tonight.

BIG DEPOSIT OF ASBESTOS LOCATED

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Canadian based Pacific Asbestos, Ltd., said today it has found a 25 million ton deposit of asbestos near Barraba in New South Wales.

President R. H. Bullied said the company completed major explorations through a subsidiary, White Asbestos Mining Ltd., which consisted of 62 diamond drill holes representing 36,000 feet of drilling on the company's asbestos properties.

He said final estimates of the size of the deposit were subject to completion of a core testing program under way in Canada. He said more than half of the 340 samples collected have been tested and additional diamond drilling and bulk sampling were planned.

Small Increase In Industrial Production

OTTAWA (CP) — Industrial production rose by 2.2 per cent in April, largely as the result of a settlement of labor disputes in the automotive industry which depressed production figures in the two previous months, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The bureau's index of industrial production measures about one third of total national output of goods and services, and that part of the gross national product which is most affected by short-term swings in the economy.

The index, based on 1949 output equalling 100, rose to 291.5 in April from 285.3 in March, which was down from 287.7 in February.

In April last year, the index was 283.8, and in March, 279.3.

New Subsidiary

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (CP) —Unibraze Corp., producers of welding, brazing and soldering alloys, has announced the formation of a Canadian subsidiary to be located in Montreal.

Interest Rates 'At Top'

MONTREAL (CP) — A Toronto economist says he believes interest rates have reached their peak and that economic expansion this year is not likely to be interrupted by a Canadian dollar crisis.

Edward P. Neufeld, professor of economics at the University of Toronto, said, however, any significant decline in interest rates "must await evidence that prices and costs are levelling off."

Addressing the first annual meeting of the Canadian Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute, Prof. Neufeld said the dollar should remain strong because Canada's exchange reserve position is strong and her trade expansion is encouraging.

At present interest rates are as high or higher than in any year in the last century, he said. Nine-per-cent mortgage rates are common, and Government of Canada long-term bonds yield seven per cent or more.

He said he suspects most of "our high interest rates" result from the expectation that inflation will continue, adding:

"So if we wish to see interest rates decline significantly, I think we will first have to demonstrate that we can control inflation.

Prof. Neufeld said cost trends probably are not at present impairing our export-import position because the "United States has recently mismanaged its economic affairs about as badly as we have done."

For a number of months now — largely because of price and cost deterioration in the U.S. and not improvement in Canada — the trend of costs and prices in Canada has been similar to that in the U.S.

Awaited Job Spurt Slow to Develop

OTTAWA (CP) — Job growth did not show its usual spurt between April and May this year and unemployment stood at 366,000 at mid-May, a government report said today.

The unemployment total was down by 70,000 from the mid-April figure of 436,000 but this was less than the usual drop for that period.

New jobs totalled 229,000 in the month, "a somewhat smaller advance for the period than in most of the past few years," said the joint report by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of statistics.

The unemployed represented 4.6 per cent of the labor force of 7,871,000. This compares with 5.7 per cent in April and 3.9 per cent in May of last year.

After adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the jobless rate was 4.9 per cent. an increase from the 4.6 per cent figure set in April and 4.2 in May of last year.

LABOR FORCE GROWS

May unemployment was 62,000 above the year-earlier figure. The labor force grew by 158,000 or two per cent during the year while the number of jobs went up by only 96,000 or 1.3 per cent.

The report said employment in manufacturing and construction was well below May, 1967, levels.

All regions except Quebec showed year-to-year gains in employment. The Quebec situation was attributed to drops in a number of manufacturing activities and "the strong support provided to the employment situation last year by Expo."

The Atlantic region continued to show the highest rate of unemployment, 6.8 per cent. But this was down from the 10.2-per-cent level of April and 7.2 per cent in May of last year.

Quebec's jobless rate was 6.1 per cent compared with eight per cent in April and 5.6 per cent a year ago.

Ontario had 3.6 per cent of its labor force unemployed, down from 3.8 per cent in April but higher than the 2.6-per-cent rate in May, 1967.

Prairie unemployment was 2.7 per cent in May, compared with 3.1 in April and two per cent a year ago.

British Columbia's rate fell to 6.1 per cent from 6.6 during the month but was up from 4.7 per cent over the year.

Many plastic materials such as cellophane, safety film, rayon and celluloid are derived from wood.

Wallis Comes On To Tumble Rocks

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

Idle Thoughts for Thursday's Notebook . . .

Who's Claude Ruel?

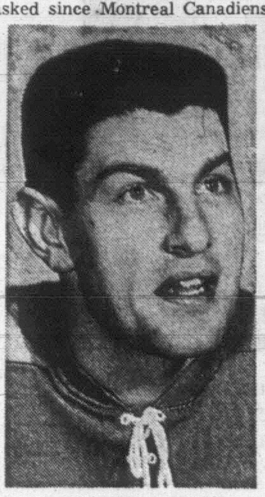
That has been a question almost everyone, it seemed, has asked since Montreal Canadiens appointed their new coach at the start of the week.



FRED USSELMAN

Mr. Average Man-in-the-Street didn't know Scotty Bowman, either, until St. Louis Blues suddenly showed up in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals.

Ruel and Bowman are out of the same mould. (That would have to be figuratively speaking. It would be difficult to match Ruel's physical likeness. He stands only five feet, five inches and is almost as wide.)

The emergence of Scotty Bowman as a hockey notable, and now the appointment of Ruel as Montreal's coach has to be mentioned jointly because there is a striking example of what makes the Canadiens the powerhouse of hockey.

It is nice and polite to point to the Jean Beliveaus, the J. C. Tremblays, the Henri Richards, et al, as the reason the Canadiens are as strong as they are.

But someone had to steer that talent to Montreal. . . .

For more than a decade, that "someone" included the effervescent Ruel and the dapper Bowman. They were very vital links, although comparatively unknown, in an executive chain that has helped achieve consistent greatness.

That exceptional talent within an organization comes into the open with the introduction of Ruel and Bowman.

Both, incidentally, stepped practically from junior ranks into Montreal's executive chain under Sam Pollock. Both had played junior hockey for Montreal teams. Without meaning to offend Bowman, it must be said that Ruel was the better professional prospect.

Until an unfortunate eye injury curtailed his career, Ruel seemed intent on becoming the first five-foot-five defenceman ever to play in the NHL. He would have made it, too, because he had the hunger and determination along with other on-ice talents.

●

While Victoria Shamrocks have lost a good bet for "rookie-of-the year" honors in the National Lacrosse Association, they haven't given up on the idea of a surprise replacement.

Fred Usselman's the name.

Property rights of the veteran are being disputed by New Westminister, Portland and Victoria. Usselman's name has popped up on Westminster's protected list, and the argument now seems to be over certain ambiguous clauses in the league regulations.

Shamrock president Keith Dorman said Wednesday he feels Westminster "has a chance to win its claim." However, Usselman has made it plain he would play for only two teams in the Western Division . . . Portland or Victoria.

There's room on the Shamrocks roster because the Shamrocks have learned that Charlie Hardy, the sparkling junior from Nanaimo, will be out of action for at least six weeks because of an ankle injury.

SIX LEAVE CAHA

Hockey's Mavericks Gaining in Strength

SARNIA (CP) — Six teams formed a maverick Western Ontario Junior A Hockey League Wednesday night and immediately affiliated themselves with the rebel Canadian Hockey Association.

Ron Butlin of Calgary, president of the CHA which was formed last weekend, said the entry of teams from Sarnia, St. Thomas, Chatham, Guelph, Brantford and Stratford assures the association of an East-West junior playoff.

Butlin said the Western Canada Hockey League, the old Western Canada Junior Hockey League, has severed relations with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and joined the CHA. But he said he has informed the National Hockey League that the WCHL will fulfil its draft commitments next season.

UNDER 21

With CHA affiliation, the new Ontario league will operate with the same junior age limit as the WCHL, which means players must be under 21 at Dec. 31 of the playing year to be eligible. The CAHA recently set the junior age at 20 as of Dec. 31 of the playing year.

Butlin said he has also been approached by the Northern Ontario and British Columbia Junior A series. He said he will attend a Northern Ontario meeting in Sudbury June 22.

He said the CHA also will accept senior leagues and added that the association "can run hockey better in Canada than it has been in the past."

'Stylers Boost Margin

NANAIMO — Victoria Oldstylers defeated Nanaimo O'Keefes 15-8 Wednesday to extend to four points their lead atop the Vancouver Island Senior Lacrosse League.

Charn Dhillon again played a standout game, scoring four goals and setting up two for Victoria.

Emile Wegwitz potted three goals, Keith Lawrence added two and Pat Green, Dave Collett, Stu Walker and Barry McIntyre each got one.

For Nanaimo, Gary Shipper and Doug Thien each counted a pair while Ken Manns, Harvey Thien, Bill Mercer and Bill Beck added singles.

The Stylers now have four victories, one tie and one loss in six starts.

Loose Checking Hurts Victoria In 13-10 Setback

By ERNIE FEDORUK

If Victoria Shamrocks want to measure their National Lacrosse Association successes beforehand, they might start studying their regular Monday night practices. A good workout has been followed by a winning effort and poor practices usually have led to an "ouch".

But every game been a good one for Don Wallis. The rookie goaltender from New Westminster seems headed for full-time employment after helping Salmonbellies to a 13-10 victory over Victoria, at Memorial Arena on Wednesday.

Sharpest in the early going to help Westminster to a big jump, Wallis made it two-for-two in the win column with a 22-stop performance. If he keeps it up, Westminster veteran Les Norman may be relegated to part-time duty.

FINISH WAS FINE

The Shamrocks didn't help themselves or Norman. If only to make the score respectable, the Shamrocks came up with a whirlwind finish but few among the audience of 1,982 would have bet on Victoria's chances.

It was 9-3, advantage to New Westminster, heading into the third period. Victoria's 7-4 scoring edge in the final period made it close and, perhaps, supplied a morale boost for tonight's return match in Westminster.

The Shamrocks, too easy with their checks and just as weak in claiming their fair share of loose balls, lost it in the first two periods.

WORKOUTS TELL

Among some in the Shamrocks' dressing room, there was a suggestion the Monday workout tells all. A point agreed by coach David Unwin.

". . . A good practice, a good game; a poor workout, a poor game . . ."

The Shamrocks had sufficient individual talent on hand, but lacked teamwork. Nor did they run and hustle as did the Salmonbellies in the first two periods. When the Rocks got around to the running part of the game, they found they had as much speed as the visitors.

Some of Victoria's third-period fire came from Doug Thompson. The rookie goaltender replaced regular Barry Forbes with the score 9-3, and promptly pulled off two fine saves.

PLAYMAKER, TOO!

Thompson made eight saves in all, and also pepped up the offence by drawing two assists.

Forbes made eight saves in each of the two periods he worked, but lacked the protection Thompson enjoyed.

Big Wayne Shuttleworth and Larry Henry led Westminster's lamp-lighting production with three goals each. Ian Bull added a pair while the others went to John Shmyr, Paul Parnell, Dave Tory, Wayne Goss and Ken Henry.

Jim McNeill and Ed Kowalyk each scored twice for Victoria. Bill Gray, Ranjit Dillon, Nirmal Dillon, Bill Munroe, Ken Alexander and Ted Liebich added the singles.

McNeill also tacked on a pair of assists for a four-point night.

NO GOAL FOR GOSS

Picking off shot from stick of New Westminster's Wayne Goss (13), Victoria goalkeeper Barry Forbes (20) makes second-period save during Wednesday's National Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena. Running free and easy, as Goss does here, Westminster went on to post 13-10 victory over Shamrocks. Teams meet again in New Westminster tonight. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Colwood Misses Fairway Sweep

Only one match separated Royal Colwood from a complete sweep over visiting Uplands Wednesday as they vaulted to the top of the Inter-Club League standings after two rounds.

Colwood, rated with Gorge Vale as one of the clubs to beat this year, recovered from a first-round 6-3 loss at Victoria Golf Club last week with an 8-1 win Wednesday and a half-point edge over Gorge Vale.

Defending champion Gorge squashed visiting Oak Bay 7½ to 1½.

Bob Hunt was the man who stymied Colwood's chance at a sweep when he downed newcomer Max Buckley, 1 up.

Bill McColl gained the only Victoria win. He defeated City Amateur champion Al MacLeod, 1 up.

Three down after 12 holes, Lex Sutcliffe of Gorge had to rally for a half with junior Carl Schwantje.

VICTORIA 1½ at GORGE VALE 7½

Doug Munro lost to Cec Ferguson, 4 and 3; Jay Wilson lost to Dave Mick, 2 and 1; Gorge Vale won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Dick Flanagan lost to Laurie Carroll, 3 and 2; Carl Schwantje halved with Lex Sutcliffe; Gorge Vale won four-ball, 2-up.

Bill McColl defeated Al MacLeod, 1-up; Barry Flavelle lost to Noel Pumfrey, 2 and 1; Gorge Vale won four-ball, 1-up.

UPLANDS 1 at ROYAL COLWOOD 8

Don Billsborough lost to Earl Davies, 1-up; Frank Scroggs lost to Rick Kent, 4 and 2; Colwood won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Bob Hunt defeated Max Buckley, 1-up; David McCall lost to Laurie Kerr, 3 and 2; Colwood won four-ball, 1-up.

Roger Bishop lost to Vic Painter, 3 and 2; Ken Knott lost to John Morgan, 5 and 4; Colwood won four-ball, 5 and 4. 1-up; Frank Ccroggs lost to Rick Kent.

Olympics' Invincibility Shattered

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's beginning to look as if Detroit Olympics may not be the powerhouse of the National Lacrosse Association after all.

The Olympics took an early lead in the Eastern Division standings and just a few days ago appeared invincible.

Wednesday night, however, they lost their second game in as many nights and the other three teams in the division have regained some hope.

Toronto Maple Leafs, led by Graeme Gair's four goals, defeated Detroit 15-10 Wednesday in front of 4,751 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens. Toronto also defeated Detroit 21-20 Tuesday night in Detroit.

Ron MacNeil and Jack Madgett scored three goals each for the Maple Leafs. John Roberts netted two.

Blues Beckon, Plante Willing To Come Back

MONTREAL (CP)—Jacques Plante, one-time netminding great with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, appears well on his way to a comeback with St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League next season.

But another well-known goaltender, Terry Sawchuk, must be wondering where his future lies after Los Angeles Kings failed to protect the all-time NHL shutout leader in Wednesday's intra-league draft and none of the other 11 teams picked him up.

The NHL winds up its four-day annual meeting today in a flurry of minor drafts and the announcement of the initial winner of the Bill Masterton Trophy.

The trophy is in memory of the North Stars' player who died of a head injury received in a game last season against Oakland Seals in Minneapolis.

Plante, 39, originator of a mask for goaltenders, indicated Wednesday night his willingness to report to St. Louis.

He said he has heard from other former Montreal players now with the Blues that St. Louis "is a good club to work for."

"I'll report to training camp in September."

Plante has been inactive for the last three seasons with the exception of performing with the Montreal Oldtimers.

Wings Show Interest in Sawchuk

Meanwhile, Detroit Red Wings general manager Sid Abel expressed an interest in Sawchuk, 38, who previously played twice for Detroit—from 1950 to 1955 and from 1957 to 1964.

Before going to Los Angeles in last June's expansion draft, Sawchuk played with Toronto Maple Leafs. The remainder of his career was spent with Boston Bruins.

He makes his off-season home in Detroit.

"I certainly intend to talk to Los Angeles," Abel said Wednesday night. "I understand Toronto is interested, too. Of course, his market value now is not as high as it was before he went through the draft. Then, remember, he has a hefty contract."

Sawchuk is reported to be earning between $30,000 and $40,000 annually at Los Angeles.

The Kings protected goalkeepers Wayne Rutledge, a holdover from last year, and Gerry Desjardins, picked up Tuesday in a deal with Montreal.

In grabbing Plante, St. Louis let Seth Martin go. Martin is expected to retire, leaving the Blues with only veteran Glenn Hall from last year's strong netminding contingent.

Also at Wednesday's session, the NHL's board of governors agreed to a new formula for the league's annual all-star game Jan. 21 at Montreal, featuring an Eastern Division team against one from the new Western Division.

All-stars on winning teams will be paid $500 each while losers get $250 each, it was decided. Players must actually take part in the game to collect the money.

Other key claims in the intra-league draft action resulted in Carol Vadnais going to Oakland Seals from Montreal, Brian Conacher moving to Detroit from Toronto and Charlie Burns going to Pittsburgh Penguins from Oakland.

Leafs' Brass Burns

MONTREAL (CP) — There was dissension in the ranks of Toronto Maple Leafs' brain trust just before the National Hockey League's annual intra-league draft got under way Wednesday.

An argument occurred shortly after Joe Crozier, general manager and coach of Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, learned that the NHL board of governors had passed a resolution early Wednesday concerning player transfer.

The resolution came from Leafs president Stafford Smythe. Leafs have a working agreement with the Americans which terminates this year.

PLANS ALTERED

The rule change so upset Toronto general manager Punch Imlach and Crozier that both stepped away from their positions at the draft table to cool off.

The Smythe motion, carried unanimously by the board, said: "Any player who, during the restricted period, would have been available for claim in the reverse draft, shall be available in the reverse draft notwithstanding any other intervening transaction unless he is included on the protected lists for the purposes of the reverse draft."

The intent of the reverse draft is that the two minor leagues—the AHL and the Western Hockey League—draft from the NHL rather than from teams within their own leagues.

COOL-OFF PERIOD

Leafs have three Rochester players on their list so they could not be claimed in Tuesday's inter-league draft, in which the NHL teams draft from the minor league clubs.

The Toronto club intended to transfer some of these players back to the Rochester list before today's reverse draft so that Rochester's opponents could not draft them for the going price of $15,000 each. Smythe's resolution now prevents this.

Homers Support Jackson

Barry Jackson and Luckies' home run power proved "stronger than strong" for Nelson Cleaners.

The combination powered Luckies to an easy 7-0 victory over Nelsons in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League play at Heywood Avenue Park Wednesday.

Jackson blanked Nelsons on two hits, both blows coming in the final frame. Bob Cox and Don Tidman proved the no-hit spoilers with the seven-inning singles.

Rick Blake and Joey Patterson supplied the offensive power. Blake clouted two home runs to drive in five runs while Patterson connected for a solo blast.

Bigelow Sticking to Seniors' Timetable

By DOUG PEDEN

George Bigelow was operating right on schedule this morning as he teed off in the second round of the fourth annual senior championship of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association.

Before the 54-hole tournament for over-55 divoters started at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, Victoria's fairway physician predicted that "three 75s should be enought to win this tournament on this course."

Bigelow, the 1967 Canada and B.C. seniors' king, methodially marched over the 6,507-yard layout in the opening round Thursday to match that 75 figure and share first place with Seattle's Warren Dawson.

And George didn't sound unhappy when reminded he had missed a couple of short putts on the back nine.

"Yes, but I made a couple of good ones, too," he commented. "I was very happy with a 75 and hope I'm lucky enough to have two more."

However, finishing with a 225 total will be no guarantee of success because several of the more than 80 fairway veterans in the field are capable of punishing par.

One of them is Dawson, the Sound City swinger who won the crown in 1965.

Another is George Beechler, the age-defying slicker from Prineville, Ore., who started this trourney as the favorite to grab his third successive title.

Twice runner-up for the U.S. national seniors' championship, member of the winning team in the senior world tourney last year and currently playing to a handicap of one, Beechler was pushing his tee shots Thursday instead of swatting them with his normal hook.

Fine iron shots helped bail him out of trouble and he came in with a 76 to tie Olympia's Max Hunter for third place, only one stroke off the pace and one shot ahead of George Cadwell of Seattle.

Final round in the tourney will be played Friday at Colwood with most of the first-day leaders scheduled to start between 9 and 9:45 a.m.

Portlander George Wiese chalked up a 78 to finish even with Seattle's Kermit Rosen, who had one of the day's most interesting rounds.

Out in 37 and appearing the probable first-day leader after collecting one of his three birdies on the 15th, Rosen hit disaster on the 17th, taking a five-over-par nine that dropped him out of the running for the opening-round lead but certainly not out of title contention.

Grouped at 79 were Steve Dunford, Salt Lake; Millard Rosenblatt, Portland, and Elmer Button, Port Angeles.

Five strokes off the lead at 80 were Ronald Kershaw, Yakima; Robert Bird, Salt Lake; George Skarich, Seattle, and Dave Coons, Vancouver, Wash.

Hot Cards Cooled By Atlantic Hurler

By Associated Press

Pat Jarvis dazzled St. Louis Cardinals with speed to end a long-standing hex on Atlanta Braves.

Jarvis, Atlanta's hard-throwing right-hander, hurled a three-hitter Wednesday night as the Braves drubbed the National League leaders 7-1.

New York Mets, blanked by Don Drysdale for eight innings, caught up with the Los Angeles shutout king in the ninth and nipped the Dodgers 2-1.

San Francisco Giants trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and Chicago Cubs downed Cincinnati Reds 4-1 in afternoon action. Houston was rained out at Philadelphia.

Jarvis (6-4) held St. Louis hitless until the fifth inning and drove in the only two runs he needed with a pair of singles as Atlanta cooled off the sizzling Cardinals with a 13-hit attack.

The Cards had won 13 of their previous 15 starts and had beaten the Braves 10 times in a row, sweeping their first six meetings this season.

HITS DEFEAT CARDS

Hank Aaron clubbed a two-run homer, Tito Francona laced a bases-empty homer and two singles and Marty Martinez socked two doubles and a triple in the Braves' assault against loser Nelson Briles and three St. Louis relievers.

Drysdale, who set an all-time record of 58 2-3 scoreless innings in succession last Saturday night before Pittsburgh clipped him for a run, went into the ninth inning against the Mets with a five-hitter and a 1-0 lead.

But with one out Art Shamsky singled off the glove of second baseman Paul Popovich and J. C. Martin followed with a double to left centre, scoring pinch runner Dick Selma with the tying run and driving Drysdale from the mound.

Jerry Groge then greeted reliever Jack Billingham with a run-scoring single, giving the Mets their third victory in a row over the Dodgers at Los Angeles.

DRYSDALE SLIPS

Drysdale, who had appeared headed for his eighth straight triumph and eighth shutout of the year, slipped to 8-4. Al Jackson picked up the victory in relief of rookie Nolan Ryan, who wild pitched the Dodgers' run home in the fourth and left for a pinch hitter in the eighth after yielding six hits.

Hal Lanier scored the tie-breaking run at San Francisco as second baseman Bill Mazeroski booted Dave Marshall's two-out grounder in the seventh inning. Jim Hart's 12th homer gave the Giants an insurance run in the eighth.

Mazeroski's error pinned the loss on Jim Bunning (3-8) while Bob Bolin, making only his second start of the season, posted his first victory with late help from reliever Frank Linzy.

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., pitched a five-hitter and Ron Santo delivered two runs with a double and his 10th homer, leading the Cubs past Cincinnati.

Only two games were played in the American circuit as rain washed out three other scheduled games. John Odom hurled a seven-hitter and smacked a home run as Oakland Athletics blanked Cleveland Indians 7-0 and Detroit Tigers edged Minnesota Twins 2-1.

The victory boosted Tigers five games ahead of second-place Baltimore Orioles, one of the clubs idled Wednesday.

Defenders Upset By Skillings, Hill

Roger Skillings and Nancy Hill gained final berths of mixed doubles competition at the Victoria Racquet Club's annual tennis tournament during play Wednesday.

Combining well, they upset defending champions Ted Smythe and Sally Wood 6-4, 8-6, and meet John Fraser and Theo Booker in the final Saturday.

In the Oak Bay Club tournament, results stayed true to form Wednesday as Felicity Graham and Faith Graham advanced to the women's doubles final with a 6-1, 7-5 win over Ivy Hill and Janet Kenny.

Barry's Standbys Doing Their Duty

It may be embarassing to playing-manager Barry Cosier to know that he isn't being missed.

He's on the injured list but his replacements on the Independents' roster are filling in quite nicely, as was the case Wednesday when the Senior Amateur Baseball League squad clipped Orphans 2-1 at Layritz Park.

Acting as manager for the injured Cosier, John Martin took a walk to lead off the bottom of the first inning.

Ken Hawkins, taking over at shortstop for Cosier, promptly followed with a home run to give Independents all the runs they needed

Tom Sallaway pitched a five-hitter, striking out 10 batters and walking only three, for his fourth win in five starts.

Studies First, Promises Later

MONTREAL (CP)—The city did not commit itself to building a covered stadium for a future National League baseball club, says Lucien Saulnier, Montreal's executive committee chairman.

Gerry Snyder, vice-chairman of the executive committee, took the city's case to a Chicago meeting of the National League and was reported at the time to have promised a domed stadium for the club.

"The city made no commitment regarding the stadium project and cannot make one until certain economic feasibility studies are completed," Saulnier said in an interview Wednesday.

He said that the idea of a major league baseball team was good and that he was not implying any city administration opposition to the domed stadium project.

HE WASN'T THERE

Asked whether commitments of any kind had been made by the city's representatives in Chicago, he said that he did not know—"I wasn't in Chicago."

Snyder said after the Chicago National League meeting that the franchise plans called for the new team to play at Expo 67's Autostade, a 25,000-seat oval built for the world exhibition last year.

The city would add 12,500 seats for the first two years of operation.

Snyder said then that the city would buid a 55,000-seat domed stadium in Montreal's east end. Preliminary estimates placed the cost of the stadium at $35,000,000.

In Cincinnati, National League president Warren Giles said, "It was our understanding that they would build a domed stadium. But I wanted to talk to both Snyder and Saulnier before commenting officially."

Earlier Snyder disclosed that he had been "eased out" of the picture by the financial backers of the new Montreal baseball club.

He said that he no longer had anything to do with the operation of the proposed club, adding that the city reserved the right to approve or reject financial backers of the plan.

Snyder said that further estimates could increase the cost of building the domed stadium to $45,000,000 or more and that "a lot could happen before Mayor Jean Drapeau asked city council to approve such an outlay."

LAST CALL FOR TENNIS CLASSES . . .

Friday is the last chance boys and girls between the ages of 10 to 18 to register for the City of Victoria-sponsored tennis instruction program at Beacon Hill Park courts.

Registrations must be made at the Parks Department in City Hall.

Lessons start on Wednesday, July 3, and continue on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays all summer.

CONSENTINO IN FOLD

EDMONTON (CP) — Quarterback Frank Consentino, tackle Tim Lavens and halfback Ian McLeod have signed 1968 Western Football Conference contracts with Edmonton Eskimos.

Boxer on Critical List

From Reuters-AP

COLOGNE (CP) — West German boxer Jupp Elze, who gave up in the final round of a challenge against European middleweight champion Carlos Duran of Italy here Wednesday night, was in a serious condition today after an operation.

Elze, 29, was reported to have suffered a circulatory disturbance after the fight, which his fans said was one of the best of his career.

He was given oxygen as he was carried from the ring and taken to Cologne University Hospital. Details of the operation were not immediately known.

Duran floored Elze with a right hook to the chin halfway through the 15th round. Elze just managed to beat the count but immediately raised his right arm in surrender.

Elze failed in a previous attempt to win the European middleweight title when he was beaten by Italian Nino Benvenuti in Berlin in May, 1966.

"His life is in danger," said a doctor at the hospital where Elze was taken.

KOWALIK SCORES AGAIN . . . . . . OAKLAND WINS

Small One Kicks Hard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Kowalik is determined to be a soccer star despite his size.

The five-foot-seven, 145-pound Kowalik, star of Chicago Mustangs, is one of the leading scorers in the North American Soccer League.

The 23-year-old forward tallied his 13th goal of the season Wednesday night and helped the Mustangs defeat Baltimore Bays 2-0. Dan Stojovic got the other Chicago goal.

The victory extended Chicago's unbeaten streak to nine games and boosted the Mustangs past Cleveland into first place in the Lakes Division.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles Wolves blanked Houston Stars 2-0 on goals by George Benitez and Ed Reeve, Oakland Clippers blanked St. Louis Stars 1-0 and Toronto Falcons blanked San Diego Toros 3-0.

Milan Cop's penalty kick with 45 seconds to go enabled Oakland to edge St. Louis.

After the goal, Mario Baesso of Oakland butted Carl Gentile of St. Louis in the mouth, and a brawl erupted. Officials and players from both benches finally separated the combatants.

Toronto scored all its goals in the second half, two by Iris Debrito, giving him four in his last five games.

LADIES' GOLF

Gorge Pair Paces Field

Two Gorge Vale swingers set the pace at Uplands Golf Club this week in a women's competition for players with handicaps of 15 or under. Dorothy De Girolamo fired a 78 for low-gross honors and Elsie Saunders was the low-net winner.

Also at Uplands, the host club took the lead in team competition for the Dowell Cup with a win over Colwood in the first half of the annual series.

Lorna Rooper was the "A" division winner in a "throw out" event at Uplands with Dot Craven, Mavis Young and Marion Dodds sharing "B" section laurels and Ann Dark topping the "C" division.

In a par competion at Victoria Golf Club, Renee Robbins (2 up) was the "A" division leader and Aileen Wintemute (1 up) won the "B" section.

LIONS SIGN FOUR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four players who joined B.C. Lions midway last season have signed for the 1968 Western Football Conference season. They are George Flint, John McDowell, Rick Koeper and George Brajcich.

Okanagan Water Board Planned

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new provincial government policy to form an Okanagan Basin water board enveloping three regional districts was announced Wednesday by Water Resources Minister Ray Williston.

He said the policy will first apply to the Okanagan where a representative group will evaluate all priorities of water use, but it would have "a definite purpose in other areas."

The minister termed the development "a most progressive step forward and as far as we know the first such policy in Canada—if not in North America."

"Right now many groups — such as the water rights branch, pollution control board, fish and wildlife, the health branch, the departments of agriculture and municipal affairs—all have a say in water policies.

"You can't isolate one water use, and our idea is to have a completely co-ordinated approach to water uses."

He said members of the board will include representatives of the three Okanagan regional districts and government agencies.

Powers of the board have not been defined but "it will be able to suggest policies and even legislation," Mr. Williston said.

"he only voice we have had up to now when different government agencies announce their separate policies for water uses, is one of objection," said Penticton Mayor Doug Stuart, chairman of the Okanagan Watershed Pollution Control Council

"Now it is hoped that everyone will have a say, a policy worked out and a suggestion made to the government."

Driver to Get Prize 60 Years After Race

SPRINGSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Flat tires and temperamental engines were a way of life in 1908 when George Schuster chugged 13,000 miles across the United States, Siberia and Europe to win the New York-to-Paris automobile race.

Schuster drove his 1907 Thomas Flyer across the finish line at Paris in first place for a promised prize of $1,000 and an American flag, but all he ever got was the flag. His sponsors never came up with the $1,000.

The New York Times said Tuesday that Schuster, now 95 and nearly blind, will get his $1,000 June 18 in Buffalo during the New York-to-San Francisco antique car race to be held June 16 to July 13.

The Times said it will give the elderly Springville resident the $1,000 because one of its reporters travelled with Schuster on the trans-America portion of the 1908 race.

VINTAGE CARS

This summer, 45 vintage cars, none made after 1914, will wheeze their way across the country in a race co-sponsored by The Times and the Veteran Motor Car Club of America.

Schuster's 1907 Thomas Flyer will be exhibited at stops along the way.

He was a car mechanic for the Thomas Automobile Co. in Buffalo until it closed in 1913.

QUEBEC TROUBLE

Shipyard Guards Block Press Men

QUEBEC (CP) — Outsiders including politicians and reporters Wednesday were refused access to the George T. Davie Co. shipyards in nearby Lauzon where 33 workers have been camping in tents since last week to protest the closing down of the shipyards.

Richard Milhomme, chairman of an emergency committee set up by the shipyard workers' union to look after the campers' welfare, said in an interview it was not impossible to get on the site.

The workers set up tents before the shipyards closed down Saturday, protesting that 1,000 men would lose their jobs because the Canadian Vickers Co. Ltd. had decide to sell the George T. Davie Co. an discontinue its Lauzon operations.

"One camper's wife was ordered off the site by harbor police," Mr. Milhomme said, "and a CBC reporter had to conduct an interview across a fence because he was refused permission to enter the grounds."

Two candidates in the June 25 federal election—Raymond Gay, Liberal candidate in Levis and Paul Emile Dube, his Progressive Conservative opponent — were refuse access to the camping grounds.

Meanwhile, Lauzon Mayor Robert Guay told the town council earlier that the provincial and federal governments should stop "playing ping-pong on the workers' backs" and try new ways of finding jobs for the former employees of George T. Davie.

"It its' true that 23 or 24 new industries are supposed to come to the province, as the provincial government has said, two or three of these should be sent to Lauzon."

NATIVE of Victoria, William N. English, 52, has been named to the B.C. Research Council. He is leaving his post as director-general of the Armament Research and Development Establishment at Valcartier, Que.

PLANES 'TOUCH' IN FLIGHT

DENVER (UPI) — A United Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner with 63 persons aboard and a twin-engine propeller-driven plane brushed against each other in flight Wednesday about 15 miles north of downtown Denver. Both planes landed safely.

There were no injuries and damage was minimal from the contact which occurred at about 9,000 feet.

Airport officials said the Cessna 337, owned by Denver radio station KIMN and flown by news director Don Martin to report traffic, received "a crinkled wing tip."

The airliner was damaged on its right wing near the flap.

ALABAMA ACCUSED

Negro Discrimination Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department charged eight state agencies of Alabama Wednesday with discriminating against Negroes in the employment of people involved in activities partially supported by federal funds.

Attorney-General Ramsey Clark said the civil complaint was filed in the United States District Court in Montgomery, Ala., and was the first suit by the federal government accusing state agencies of job discrimination.

The defendants include the Alabama departments of industrial relations, pensions and security, public health, education, mental health and civil defence, also the state personnel department and personnel board.

The justice department suit charged that "white persons are regularly appointed to jobs in these departments ahead of Negroes with higher eligibility ratings, and that of some 3,071 full time employees of the agencies only about 87 are Negroes.

The suit alleged that the personnel department and personnel board of Alabama have refused to adopt regulations required by the federal government in 1963 to ban job discrimination on the basis of race and have not provided procedures for appealing cases of alleged discrimination.

Alabama, the justice department said, is the only state that has refused to adopt such regulations.

SENIOR COUNSELLORS FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Isobel Dawson, provincial cabinet minister without portfolio, said the province plans to appoint senior citizen counsellors to help fellow senior citizens solve problems on a local basis. Mrs. Dawson said 25 to 30 persons will be appointed in Vancouver, and eventually there will be representatives covering all parts of British Columbia.

B.C. Socred Ship Sinking Says NDP

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan returned to Victoria Wednesday after a two and a half week trailer tour of northern B.C. and reported "the Social Credit ship is sinking."

"Nobody in his right mind would climb on to a sinking ship," he said in predicting victory for the New Democratic Party in Revelstoke-Slocan July 15 byelection.

Mr. Strachan said his tour helped confirm that B.C. residents are looking to the NDP rather than the Liberals as the party to support if defeat of the Social Credit government is to be achieved.

Asked about NDP chances in Oak Bay and North Vancouver Capilano byelections, he replied that "no seat is safe when winds of political chance are sweeping the province."

The provincial leader said his tour did nothing to change an earlier prediction that NDP federal representation from B.C. would jump as much as six seats to a total of 15 in the June 25 election.

One Charge Dropped Against Jim Brown

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Authorities have dropped an assault case against former pro football star Jimmy Brown in connection with a high-fashion model found injured beneath his second-floor balcony. But he still may face a charge of battery against a police officer.

Deputy District Attorney Phillips Mueller said, "There was not sufficient evidence to convict. This is aside from the fact that the woman would not sign the complaint."

Roger Skillings Wins Top Honor

Roger Skillings won Victoria High School's top award, the Leader Cup, in presentations at the school Wednesday.

The son of Trade and Industry Minister Waldo Skillings, 1721 Rockland, Roger received the award from vice-president R. H. Reid for student leadership and academic and athletic proficiency.

Roger was prime minister of Vic High's student parliament.

Lily Low, 18, 2519 Government, received three academic awards in history, French and German and an activity award for her work on the student newspaper and annual.

Pat Bourne, 18, 2717 Roseberry, won the Tiger trophy for girls basketball and the Alpha award for outstanding girl athlete, which was presented complete with a kiss on the cheek by Archie McKinnon.

INQUIRY MADE ON RHODESIA

WASHINGTON — Last Dec. 30, the man accused of killing Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. wrote the American South African Council here seeking information on how he might emigrate to the white minority-ruled country of Rhodesia, it was learned Wednesday.

But it appeared that the idea was no more than that since Rhodesian authorities here and in the capital of Salisbury said there were no records of any direct contacts from the man who made the inquiry, Eric Starvo Galt.

Anderson Assails Tories For Policy Contradictions

The repeated Liberal charge that Conservatives are contradicting each other in policy speeches was given new emphasis by Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate David Anderson Wednesday.

He told an all-candidates meeting at Victoria Silver Threads headquarters that Conservative candidates profess a local interest in boosting old age pensions.

Then he quoted from a letter mailed May 1, soliciting Tory campaign funds from Victoria and district doctors.

Signed by Oak Bay provincial Social Credit byelection candidate G. Peter Pollen, it lists increased old age assistance among other welfare legislation passed by the Liberals in recent years.

The letter complains and Mr. Anderson quoted:

"Amidst all this legislation, this debasing of our dollar, this stifling of the individual, this overwhelming obsession for the distribution of the wealth of the country, there has not been a single piece of legislation to encourage individual enterprise or productivity."

"Has an increase in pensions of from $65 to $105 stifled your initiative?" Mr. Anderson asked the mainly elderly audience of 300 persons. Would medicare stifle it further?

Mr. Anderson said the Conservatives must be either for or against welfare measures.

PROMISES VARY

He said different promises also are being made in different parts of Canada by Conservatives on the issue of national unity, a well-worn theme which has been regularly denied by Tory speakers.

Victoria Liberal candidate David Groos followed his established pattern of boosting Liberalism rather than attacking Conservatism.

He called Prime Minister, Trudeau the Sir Wilfrid Laurier of his age — "Under his leadership we can look forward to the kind of society in which we will all have our place in the sun."

Mr. Groos said the Canada Council should be giving more financial support to the Bastion Theatre and other "worthwhile" Victoria projects.

Questioned on pensions, he replied:

"Senior citizens know money doesn't grow on trees. The government is asked to cut taxes and at the same time give away more money. They know that is nonsense."

ADJUST PENSIONS

At the same time, Mr. Groos said he hoped the Liberal government, when re-elected, would make more needed adjustments in pensions.

Don Johannessen, NDP candiate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said the government can and should provide sufficient income to support an adequate standard of physical and social well-being for all its people.

"This is based on a principle of social justice now generally accepted in all advanced countries."

Mr. Johannessen said the people should be able to retire and still maintain their accustomed standard of living.

Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman said senior citizens have been "robbed" over the past few years. "The cost of living is rising at an uncontrollable rate. Inflation is rampant. Government expenditure is out of hand. Yet many of our pensioners' cheques have never increased.

"I believe pensions should be pegged to the cost of living."

In the last five years, Mr. Charman said employment in local shipyards has dwindled from 2500 to 500.

"Our Conservative policy is that ships for the west coast should be built on the west coast."

Questioned on the French problem, Mr. Charman said Conservative Leader Stanfield had said he would give no special status to any province.

"In the past, the Liberal government has made too many concessions to Quebec," Mr. Charman said.

Dr. Harvey Richardson, NDP candidate for Victoria, said many countries which have far less natural resources than Canada have provided beautifully-designed housing and training in arts an crafts for their senior citizens.

"In Victoria, we have a pool of experience and skill. But our economy is such that people nearing retirement age are thrust aside when they should be part of our productive economy."

Questioned on medicare, Dr. Richardson said that in Saskatchewan less than 5½ per cent of medicare funds are used for administrative costs.

"They are an example to the whole country. What we need is economic planning. At the present time, more capital funds are going out of this country than are coming in."

George Chatterton, Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate, said the huge debts incurred by the last government will have to be paid "by our children and grandchildren."

"No wonder our young people are distrubed and full of unrest."

Under the present economy, Mr. Chatterton said, no one can buy a home unless they earn $8,000 a year.

"This is a discouraging situation which must be remedied. Let us start thinking in terms of future generations."

Trial Ordered On Fraud Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edward David (Ted) Duncan, 34, former British Columbia Lions football player, was committed Wednesday for trial on charges he defrauded Prosper Oils and Mines Ltd. of $217,000.

The crown alleges he unlawfully pledged company funds for loans. He is also charged with theft of securities.

Duncan, a Calgary lawyer, had bail continued at $7,500 by Magistrate James Bartman.

The case of Vancouver lawyer Frederic C. Foy, 42, jointly charged with Duncan, was adjourned to June 17.

Deauville Investments, a company in which the two accused are shareholders, owes the Royal Bank of Canada $217,000, Arthur Dauphinee, credit officer at the bank's Vancouver branch told the preliminary hearing in Vancouver magistrate's court Wednesday.

Colombia Politics In Turmoil

BOGOTA (AP) — The Colombian Senate refused Wednesday to accept the resignation of President Carlos Lleras Restrepo.

By a vote of 74 to 31, the Senate expressed its confidence in Lleras, but the deepest political crisis in Colombia in 10 years continued.

Lleras made clear Tuesday night that he will leave office unless rejection of his resignation is followed by congressional approval of his political reforms.

Rebel Liberal senators, responsible for the defeat Friday of a constitutional amendment submitted by the president, declared their support of Lleras but announced that they will maintain their refusal to approve the amendment.

An earlier announcement that Lleras would resign set off anti-government riots at the University of Bogota Tuesday night and clashes in the city between supporters of Lleras and of former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla.

Tommy-Gun Tyranny Denounced

OTTAWA (CP) — "Nothing in the world is worse than the tyranny of the tommy-gun," Lord Caradon, British ambassador to the United Nations, said here Tuesday.

He told the Canadian Club that tens of thousands of people have been killed and the "evil of violence" set off in Nigeria because a few soldiers with tommy-guns murdered the prime minister in 1966.

"We can at least join together in a fierce hatred of violence," he said.

Facing each other across the Zambesi River were the forces of African nationalism to the north, and the forces of white supremacy to the south.

If there were armed conflict between them, the world's "greatest danger" would arise; all the discontented, overcrowded and hungry Africans and Asians ranged against the affluent, complacent and comfortable people of the white nations.

"We of the affluent nations may be so much obsessed with our own selfish concerns and our own comforts that we shall fail to see the danger in time," he said.

Lord Caradon said there is nothing wrong with the United Nations — "except the members of it, and they are improving."

The UN's failures were not due to the small nations but to the great powers "which strengthen the UN when it suits them and hamstring it when it doesn't."

The UN lived with frustration and failure.

"We're in the trouble business," he said. Blaming the UN for the world's ills was like saying "there is sickness in a hospital or that a woman in labor is in pain."

BOAC PILOTS VOTE STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters) — More than 1,000 pilots of the British Overseas Airways Corporation have voted to strike Sunday.

Their decision Wednesday, subject only to the approval of the union's executive, would ground all BOAC aircraft.

The pilots, members of the British Airline Pilots Association, claim there has been no progress on wages in 15 months of negotiation. They earn a maximum of £5,800 ($15,080) a year and in some categories want 100-per-cent increases.

HANDCUFFS COMPLICATE ESCAPE

Guard, Convict Flee Together

MONTREAL (CP) — Police set up roadblocks Wednesday night in the search for Paul Mikulus, 26, a convicted armed bandit who got loose from two penitentiary guards in a bizarre escape that involved the kidnapping of one of the guards Wednesday.

The escape occurred when Mikulus was being taken to hospital by car for treatment of two fingers he had nearly severed while working at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary.

Gilbert Houle, a guard handcuffed to Mikulus, was dragged away in the escape provoked by an armed, masked gunman who fired one shot at the penitentiary car at Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital.

The gunman had jumped out from behind a shack on the grounds.

Houle, 26, was eventually freed unharmed, but not before being forced to accompany the two other men who flagged a taxi, drove about 15 blocks and bought a saw to cut off the handcuffs.

J. P. Belanger, the other guard, did not use his gun for fear of injuring Houle.

A penitentiary spokesman said that Houle and the two others ran about 1,000 feet across the hospital grounds, always with the masked man behind the handcuffed pair.

Houle said he did not see the gunman's face because he was told as they ran across the hospital ground: "Don't turn around or else."

The warning was repeated when they got into the taxi, Houle and Mikulus sitting in the front and the then unmasked third man in the back seat with his gun trained on Houle.

The penitentiary spokesman said the taxi driver was unaware of the gun or else was an accomplice.

After the drive and purchase of the saw, the trio went to an apartment building where the handcuffs were cut. The two men left and Houle called the penitentiary from an apartment. He still had not seen the gunman's face.

The penitentiary spokesman, without revealing a name, said Mikulus' best friend in prison was released a week ago.

MACHINE CUTS FINGERS

Mikulus, serving 18 years for a 1966 conviction of armed robbery and escape from a provincial jail in Quebec City, cut the two fingers through the bone while operating a sheet metal machine at St. Vincent de Paul.

The spokesman said the injury was believed deliberate, and he added:

"Mikulus can't go very far without medical attention because of the amount of blood he must be losing.

"However, we can't take any chances because Mikulus will kill us if he has to."

Mikulus, a native of Montreal, is five feet five inches tall and weighs about 125 pounds.

POLL SAYS HUMPHREY CAN BEAT REPUBLICANS

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI)—A new Gallup Poll released Wednesday indicates American voters favor Vice-President Hubert Humphrey for president over either of his two main Republican rivals, former vice-president Richard Nixon or Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

The poll also showed former Alabama Governor George Wallace, running as a third party candidate on the American independent ticket, gathering between 14 per cent and 17 per cent of the vote.

The poll gave Humphrey 42 per cent of the voters surveyed against 36 per cent for Nixon and 14 per cent for Wallace.

It gave the vice-president 39 per cent to 36 per cent for Rockefeller, with Wallace gaining 17 per cent.

'THE HUMAN AFFAIR'

Siebner Exhibition Opens

"The Human Affair," a one-man art exhibit by Victoria artist Herbert Siebner opened Wednesday night at The Print Gallery, Oak Bay

Siebner came to Canada in 1954 from Germany where he held one-man shows in Berlin. Other one-man exhibits of his were shown at Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, Eugene and Los Angeles.

His works have been included at the international exposition in Lugano, Switzerland and Yugoslavia, the Canadian biennale and the Seattle world's fair exhibition.

He received a Canada council senior grant for one year in Europe and has taught at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, the University of Washington and the University of B.C.

He is a member of the Canadian group of painters and the B.C. society of artists with works represented in museum and private collections in Europe, Canada and the United States.

Mr. Siebner has worked in most of the media accessible to the contemporary artists, in two dimensions and in three. The continuing theme of his work is man and woman in all their aspects and relationships.

The Print Gallery is at 1509 Wilmot Place. The show runs until June 30.

Bids Deferred On Additions To High School

DUNCAN — The education department has deferred indefinitely calling of tenders for $195,000 of additions to Cowichan senior seconary school.

The work was to include two science rooms, a home economics room, library, administration offices and a cafeteria.

Trustee David Evans said his building committee tried to interest the department in partial completion of the work but was refused.

The department has also rejected the board's application to proceed immediately with building a central library for such visual aid materials as films and tapes.

EXPERT ADVICE

Exhibition Features Know-How

Members of the Victoria Horticultural Society will live up to their motto Friday and Saturday — show what you grow . . . share what you know.

Their annual summer show at the Victoria Curling Rink, one of the largest exhibitions of flowers and vegetables, will feature the results of a season's work.

Gardeners will be on hand to pass on their know-how to visitors or to share information on horticultural techniques.

Hilda Beastall, Times garden columnist, will also give a demonstration at 2 and 7 p.m. Saturday on the care of house plants.

The show is open Friday, 2 p.m. to 10 and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

For visitors there will be plenty to see — some of the latest rose varieties, pyrethums, antirrhinum, Sweet William, Oriental poppies, Shasts daisies, iris, lupins, dianthus and other familiar garden blooms.

FINE COLLECTIONS

For those more interested in the basic things of life there will be some fine collections of garden vegetables.

The artistic arrangement class — always a feature of the show — promises to be interesting. Its theme is "home beautiful" and its success will depend on the imaginative and artistic skills of exhibitors.

It won't be easy. Exhibitors will enter floral arrangements depicting such scenes as a buffet supper, a stag party and a barbecue and a June wedding.

Prizes will be awarded for entries in the various classes, but the major award sought by exhibitors is the Naysmith trophy. It goes to the person who chalks up the most points in all sections.

Another major award is the R. S. Bevan Memorial Trophy awarded to the exhibitor for the highest aggregate in the vegetable division.

At the end of the show flowers and vegetables will be auctioned. Proceeds go towards the exhibition fund.

England's Alan Paine has a remarkable reputation!

Come and try on one of his sweaters. You'll understand why Alan Paine is known as the "Modern" British manufacturer of men's sweaters. Paine dares to be different . . . without being brash. Uses luxurious cashmere, lambswool, and Shetland to venture a little farther into fully fashioned style and clean, clear colours. Of course, quality's what makes a good name stick. Paine's made it! And it shows throughout the comfortably long, good looking life of every Alan Paine sweater we feature. Still, we've been able to keep the prices sensible. So, go ahead! Decide on one of these styles. You deserve it!

TRIAL ADJOURNED

Police Set Trap Woman Assists

"A woman who said: "I don't like anyone who uses marijuana" Wednesday testified she arranged a police trap of a marijuana trafficking suspect.

Joan Livesey, 21, was testifying at the trial of Paul Durrel, arrested May 3 and charged with trafficking in marijuana.

Mrs. Livesey said she met the accused May 1 and asked if he knew where there was any marijuana.

"He said 'yes, four lits came in from Vancouver.'

"Someone else asked for one, but I said I asked first and could I have one. He replied 'Yes, it will cost you $15.' "

She told the court the accused later came to where she worked and said the cost would $20.

Mrs. Livesey said she then informed Const. Gerald O'Neil of the RCMP and obtained $20 from him.

The $20 was later given to Durrell, she said, and she arranged to meet him at a Fisgard cafe to receive the drug.

She testified she told the police of the meeting and waited in the cafe. A car drove up and the police approached it. One of the occupants got out and was approached by Const. O'Neil.

"I saw a man run down the street, but I can't positively identify him as Paul (Durrell)."

Const. O'Neil testified he chased a man he recognized as a person who had been pointed out to him as Durrell.

He said the man stopped between two cars as he ran. Const. O'Neil looked between the cars and found an envelope containing a plastic bag of green plant-like material.

The trial was adjourned to June 24 after defence counsel moved to dismiss the charge for technical reasons.

Repeated Calms Slow Down Race

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Wednesday night sail boat racing in Cadboro Bay was characterized by alternating light winds and flat calms. The breeze filled in from almost every direction at some time during the evening.

After they had beat up to Mary Todd, at least half the fleet was becalmed, and then found themselves again beating to the Jemmy Jones mark, (which is usually approached off the wind).

The Thunderbirds were the only class to complete the first round under an hour and continue on to a second lap around the course.

Course for All Classes—Start line to Mary Tod Flag, Jemmy Jones Flag and Flower Island Flag (Evans Island).

Results:

California 20 (14 boats) — 1, Selene, Norman Marcus; 2, Ookpik, Judy Peetz; 3, Windless, Mike Fraser; 4, Galenaia, George Dufour.

Cubs (7 boats) — 1, Piranha, Dunc Coles; 2, Sugar, Jack Woodward; 3, Foxy, Peter Townshend.

Cruising Classes (6 boats)—1, Upepo, Peter White.

Fireballs (9 boats)—1, Adrian Harrison; 2, Bruce Kenning; 3, Lyle Hayden.

Haidas (5 boats)—1, Haida, Don McCowan; 2, Whistler, Gordon MacKay.

Sharks (3 boats)—1, Hustler, Brian Saunders.

Thunderbirds (12 boats)—1, Hilunga, Peter Moore; 2, Owl, Robert Grundison; 3, May D II, Ned Ashe; 4, Redskin, Gordon Nickells.

RCNSA sailors experienced the same lightening breezes, which had faded completely by the time the last race was finished. The dinghy fleet included 420s, Fireballs and a Seafly.

First Race (13 boats)—1, Robin Spear and Greg Hemphill; 2, Tony Sayle and Peter Robbin; 3, John Sharpe and crew.

Second Race (17 boats)—1, Robin Spear and Greg Hemphill; 2, David Bellwood and crew; 3, Ron Love and crew.

BUCCANEER DAY CELEBRATIONS EXPANDED

The Esquimalt Council, the Esquimalt Lions Club, the Chamber of Commerce, and various other community organizations are sponsoring the annual Buccaneer Day Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Expanding activities make it necessary to extend the event — which began three years ago — over three days.

Activities include bingo games, rides, a salmon barbecue, a pancake breakfast, window painting competitions by junior and senior artists, store clerk costume contests, a decoration of business premises contest, parades and dances.

Arthur Mayse

The big Shrine circus is coming to town next week with its jungle cats and acrobats, its clowns and its shambling elephants. But a Victoria girl who has a special feeling for that circus and the jolly-boy Shriners who sponsor it, won't be here to enjoy the fun.

Her name is Barbara Rae Brown. She's a bright, sweet kid going on 15. Her hair is dark, her eyes are blue, and the legs that have never supported her without boot and brace are prisoned in heavy casts.

With her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of 3205 Frechette Street, she set off by car for Portland on Wednesday morning. There, at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, the casts will be removed. Intensive therapy will follow.

When Barbara comes home, she will be almost at the end of a long, difficult painful progression. By Christmas, she hopes she will be able to do a thing she dreams of.

This is to walk into the Victoria Shrine Club's Christmas party on her own two feet.

There's another dream, and we'll come to that in due time. But first, let me tell you more about Barbara and some of the best friends any crippled child can have.

★

These are the fez-topped Shriners, the fellows whose convention capers and exotic parade-wear are no more than the icing on a mighty fine cake. Since 1920, this Masonic brotherhood has dedicated itself to helping crippled children throughout North America.

The Shriners have 19 orthopedic hospitals, one of which is in Montreal and the other in Winnipeg. To this string, they have added four burn-treatment centres for children.

But back to Barbara in her wheelchair, as I found her on Tuesday evening, with her casts fresh-scrubbed for the trip south:

She was born in Nelson, and when she was two years old, the Interior town's Shriners heard about her.

From that point on, young Barbara, medically-speaking, was their pigeon, and the birth-defect that kept her from walking, a Shrine concern. There have been operatins—many of them, performed by some of the finest orthopedic surgeons on this continent. There have been braces and built-to-measure boots, and endless therapy.

Last fall and winter, Barbara underwent four crucial operations in the Portland hospital which for months at a time has been her school and her second home.

A composition she wrote there begins like this:

"It was a warm, bright September afternoon, and as we walked through the forest, we saw all the beauties around us."

Walked. That's the magic word for Barbara.

★

She's a good student, smart in math and language, with three years of typing to her credit. With her to Portland this trip, she took shorthand books which she will do her best to master unaided.

It's worth noting that the family war cry is, "There's nothing we can't do."

So Barbara, when at home, helps with the cooking . . . and washes the dishes . . . and attends the Handicapped Children's Clinic . . . and in rebellion against classical music, plays swinging pop on the family piano . . . and thinks ahead to the day she calls "Uncane."

When she comes home from Portland, it will be crutches and braces for a little while more. Then a cane, which they've told her she may always need.

The Shriners and her own gallantry will bring her that far; but the girl who holds the rarely-awarded Girl Guides of Canada Badge of Fortitude cherishes a bolder dream.

Once in hospital, she watched a movie called "Five Little Pennies," in which a girl who had been similarly crippled celebrates her cure by dancing with her father.

One day, thanks to her good-doing friends in those funny little fezzes, Barbara Brown plans to throw the cane away and dance with her dad too.

And Many Among Them Shall Stumble and Fall

. . . ISAIAH 9-15

By PETE LOUDON

Independent candidate in Victoria, George Burnham drew on the Bible for inspiration when he made his usual speech for readoption of the red ensign Wednesday.

Waving the Good Book before a Silver Threads audience, (see Page 17), he quoted Isaiah, champter 11, verse 12:

"And He shall set up an ensign for the nations and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."

He went on to say that Isaiah in chapter 32, verse 5, also relates this Biblical forecast of the present government:

"The vile person shall be no more called Liberal, nor the churl said to be bountiful."

Mr. Burnham may have opened a new and fruitful field for speechmakers.

Obviously former B.C. Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi missed a bet by not quoting Isaiah 49-11:

"I will make all my mountains a way and my highways shall be exalted."

What a wonderful day would dawn if Liquor Control Board chairman Donald McGugan should stand and quote Isaiah 55-1:

"Ho everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters and he that hath no money, come ye buy and eat, yea, come buy wine and milk without money. . . ."

Forests Minister Ray Williston could refrain from speechmaking and just issue the numbers Isaiah 55-13.

"Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree. . . ."

Opposition leader Strachan need no longer dig for eloquence when attacking government backbenchers; but just spout Isaiah 56-10:

"His watchemen are blind, they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark, sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber."

Premier Bennett's rejoinder could come from Isaiah 55-18:

"But be ye glad and rejoice forever in that which I create . . ."

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield could choose to issue Isaiah 66-21 to comfort the people caught up in the housing shortage:

"And they shall build houses and inhabit them, and they shall plant the vineyards and eat the fruit of them."

NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson (Isaiah 66-19) "And I will set a sign among them . . ."

Hydro boss Hugh Keenleyside (Isaiah 60-1) "Arise, shine, for thy light is come . . ."

Isaiah 66-4 would suit all politicians: "I also will choose their delusions and will bring their fears upon them . . ."

All seeking re-election (Isaiah 43-18): "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old."

For returning office and campaign office staffs June 25 (Isaiah) 40-30: "Even the youths shall faint and be weary and the young men shall utterly fall."

And of course, should the election bring about another minority government and the threat of another national contest, the electors might ask each other (Isaiah 1-5):

"Why should ye be stricken anymore? Ye will revolt more and more; the whole head is sick and the whole heart faint."

Bennett Hails Wharf Scheme; 'Pay Dividends'

Premier Bennett is enthusiastic about Victoria's $30,000,000 Wharf Street waterfront development plan and says the provincial government will pay its share of the costs.

"As premier and finance minister I see no difficulty," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"Whatever is agreed on, we'll certainly do our share."

Mr. Bennett said he was "very enthusiastic" when he read about the plans in Tuesday's Daily Times.

'PAY DIVIDENDS'

"It will pay great dividends," he said.

The premier said the plans in principle appear to fit in well with the overall development of the provincial capital area.

He said British Columbia is the only province that has a capital area improvement commission and stressed that the $200,000 spent annually by the body is aimed at making the entire area beautiful.

"We're anxious to greatly improve the whole region — Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich . . ." he said.

PROVINCIAL SHARE

Projected provincial share of the more than $3,000,000 in estimated public expenditure is about $743,000. The premier made no direct comment on the figure, simply pledging the province would do its part in any three-way including municipal and federal governments.

The plan envisions an urban renewal facelift for 44 acres in the waterfront area and includes provision for high-rise apartment units, a hotel-convention centre, tourist-oriented retail outlets and pedestrian malls and parks.

Mr. Bennett was interviewed as he readied for a two week tour of the Interior and northern B.C. He left for Kelowna today.

Mayor Hugh Stephen termed the premier's reaction as "the most encouraging reaction we could receive at this time."

The mayor added that the proposed development was just a part of a continuing city program designed to give British Columbia a capital city of which all citizens could be proud.

"Coming at this time the premier's enthusiastic endorsement of the scheme is most gratifying. It means that we can move into phase two of the study and the eventual actual implementation of the scheme with a great deal of confidence.

"We know that Ottawa looks on the project with favor. and now with the premier supporting us we can look forward to moving ahead at the earliest possible moment."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh also expressed pleasure at the premier's reaction.

ALL LEVELS AGREE

"It is very reassuring to know that all levels of government like what has been done to this time and what we propose to do in the near future," he said.

"But I think it should be pointed out that whatever the three levels of government do, the success of the scheme depends entirely on private enterprise.

"Government has demonstrated and will continue to demonstrate its confidence—it's up to private enterprise now to make the proposals work."

City manager Dennis Young agreed.

"We can't help but be happy at the premier's enthusiastic support," he said. "I think it demonstrates that although there has been some criticism over the time taken to prepare the report, the consultants and our city planning staff did their homework well.

"I am sure that with the premier as a supporter, private enterprise will realize that the Wharf Street waterfront proposals offer the most exciting development prospects in Canada today."

Theft from Mails Brings 6 Months For 18-Year-Old

An 18-year-old was sentenced today to six months in prison for theft from the mails.

Stephen Lambert, of 4649 Cordova Bay Road, was an employee of a messenger company contracted to deliver special delivery letters.

He was arrested June 5 after two special investigators for the post office sent marked special delivery letters to themselves.

The letters were not delivered. Lambert pleaded guilty to the charge.

Magistrate Ostler told the accused the offence "strikes at the heart of one of the vital services to the country."

Sayward Man May Have Shot Rare Island Variety Wolf

Did a Sayward man kill the one and only wolf on Vancouver Island?

It all happened early this week when Mrs. Andy Zaplottiski looked out of her farm house window and was startled to see a wolf staring back at her.

It was about 40 feet from the house and gazing intently at it.

She hollered for her husband but by the time he had hung up the phone and grabbed his rifle, the animal had vanished.

Monday it was back!

This time it was behind the house on the Zaplotiskis' 30 acres of partly cleared property, three miles north of Sayward.

From a distance of about 100 feet it was again looking intently at the building. This time Mr. Zaplotiski dropped it with a single shot.

"It's definitely a wolf," said Don Blood in Nanaimo today. He is regional wildlife biologist for Vancouver Island with the fish and wildlife branch of the provincial government.

The question still unanswered is whether it is one of the last wolves native to Vancouver Island.

They are a sub-species or variety, explained Mr. Blood. Such fine differences are generally determined by minute differences in skull measurement.

WEIGHED 76 POUNDS

The dead wolf was a male, weighed 76 pounds and was a little over five feet long, dark on the back and a golden brown on its sides.

Wolves have a different shaped face from wolf-like dogs, said the biologist. They have a slim lanky build with long legs and large feet.

They are usually furtive and Mr. Blood is at a loss to account for this one's behavior.

The Vancouver Island variety is rare—so rare it has been classified as in danger of extinction by the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

Are they worth saving?

"We think so," said the biologist. "Just the fact that they are here makes them of value."

They are not generally a menace and for several years have been classified as a game animal which means a licence is required to hunt them.

Wildlife authorities are thinking of putting the Island wolf on the protected list. Before the First World War it was quite common but has dwindled over the years.

A specimen was last shot 15 years ago.

"Man doesn't gain anything by wiping ou an animal," said Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the provincial museum.

Mrs. Zaplotiski said today her neighbors report there is a second wolf in the area, about 15 miles north of Campbell River.

That's not all.

Wednesday morning she called her husband out of bed to get a bear off their property.

B.C. NURSES GOING AHEAD WITH STRIKE VOTE FRIDAY

The Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia said Wednesday it is going ahead with its government-supervised strike vote Friday despite possible government intervention.

"If nothing is done to meet nurses' demands we will have to proceed on the course we are taking," said Evelyn Hood, the association's personnel director.

However, she said that if the provincial government brings its newly-created mediation commission into the dispute and it advances a binding decision, the nurses will discard any strike plans.

12 DAYS TO GO

Rain Big Concern Of Grit Planners

Use of Beacon Hill Park for an open-air rally for Prime Minister Trudeau Monday has now been given full approval by Victoria City Hall.

The prime minister will speak at about 8 p.m. on the south slope near the Mile Zero sign. He'll arrive on the scene by helicopter.

From there the PM travels to the airport in an open car, with a brief pause at Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Big concern of the Liberal campaigners now is whether or not it will rain Monday night.

If it does, what happens? Victoria campaign manager Alan Cox was asked. His reply "Mass suicide."

There are plans for a sudden shift to Esquimalt Arena in event of a deluge but the shift won't be lightly made.

The PM, incidentally, will be flying here direct from a one-hour telecast at Vancouver which will be carried over channels 6 and 8 at 6:30 p.m. He goes from here to Calgary.

National Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield will have one advantage over his rivals by being the first "big gun" to speak to local audiences.

People who are voting in the advance polls can do so with his words ringing in their ears, but the advance poll will be completed before the Liberal and NDP leaders speak.

The advance poll voting takes place Saturday and Monday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.. closing an hour later than the regular polls on June 25. Mr. Stanfield will be here tonight at Memorial Arena, 8:30.

Prime Minister Trudeau will be here Monday night but voters will have time to do little more than see him before the advance polls close. Mr. Douglas doesn't appear until June 23. He'll have the last word before the general voting begins.

The advance poll, for people who intend to be out of their own polling division on election day, will be conducted at various places.

In Victoria — Victoria West, Central Junior Secondary, S. J. Willis Junior Secondary, Sir James Douglas, Monterey and Uplands schools.

In Esquimalt-Saanich K of P Hall, Sidney; St. Luke's Church Hall, St. Martin's-In-The-Field Hall, Esquimalt United Church Hall and St. Matthew's Parish Hall, Langford.

Victoria returning officer Dave Wilson says it's too late now to change location of some polling places where there were complaints about stairs. But he says anyone who can't handle the stairs should phone him and "I'll see they have an opportunity to vote." Number is 386-6384.

Middle Man Testifies At Hearing

An American had "set up a deal with about 30 guys" for the distribution of narcotics at the Jaycee Fair, central court was told today.

Philip Palucci, of Pennsylvania, employed on the midway at the time of the fair, was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Maurice Racine, 20, 739 Kings.

Racine was charged with possession of marijuana for trafficking after police said they seized 1¼ pounds of Marijuana from a car near the fair.

MIDDLE MAN

Palucci said he was to be the middle man in a deal to "dump" the marijuana.

Asked by defence counsel Don Farquhar if he went around the country doing this, Palucci replied "Oh yea, it keeps people happy."

Palucci said there was nothing in it for him, he just did it for "friendship."

Police said the witness is in custody and is to be deported for illegal entry into Canada.

A second witness, 20-year-old Rajindar Singh, who said he was the driver of the car involved, testified Racine and another man asked him if he would keep the marijuana in his car overnight May 13, but he said he did not see if Racine actually put anything in the car.

RCMP Const. Daniel Creally testified he found a large green bag containing several smaller bags of green plant like material under the back seat of the car on the morning of May 14.

Racine was arrested on a warrant later that day at the fair. The hearing is continuing.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me who selects the All-Star teams of the National Hockey League and what are their qualifications?—B.H.F.

A. The coaches of the 12 NHL teams select the All-Star teams as well as the major individual awards—Hart (most valuable player), Lady Byng (gentlemanly player), Norris (top defenceman) and Calder (best rookie) trophies.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Fernwood Ladies March to a Snappy Self-Help Tune

By PETE LOUDON

If there was to be a poor people's march in Victoria, most of the Fernwood Ladies would be qualified for the first platoon.

Not that they'd be there. They're not much for demonstrating, weeping or complaining. But they're a snappy bunch when it comes to doing.

Take last week when they heard about the girl they call Val—a young wife, her husband melted away with the winter snows and she, not only left to care for a two-year-old, but in hospital having a new baby.

Prior to going to hospital Val's toddler had been with grandparents but they didn't have room for another baby they said. She could get welfare assistance. She couldn't get a place to live.

There's a woman salesman with a city real estate firm who's a soft touch in situations like this. She ran her feet off looking but the best she could come up with was an unfurnished apartment. And Val didn't have anything to put in it.

And that's where the Fernwood Ladies came in. They call themselves ladies rather than just women because although half of them are on welfare and almost all have experienced some family troubles, they aim to maintain a ladylike manner in meeting their problems.

They came together through a mutual association with the Family and Children's Service and Children's Aid workers at the field office at Fernwood and Gladstone. Like the mothers of the better known Low Income Group, they're a self-help organization, pooling their efforts to give each other a break from housework, in painting bees, or canvassing for the Red Shield.

Sometimes they just get together to swap ways of stretching a pound of hamburger to feed a houseful of kids.

It was their vice-president Mrs. June Akehurst who spent four hours on the phone marshalling the Fernwood Ladies to help Val. She was on the verge of giving up her new baby to adoption.

Not any more. The Fernwood gals came up with a chesterfield, dishes, bedding, curtains, pots, pans, even some baby toys.

One member throughout her personal distress had carefully preserved a dinner set for better days—kept it packed away where she could count on finding it. It went to Val. So did enough clothes to keep both infants going for years.

What the Fernwood Ladies didn't have they cadged from relatives and friends. That's how they got some male muscle and trucks and cars for the supply line too.

Why didn't they draw on their own experiences and call in the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, St. Vincent de Paul Society—or just leave the matter to the professional social workers?

"It occurred to us," said Mrs. Akehurst, "but sometimes there are waits and delays, you know brick walls. We went ahead and did it so fast the welfare worker was outpaced."

And here's the kicker—to be thrown in the teeth of the next person who tells you the trouble with people on welfare is they won't help themselves:

"We wanted to show we just don't sit back and say 'gimmee.'

"We wanted to do it without asking others for help."

For once, the Fernwood Ladies wanted to feel rich.

And they are, aren't they?

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Husband's Opinion On Gifts for Father

By PENNY SAVER

My husband peeked over my shoulder as I wrote yesterday's column on camping equipment. "Things like that make good Father's Day gifts for an outdoor father," he commented, then suggested that I take him shopping so that he could point out the things he thought would be most appreciated. As I could have predicted, he wasn't all that helpful. As he mooned over his favorite departments, gazing at equipment he has been longing to buy for years, I explored the shelves for something new. Once I had found it, I called my spouse and asked his opinion. "Hey, that's a good idea," he would say. "Just what I need for my fishing trips." Then he would be off again until I called.

One of my discoveries that raised his enthusiasm to a high pitch was a 28-piece set of cutlery. "See, there are four place-settings. Jack and I could have two meals without washing dishes!" The metal of these well-shaped utensils are securely attached to black plastic handles. The whole set sits in a pocketed plastic liner which rolls up to fit in an attractive zippered cylinder of white plastic or vinyl with pictures of outings on the outside. Each of the four place-settings includes a knife, fork, soup spoon and coffee spoon. In addition there is a combination bottle opener-corkscrew-punch, a ladle, a strainer-spatula, a large cooking spoon, and a paring knife —all the things husbands forget. The complete set is $6.98.

Clothes Rod With Many Uses

"Jack could use that in the cabin of his boat," was the comment on an extendable clothes rod designed for the car. This rod will make any unused corner into a closet and is the ideal solution for that tidy tot who wants to hang his own clothes but cannot yet reach the closet rod. The ends of this metal clothes rod have loops to fit over any handy hook. It adjusts to fit the available space. These rods come in various weights and range in price from $1.98 to $2.49. What, you can't imagine cluttering your rear view with clothing? The manufacturer thought of this too. Each rod comes with a couple of washers — much like the ones in your tap — that hold the clothes where you want them. Even if your safety is not at stake, as in a boat or trailer, it is a good idea to keep the hangers from sliding around freely at the risk of dumping those suits and dresses on the floor.

On a wet day I would want my fishing basket to be waterproof — especially if my lunch were inside. For $3.95 there is a collapsible fishing basket of rubberized canvas in a muddy green color. There are three roomy side pockets for little things and grommetted holes in the bottom allow air to circulate and moisture to drain away. Metal snaps hold the pockets and lid shut. This bag is stiffened at the mouth with metal. There are collapsible metal supports inside that hold it upright during use but let you store it in a small space when it is not needed. My husband agreed that it was as practical as could be.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where we shopped for these items.

Parties Honor Bride-Elect

Several parties have been held to honor Miss Charlotte Crawford, whose marriage takes place this Saturday.

Mrs. H. Borris was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. D. Greet, when she gave a shower in her Lincoln Road home. The gifts were in a laundry hamper. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. A. Crawford; the groom-elect's aunt, Mrs. R. Wratten, and his grandmother, Mrs. C. Woolley.

A luncheon shower was given by Miss C. Smillie and Miss E. Smillie at the Dominion Hotel. A decorated laundry basket contained the gifts. Ribbon corsages were received by Miss Crawford, her mother and Mrs. Wratten.

Mrs. J. Shaw and her daughter, Chris, gave a surprise shower in their home on The Rise. Brooches were presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Wratten and Mrs. Woolley.

The Pacific Avenue home of Mrs. J. Bishop was the scene of a bathroom shower with gifts being presented in a miniature wishing well.

A grocery shower was given by Miss Judi Mayar and Miss Nancy Robson at the latter's home. Gifts were in a decorated garbage can. Corsages, made from vegetables, were received by the bride-elect, her mother and Mrs. Wratten.

The bride-elect's aunt, Miss Jessie Nicol, gave a luncheon at the Olde England Inn. Corsages were received by the honor guest, her maid of honor, Miss Mayar; her bridesmaids, the Misses Chris Shaw, Nancy Robson and Diane Davies, and the flower girl, Andrea Crawford.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Try to Plug Up Some Of Those Energy Leaks

Energy is a "happening" when an individual is blessed with an extra amount of it, but it doesn't happen to everyone. Most people have a limited amount and must guard and reinforce this aid to happiness.

Lowman

A high level of energy activates plans and makes it possible for dreams to come true. Without it these may lie stagnant, half forgotten and never realized. Energy adds zest to life. It gives daily living wings! Every effort to increase our store is well worthwhile.

We too seldom stop to think of this and therefore allow many leaks in our energy to continue. Some of these are negative thoughts and emotions: Worry, envy, sensitiveness, hate, fear or self-consciousness. Then there are over-weight, poor nutrition, boredom, lack of exercise, insufficient sleep, poor posture, trying to do too much, smoking too much and eating too much.

If people would just plug a few such leaks they would be amazed by the increase in their pep. There are many little boosts we can give our energy as well as stopping any existing leaks. Deep breathing is a lazy but soothing, effective way to do this.

The usual breathing of the average person is far too shallow for best health. It has been estimated that we use only about one-sixth of our lung capacity. When we realize that the oxygen in the air we breathe goes to the lungs and then to the blood, to be taken to all of our tissues where it is vital to body processes, we understand its importance.

Breathing exercises are used extensively in the treatment of emphysema. They have been found helpful in cases of insomnia and nervousness. They relieve tension. They can increase your oxygen intake and therefore your energy.

This is one you can do any place. Exhale, slowly, emptying your lungs of air. Now breathe in slowly, taking as long as possible for the inhalation. Count the seconds it took you to inhale. Hold your breath for the same length of time. Then exhale very slowly, taking the same length of time you did for the inhalation.

Two warnings; never hold your breath until it is uncomfortable. Also, do not do too many of these at one time. You can get over-oxygenized. If you feel the least bit dizzy stop for a while.

Feel Better, Become More Active with Increased Amount

WOMEN REACT TO PROTEIN TEST

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP — Increased intake of protein in the diet may cause women to feel better and be more active, a study by the University of Manitoba shows.

Dr. J. A. Moorhouse, associate professor of physiology, announced results of the study Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Biological Studies.

He said the experiment studied the habitual protein intake of a group of men and women between the ages of 75 and 85.

While the protein level was shown to have no correlation to the physical characteristics of either the men or the women, there was a physical correlation among the women.

Thus, if the women increased their protein intake, they became more active and felt better, but when the intake was reduced, the process was reversed.

In an interview later, Dr. Moorhouse said that until more research is done, no explanation could be given for the apparent response.

Even the Weather Was British At Gorge Hospital Garden Party

English scones and fruit cake for tea, Welsh cakes and very British cream buns, and unpredictable weather, were just a few of the special features contributing to the British theme when Gorge Road Hospital Auxiliary members held their annual garden party Wednesday afternoon.

Weather being what it was, it was a toss-up whether to move the stalls, representing England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, inside, but conveners were justified in their decision to leave them in the garden. The rain held off.

SONGS AND DANCES

With weather co-operating, opening ceremonies and entertainment were also held outside. Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett opened the event, after guests were received by Mrs. W. K. Hardy, auxiliary president. and Mrs. C. C. Warren, chairman of the board of directors of the hospital.

Fred Willway was master of ceremonies, introducing the entertainers. The Sweet Adelines sang unaccompanied in four-part harmony, and dancers from the Adeline Duncan studio performed dances of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Convening the English stall, which featured meat pies and cream puffs, along with other home baking, were Mrs. A. Peddlesden, Mrs. G. McKeown and Mrs. C. Coleman. At the Irish stall were Mrs. C. T. Hammon, Mrs. G. Shattock and Mrs. A. Hertley.

SCOTTISH STALL

The Scottish stall was convened by Mrs. A. Mawer, Mrs. R. B. Simm and Mrs. N. J. Magraw, while Mrs. Y. Mawer, Mrs. F. Harvey and Mrs. S. Smethurst were in charge of the Welsh stall. The four stalls also featured hand-made aprons and novelties.

A wide variety of interesting plants was collected and sold by Mrs. T. G. Dalzell, Mrs. R. G. Aitken and Miss Phyllis Maber.

Refreshments were arranged by Mrs. H. Jackson, Mrs. A. L. Campbell and Mrs. R. Lewis. In charge of tea were Mrs. H. T. Shemilt, Mrs. R. W. Clarke and Mrs. C. L. Read.

ASSIST AT TEA

Ladies of the Royal Purple acting as serviteurs were Mrs. J. F. Christian, Mrs. J. Cook, Mrs. D. R. John, Mrs. W. McGregor, Mrs. E. Ash, Mrs. V. Melbye, Mrs. J. B. Watt and Mrs. T. E. Pagdin.

Mrs. E. R. Owen was in charge of the cake walk. and raffle tickets were sold by Mrs. B. Wiper and Mrs. A. G. Hamilton.

Mrs. C. R. Douglas, who was in charge of tickets at the door with Mrs. E. R. Owen, reported that proceeds from the garden party amountted to $400.

Fly to England To Buy Vegetables

LONDON (CP) — Thrifty French and Belgian housewives are finding it cheaper to nip across the Channel to buy groceries in Britain than to patronize the corner store in Calais or Ostend.

Astonishing as it may seem to Britons who relish the special flavor of French provisions, supermarkets in Dover and Folkstone are doing a roaring trade with Continental customers who snap up such non-Gallic delicacies as Dundee cake, pilchards and even cans of sliced peaches.

Cuts of meat, poultry and even French butter and cheese are all half the price charged in French and Belgian stores.

The housewives pay the equivalent of $6.10 for a day-excursion ticket and figure they still show a profit on their housekeeping, now that the franc buys more in devalued Britain.

Between 100 and 150 women cross to British ports each week to buy bulk groceries. One leading supermarket has installed interpreters and is busily advertising in coastal papers in France and Belgium.

SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

PLAN 'OPEN HOUSE' AT ANIMAL SHELTER

This coming Saturday, from 2 to 4:30 p.m., the Victoria Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will hold its annual "open house" at the shelter, 3150 Napier at Burnside. Members of the Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Training Club and their dogs will give a demonstration, the kennels will be open for inspection, and the Women's Auxiliary will operate stalls of home baking and gifts. Home-baking items should be brought to the shelter that day. Extending a warm welcome to Victorians are, left to right, Mrs. D. Jones, Mr. H. R. Dyce and Miss Elizabeth Byers.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Music While You Work Irks Worker

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office. The management went to a lot of expense to put in music. It's supposed to increase your efficiency, but it doesn't increase mine. In fact, it slows me up. Those tunes bring back memories. Some are good, but some are depressing and my mind wanders off, and I start thinking about everything but my work.

I asked my boss to cut off the music where I work. It's a whole area so they took a vote, and I lost. So the music stayed.

I work a lot better when it's quiet. Am I nuts? Or are they?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Nobody need be "nuts." You're entitled to your own preferences, but in a "democratic system," the majority rules. (P.S.: If it will make you feel any better, I'd have voted with you.)

DEAR ABBY: We are going to a wedding where the bride will be four-months pregnant. Both she and the boy are 18 years old and will have graduated from high school the night before.

What is the proper thing to say to the young couple as well as to the parents when we go through the receiving line?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: "Congratulations."

DEAR ABBY: How many chances do you think a person is entitled to? My wife was a nice, clean-cut girl from a good Christian home when I married her. (In fact, her Daddy was a minister.)

When our first child was 10 months old I came home from work one day and found the baby wet and screaming and all alone. My wife came home in a taxi at 11 o'clock that night, dead drunk.

She said she went to the corner grocery store, met a friend, and they went out for "a drink." One led to another and before she knew it, hours had passed. She begged for one more chance, so I gave it to her.

This has been going on for six years, and it's always the same story. I can't count the "one more chances" I've given her.

We have two kiddies now, and my mother says she will take care of them for me if I decide to leave my wife. Abby, I love her. When she's sober, she's a wonderful, sweet person, but I can't go on like this. She's begging for "one more chance." What should I do?

BIG PROBLEM

DEAR BIG: Tell her you will give her one more chance if she agrees to give "Alcoholics Anonymous" a chance. A.A. has succeeded when every other formula for lasting sobriety has failed. They are listed in your telephone directory. But the one who needs the help has to do the calling.

DEAR ABBY: Recently your column used a letter describing the techniques of two mothers when their children yelled during injections. One mother promised a new doll if her daughter would shut up; the other spanked hers when she didn't.

I avoid either course by telling the child, "Remember, it will hurt a little when the doctor puts the needle in. If you think it hurts too much, don't yell. Just tell him it hurts, and he will take it right out again!"

GRANDMA

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to have a lovely wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

DONATE MONEY FOR PICTURES

For the first time in the history of the picture loan project of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, a sum of money has been set aside for outright purchase of pictures for loan.

Mrs. Ray Hadfield, chairman of the picture loan committee, at the annual dinner meeting of the Women's Committee to the Gallery on Wednesday evening, presented $1,000 to Gallery director Colin Graham, for pictures to add to the picture loan collection. The committee will continue to rent pictures from artists as well.

Women's Committee president Mrs. Robin Skelton also presented $5,000 to Mr. Graham for purchase of pictures for the Gallery. This donation from the Women's Committee is the only grant with "no strings attached," and with which Mr. Graham can buy any pictures he feels would be an asset to the Gallery.

In reviewing the year's work, Mrs. Skelton paid tribute to members who convened the many events which helped to raise money for the Gallery.

Mrs. C. H. Miller was in charge of the committee's part in selling programs for an exhibition of French tapestries, for which the committee received $466.45.

A fashion show which raised $823.45 was convened by Mrs. Graham Harris, while a one-day sale of paintings and crafts organized by Mrs. R. S. Conn and Mrs. R. T. McKean realized $1,300.

The annual ball, arranged by the dance committee under the convenership of Mrs. A. Daysmith, showed a profit of $790. Mrs. J. M. Plecash organized a card party for members in February.

The rummage sale in March, convened by Mrs. J. Michaelis, raised a further $1,324.28, and another new event, a French auction convened by Mrs. W. L. Wood, realized $325. Proceeds from the annual house tour amounted to more than $1,400.

Mrs. G. S. Bryson acted as liaison when committee members handled ticket sales for a show of British fashions, and profits for the committee amounted to well over $800.

Donations of $200 from the silk screen group, and $300 from the picture loan committee will be on next year's financial statement.

Mrs. Skelton also thanked Mrs. Alec Reid, Mrs. S. L. Cumberland and their helpers for their work in re-decorating the tea room with the help of money donated by the picture loan committee. Publicity chairman Mrs. D. L. Telford was also thanked by the retiring president.

Services to the Gallery and its members, Mrs. Skelton reported, have included the running of the monthly picture loan; the picture-of-the-month service to business offices; provision of refreshments at receptions, and the organization of a luncheon for members of the Western Association of Art Gallery directors.

Succeeding Mrs. Skelton as committee president is Mrs. Alec Reid. With her on the new executive are Mrs. A. R. Alexander, first vice-president; Mrs. E. Horne, second vice-president; Mrs. C. H. Miller, recording secretary; Mrs. B. L. Rounding, treasurer, and Mrs. K. B. Barnes, corresponding secretary.

National Government Seen Answer to India's Problems

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — There is a growing feeling in India that only a broad-based "national government" can solve the country's political and economic problems.

The suggestion has come from such eminent figures as Jayaprakash Narayan, the Gandhian social reformer, J. R. D. Tata, the industrialist, M. C. Setalvad, a former attorney-general, and Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, India's first governor-general and founder of the conservative Freedom party.

Many leading newspapers also say Prime Minister Indira Gandhi should take other "like-minded" national parties into her government so that, as one journal put it, "the politics of strife can be replaced by the politics of constructive endeavor at this time of great crisis on almost every front."

The Congress party has been in sole charge of the federal government since India became independent 21 years ago. However, in last year's general election—the fourth since independence—its hold over Parliament was considerably weakened.

The ruling party now has only a majority of 20 in the Lok Sabha (lower house), and fears have persisted that defections within the party may upset the stability of the Gandhi administration.

Want Talent Pool

Champions of the national government idea argue that the Congress party has failed to solve the complex linguistic, economic and defence problems, that the post-Nehru leadership is "mediocre" and that the Gandhi cabinet has failed to inspire the masses. They say that "all available talent must be pooled within the framework of a democratic structure at the top."

Rajagopalachari, a veteran politician with a wide following, has been urging that the prime minister should dissolve the present government and form "a non-party all-talents national council so that the home front may be organized by persons with direct and intimate knowledge of the problems of speedy production and distribution and by those who do not have any axes to grind by way of party or personal interests."

The demand for a national government has also been made at several citizens' meetings in Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and other Indian cities.

At a citizens' rally in Bombay it was argued by several speakers that only an all-party administration can prevent the "slow disintegration" of the country as a result of linguistic and regional movements.

Idea Rejected

However, informed observers think that there is no prospect as of now of the Congress party leadership agreeing to reconstitute the federal government on a wider basis.

In fact, both Mrs. Gandhi and Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai have rejected the idea.

Mrs. Gandhi does not agree that a coalition of like-minded parties will be stable. "No party today seems to be like-minded even within itself," she said in an interview.

Desai does not think that India is facing a major crisis which alone, in his view, would justify the formation of a national government.

Significantly, those who advocate the idea of a national government in New Delhi seem to be agreed that there should be no change in the prime ministership.

There is a general concensus that Mrs. Gandhi should continue to be at the helm of affairs, and this is regarded as a tribute to her leadership.

Some political commentators think that the Congress party will not be able to resist the demand for a broad-based government for long. They suspect that "internal pressures" will force Mrs. Gandhi to pay more heed to the idea.

However, there is no credible evidence that the Congress party is faced with serious discipline problems. Recently, two key men in the Gandhi cabinet —Home Minister Yeshwantrao Chavan and Agriculture Minister Jagjivan Ram—publicly denied rumors that they were not getting along well with the prime minister.

Both Chavan and Ram are considered to be politically ambitious. But they are also realists and know that they lack the national standing and personal popularity of Mrs. Gandhi, the daughter of the legendary Jawaharlal Nehru.

PLANE FIRE KILLS 6 AFTER RUNWAY MISS

CALCUTTA (AP) — A Pan American Airways jetliner, groping its way through monsoon rains, hit short of the runway at Dum Dum International Airport early today and was destroyed by fire.

An airline spokesman said the dead included five passengers and one stewardess. Survivors, some badly injured, included nine crew members and 48 passengers. Five company employees were travelling as passengers.

A flight control tower duty officer said the four-engined Boeing 707 approached the airport in "moderate to heavy rain." He said it "undershot," hit the ground, burst into flames and within minutes it was burned out. Some of the passengers were trapped in the wreckage.

It actually cleans your mouth and keeps it clean for hours.

How does this new Stripe taste? Lively and tingling.

How does it clean teeth? Superbly.

Brush with new Hexachlorophene Stripe. It doesn't kid around.

WHAT DO THEY DO if they feel a sneeze coming on? They try and ignore it. Torre Duo, Danish balancing specialists, will appear with the Shrine Circus at Memorial Arena on Monday and Tuesday. Twenty-eight other acts are included in big show.

FAMED DUO COMING

Thesis Developes Humorous Play

One would scarcely expect to find a university thesis developing into an often humorous and generally lighthearted entertainment.

But it was from a thesis that the two-man show, Great Knights of the Theatre, grew and became a successful enterprise on both sides of the Atlantic and was recorded for the British Broadcasting Company last November.

Next Tuesday evening it will be seen at McPherson Playhouse, starring its originator Martin Jenkins, with the gifted Scottish Canadian actor Harry Hill, as the other half of the duo.

It is being presented as a benefit performance to provide bursaries for secondary school students wishing to attend the University of Victoria Summer Theatre Workshop.

Mr. Jenkins, one of Britain's successful young actor-producers, says that the idea for the show first came to him when he prepared his university thesis on the great actors of the English stage.

He felt that the items he came across in his research—secrets in the lives of people like Garrick, Keane, Irving, Gielgud, Olivier and Scofield, their problems and the ways in which they prepared for a role—could be shared with a wide theatre audience.

Revolving the show around differences of approach and interpretation with regard to the taxing role of Shakespeare's King Lear, gives it a central theme.

Jenkins himself experienced at first hand the work of world renowned Paul Scofield in the role.

He took part in the famous Peter Brook production which starred Scofield, toured Eastern Europe and went to Lincoln Centre in New York in 1964.

Martin Jenkins has performed Great Knights of the Theatre at Stratford-upon-Avon, in Birmingham, London, Liverpool, Edinburgh and in the United States in Boston, Providence, R.I., Washington, D.C. and Philadelphia.

The Community Arts Council of Greater Victoria is carrying out a sponsorship of Great Knights by arranging for hosts to make up theatre parties.

It is the third spring production by Robert Price and Associates, the other two being The Odd Couple and Roar of the Greasepaint (now playing at the McPherson) both of which have had Harry Hill in major roles.

TORONTO actor Mark Winters is one of two men who hope to take off from Judique, N.S., in a balloon for a trans-Atlantic flight, ending somewhere between Africa and England. Takeoff is expected sometime this week.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL

Midsummer Night's Dream Arouses Praise, Scorn

By VICTOR STANTON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival production of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream was a crowd pleaser Wednesday night although not all critics' were happy with it.

The near-capacity audience gave the cast the longest ovation of the Festival's first three presentations, although no one actor was singled out for applause as was William Hutt in Tuesday night's production of Molinere's Tartuffe.

The critics' assessment of John Hirsch's interpretation of Shakespeare's comedy ranged from predictions it would be the sell-out hit of the festival's 16th season to condemnation for being offensive.

Sydney Johnson of the Montreal Star said of the production: "Everything is overdone and overplayed to get a belly laugh and . . . Mr. Hirsch is an extraordinarily skilful and inventive director who never attempts anything he cannot pull successfully."

"This production is so skillfully staged that it will be the sell-out hit of the . . . season."

JANE CASSON SPARKLES

Mr. Johnson said, however, that only one character, Jane Casson's Helena "was able to make the comedy sparkle with wit while projecting the Shakespearean verse with clarity of line and expression."

"The rest were either dull or, when not, were playing pure farce."

Peter Bellamy of the Cleveland Plain Dealer criticized the production for what he called "a dripping homosexual aura which many will find extremely offensive."

He praised Martha Henry for being "probably the sexiest, semi-nude Titania in the history of A Midsummer Night's Dream," but said that "with most of the males around her, her overwhelming femininity is wasted."

Herbert Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail applauded the production for finding "its triumphs in time-honored charm and glorious fun."

"Titania and Oberon . . . are lithe, proud and beautiful as created by Martha Henry and Christopher Newton," he added.

Elliot Norton of the Boston Record American called Hirsch's version of the play "an erotic escapade" and "while it is arresting, never dull, never boring, a little too much to take."

"There is not much joy . . . in this unorthodox sin 'Dream' which dares to be different but fails to delight."

Stewart Brown of the Hamilton Spectator said of the production: "It is groovey and it is great."

Exciting Discovery Made By B.C. Archaeologists

A team of museum-university archaeologists excavating an Indian village site on Mayne Island, has recently made its most important discovery to date.

Two clay pits believed to be at least 2,000 years old with one containing evidence of burnt wood, were uncovered. Various small stone implements have also been found at various soil levels.

Don Abbott, curator of archaeology, said the excavation so far has revealed three soil components — the last and deepest showed that an ancient people had inhabited the site 3,000 years ago.

The clay pits and their use is a mystery, he said, but the position in the soil indicated they were made about 2,000 years ago.

"We are excited with the discoveries," he said. "It will all help towards putting the jigsaw puzzle together on how the "Indian culture developed in prehistoric times."

John Sendy, archaeologist, is in charge of the party which includes 15 students from the University of Simon Fraser.

Also working on the project is Frazer Smith, a member of the Tsartlip band, and an authority on the culture of the Salish people.

The village site overlooks Active Pass. Members of the party live in tents and will be there for the rest of the summer.

One of the things archaeologists are on the watch out for pieces of fired clay which might throw some light on a small head of pottery found on Saturna Island 19 years ago and believed to be of Oriental origin.

were the clay pits used for pottery making? So far no traces of pottery has been found.

Only one midden containing pottery has been discovered in the Americas to date. In 1965, masses of pottery were found on a site in Equador, establishing that a Japanese tribe had made a trans-Pacific journey to South America about 3,000 years ago.

At the close of summer, the party plans to make test digs on Georgeson Bay, Galliano Island, situated on the other side of Active Pass.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The use of a two-club opening as a catch-all strong hand is almost universal in expert circles. Sometimes it shows a regular suit two bid, but most of the time it shows a 23- or 24-point no-trump hand. South's two-club call was in that class.

Opening lead—♣10

North's two-diamond response was a general negative and his three-club bid merely asked if South could show a four-card major suit.

It didn't take all this gadgetry to reach three no-trump. Any two players would be likely to find their way to that spot.

They would also be very likely to make the contract. All South has to do is to concede one spade and wind up with three spades and two tricks in each other suit, but at the table West came up with a defensive coup that caused South to wind up with only seven tricks.

It wasn't done with mirrors—just by means of an unusual falsecard.

The queen of clubs was played from dunny at trick one, and East's king fell to South's ace. South led his five of spades and West played the queen!

South made the correct play of ducking in dummy. West led a second club. South ducked that lead and won the next club. Then South led a low diamond. West won with the jack and cashed his good club while East discarded a heart. Then West led a second diamond.

South won and played his other high diamond to see if that suit would break. West had already taken four tricks, so he could afford to throw a heart away.

Now South led the ace and his last low spade. West followed with the three and nine, and the time for decision had arrived. South thought awhile. He realized that something might well be going on, but it surely looked as if West had started with four spades to the queen-jack. South played the ten from dummy, and instead of making three spade tricks wound up with only one.

HOMEOWNERS:

YOU HAVE A HIDDEN CASH RESERVE

It's the equity (cash value) you have built up in your home. Now, you can use this hidden cash reserve to borrow as much as $10,000 at low real estate loan rates.

All the details of this sound financial service are clearly described in a Free Brochure that is yours for the asking. Let us help you uncover the hidden cash reserve in your home with an Avco Delta 2nd Mortgage Loan.

Sample Payment Plans

Cash Advance	Monthly Payments
$1,700	$24.37
$2,300	$32.23
$3,300	$44.13
$4,800	$62.67

The above payments are based on a 15-year amoritization, with interest of 1 to 1½ per cent per month on the unpaid balance. The maximum term is 5-years.

The loan may be repaid at any time without notice or bonus.

EARLY OCCUPANCY

This is a finished home, only 1½ yrs. old, with potential for further development and appreciation. It already has 4 BR's, 3 bathroms, plastered rec. room with hardwood floor and fireplace, separate utility room. Besides there is space for billiard room, workshop or hobby room; and the deep (164 ft.) sloping lot is ideal for pool site. There are smooth plster walls in LR, DR, and hall, a beautiful natural rock fireplace in LR. The kitchen is most attractive with its golden ash cupboards, a garburetor and good sized eating area. Off the kitchen through sliding glass door is a large sundeck on the sunny south side. The house is located on Sutton Road, a quiet street of "better" homes, sewered, and on subdivision. Flexible financing with a basic 7¾ per cent mortgage.

ST. LOUIS COLLEGE

Graduation Has Emotional End

In an emotion-charged finale, farewells and tributes were paid St. Louis College Wednesday night as the 104-year-old institution held its final graduation ceremony.

Amid voiced hopes that the school would someday open its doors again came another warning that the Catholic school system in the Victoria diocese is still in a crisis.

"My correspondence over the past several weeks from people of all faiths and from different parts of the world certainly proves the respect the school enjoyed and only sharpens the pain of its needless demise," said principal Kevin Molloy of the Christian Brothers of Ireland.

Announcement of the boys' high school closing came last month after failure of a fund drive for renovation and expansion.

Brother Molloy told nearly 500 students, parents, alumni and friends:

"Please God conditions in Victoria will, in God's providence, hold true to my MacArthurian promise 'We shall return'."

His order was first called to teach at the school 54 years ago when financial problems then threatened closure.

Bishop Remi De Roo said few people suspected the crisis affecting the local Catholic schools when meetings concerning the future of St. Louis were first held four years ago.

"The crisis is still with us. It continues to menace our elementary schools as well. It is part of the widespread upheaval affecting society throughout North America and around the world."

He referred to a committee he has established to probe the future of Catholic education in the diocese.

"In the meantime I request the charity, understanding and co-operation of all. There is an easy human tendency to blame other persons or groups for developments which we do not fully understand. But this only saps the creative energies of the community and can be destructive of harmonious growth."

DEDICATED SERVICE

In a tribute to the teaching brothers he said they had given more than half a century of dedicated service to Vancouver Island.

"Their zeal frequently went unrecognized. Their co-operation was always willingly given. . . . I look forward to the day we can welcome them back to Victoria. Let us all work and pray that this day may come soon."

Patrick Griffin, son of former city alderman Michael Griffin, took the top student award in the graduating class and was also valedictorian.

Other award winners included Denis Flynn, Michael Percy, Richard Philion and Ronald Gaudet.

Special guest at the ceremonies, held in First United Church Fellowship Hall, was George Burnes, 86. He started at St. Louis in 1892 and is the school's oldest alumnus.

In his farewell, Brother Molloy said he wanted to say goodbye through the words of an Irish blessing "which in its Gaelic content expresses the depth and sincerity which we, the Irish Christian Brothers, would like to leave with you . . .

"May the road rise up to meet you,
May the wind be always at your back,
May the sun shine warm upon your face,
And rains fall soft upon your fields
And until we meet again
May God hold you in the hollow of His hand."

Quebec Goals Outlined For Discussion

OTTAWA (CP) — Another skirmish in the Ottawa-Quebec battle of the white papers on the constitution occurred today with distribution here of a 92-page Quebec government booklet entitled What Does Quebec Want?

The booklet republishes papers tabled by Quebec at recent inter-governmental conferences.

It also contains a new foreward by Premier Daniel Johnson in which he says the Quebec proposals "do not contain anything which is incompatible with true federalism and with the existence of a federal government strong enough to fulfil its role for the benefit of all Canadians."

At the federal-provincial conference here in February, the federal government tabled a white paper on provincial participation in international affairs.

Prime Minister Trudeau followed up May 8 with another white paper on the subject of international education conferences.

TALKS WITHOUT OTTAWA

Quebec this year attended such conferences of 17 French-speaking countries without Ottawa being invited.

Mr. Trudeau said Canada would be destroyed if Quebec were permitted to set precedents designed to earn it recognition as a sovereign state in the international community.

Mr. Johnson fired back that Mr. Trudeau was throwing Canada into turmoil and that the prime minister's statement was purely for election purposes. Ever since, the constitutional issue has been in the forefront of the campaign for the June 25 federal election.

The Quebec white paper distributed today repeats the province's claim that it wants "free rein" to make its own decisions affecting "relations with certain countries and international organizations."

Mr. Johnson says in the foreword that Canada to a large extent "remains to be invented."

TONE CONCILIATORY

He says Expo 67 foreshadowed "a more conciliatory, more fraternal world where age-old concepts of political supremacy will no longer be the rule because men and nations will have learned to form groups spontaneously in accordance with their cultural affinities."

He adds:

"Our aim is not to destroy Canada but to put an end to the misunderstandings that divide us, to ensure the progress of our two cultural communities, in equality and harmony."

Quebec's proposals were not "absolute statements" or "ultimatums." They were meant to be put to the test of criticism.

Mr. Johnson says the papers republished in the booklet express "moderate, realistic positions which are those of both the present government and the people of Quebec as a whole."

LISTS PROPOSALS

The paper presented at the Ontario-sponsored Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Torto last November contained these Quebec proposals:

—"Free rein" in decisions affecting education; social security; health; economic development, including "the forging of any economic and financial tool deemed necessary"; arts; literature; the French language; and "the presence abroad of the Quebec community—that is, relations with certain countries and international organizations."

—Gradual and sole responsibility for all public expenditures "on every form" of education, old-age security, family allowances, health, employment and training of the labor force, regional development, municipal aid programs, research, fine arts, culture "as well as any other social or cultural service within our jurisdiction under the present constitution."

—A new constitution which would give the provinces all residual powers not specifically allocated to the federal authority.

—Broader constitutional powers than Quebec now has.

—Reform of the Supreme Court of Canada and the Senate to reflect Canada's "binational character."

Many of these points are to be discussed by the continuing federal-provincial constitutional committee.

Hey Doc! See Our Rabbits

They can't say "What's up, Doc?"

But Victoria rabits are among the classiest in the Pacific Northwest.

The Vancouver Island Rabbit Breeders' Association won several top awards recently at the Washington State Rabbit Breeder's convention show in Spokane.

Included amoung the award winners from Victoria were W. F. Emery, best of breed for white and red satins; Charles Bates, best blue Dutch; Don Adams, best junior New Zealand doe; and Maurice Atkins, best buck and doe pre junior champagne de 'Arg.

Gordon Ash, a registered National Rabbit Breeders' Association judge from Victoria, also attended the convention as did Trevor Jenkins, a junior breeder from Victoria.

More than 600 rabbits from several Pacific Northwest states were entered in the convention show hosted by the Inland Empire Breeders' Association of Spokane.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined Wednesday for careless driving were:

Barry Bojarski, 3686 McIvor, flipped car on Malahat May 3, $50; Gunter Horyna, of Youbou, drove car into ditch on Trans-Canada Highway May 11, $40.

DIVORCES

A divorce was granted in Victoria Law Courts recently to Mrs. Alice E. Martin, 2209 Oak Bay Avenue, from D'Arcy S. Martin of Vancouver. They were married at Victoria in 1947.

More Fires Started

EDMONTON (CP) — Lightning, associated with numerous thunderstorms in Alberta since Friday, started 50 new forest fires in the province, a forestry department official said Wednesday. But the general fire situation in the province is "easing off," he said.

SYNCHRONIZED SWIMMING FEATURED

About 50 members of the Juan de Fuca Synchronized Swim Club will participate in their first annual water show Friday in the Centennial Pool at Colwood.

Many of the participants have already won awards for synchronized swimming. The Juan de Fuca Cohoes will give an exhibition of speed swimming.

The 90-minute program will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Tennis Court Instruction To Be Given

Tennis is being offered by the Saanich Municipality Supervised Playground Program this summer at Cadboro-Gyro, Reynolds and Hyacinth Park Courts.

Registration for the course is currently being taken at Saanich Parks and Recreation Department, second floor of the Municipal Hall.

Fees are $3.00 per person; two members of the same family may register for $5.00 and the maximum family fee is $10.

Registration includes 12 lessons, crest, and tennis balls.

The Saanich municipality program commences July 2 and runs for a six-week period ending August 9.

Among activities offered will be crafts, softball, and swimming lessons.

Swimming lessons will be held at the Crystal Garden in the mornings Monday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Fish Boat Protection Increased

Insurance protection provided commercial fishing boats under the federally sponsored fishermans indemnity plan will be extended to a maximum of $25,000 June 15.

The extension, announced by Fisheries Minister H. J. Robichaud will raise the existing ceiling by $10,000.

The extension of the plan to cover boats valued to $25,000 is the result of higher construction costs and the trend by fishermen to obtain larger craft capable of diversified fishing.

Regulations involving premium rates come in for their share of changes as well. The one per cent premium presently on craft whose home ports are in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland or British Columbia will be raised to one and one-half per cent of the appraised value. Boats eligible for this rate must have an appraised value of from $250 to $5,000. The hike in premium for B.C. and the two Atlantic provinces follows a "high loss" ratio in these areas.

A two per cent premium will apply to all boats with an appraised value of between $15,000 and $25,000.

$50 Fine

Douglas Carlson, 774 Market, was fined $50 Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to doing a $200 repair job to a Linden Ave. home without obtaining the necessary permit.

OLD BALLAD SOUND still sells in an age of raucous music as Charlie Owen's Ink Spots are proving during a two-week stand in the renovated dining-room at the Empress Hotel. The group, whose balladeering rose to prominence during the swing era of the 1940s, is still packing the house 20 years later in the American nightclub and concert circuit. Polished professionals all, they have appeared with Rowan and Martin and in Vietnam.

BY MONTREAL MACHINE

'Heart Bank' Advanced

MONTREAL (CP) — A small team of researchers led by Dr. Sylvain Pitzele of Montreal has designed and developed a machine it claims can keep the hearts of dead animals intact and functional up to 14 hours.

Dr. Pitzele, who heads a McGill University and Royal Victoria Hospital team that includes his wife Annette, said Wednesday the new machine preserves the heart and evaluates it for workload capacity, biochemical characteristics and recipient suitability.

He said in an interview experiments will be conducted this week to attempt preserving the heart for as long as 24 to 36 hours. This may be achieved before the end of the summer

The machine was able to make the heart "work," simulating the performance of the heart of a person who is walking, running, exercising or resting.

Dr. Pitzele said the experiments bring closer to reality a heart bank for transplant operations.

WIFE HELPS

The researcher, who claims his machine is the first and only one of its kind, began working on the project three years ago assisted by his wife.

When operating and experimenting with animal hearts, Dr. Pitzele is in his lab from 6 a.m. to midnight.

He has an Aug. 15 deadline to submit reports of the first phase of his experiments to McGill University, where he is taking his doctorate in experimental surgery.

He is collaborating with Dr. A. R. C. Dobell, in charge of clinical surgery for the project at the Royal Victoria.

The Pitzeles, both born in Belgium, came to Montreal from Houston, Tex., where Dr Pitzele worked for Dr. Michael E. De Bakey who developed the mechanical heart and Dr. Denton A. Cooley, who recently performed three heart transplant operations in 10 days.

Dr. Pitzele said the process of removing an animal's heart and maintaining it in the machine requires constant supervision.

When the heart is in the machine, evaluation tests must be run every hour and drugs must be administered at short, regular intervals.

The team hopes to preserve a heart for 24 hours by the end of the summer "but going farther than that depends on whether we can solve some financial and personnel problems," Dr. Pitzele said.

The project is supported by grants from the Canadian Heart Foundation and the Medical Research Council. Last year's grants totalled $25,000.

However, money ran out just when the project needed more for laboratory equipment, so Dr. Pitzele built the equipment himself.

Blaiberg 'Holding Own'

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Heart patient Philip Blaiberg, fighting a liver complication which has left him seriously ill, is holding his own, a bulletin from Groote Schuur Hospital said today.

The bulletin said his condition was unchanged, adding that there has been no deterioration and possibly a slight improvement.

Blaiberg, 59, the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient, is in his special sterilized suite. Doctors are keeping a round-the-clock watch on him in a bid to pull him through a bout of hepatitis.

Sheep-to-Man Heart Switch Fails

HOUSTON, Tex. (CP) — Surgeons vainly tried to save a man's life Wednesday night by carrying out the world's second-known animal-to-man heart transplant, using the organ of a 125-pound sheep.

But the 47-year-old man, whose own heart previously stopped, died soon after completion of the transplant at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

Hospital administrator Newell France said the operation was intended to keep the man alive until a human donor was available. He said the man's family agreed to the transplant.

France declined to disclose the identity of the man but said he had been in a coma with an advanced disease.

France called the ram "a beautiful animal," adding that it was prepared for the transplant in the same way as a human donor with its tissues matched with the man's for compatibility.

The operation—the world's 22nd heart transplant—was performed by a team headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley which carried out four other heart transplants in recent weeks.

Of the four previous transplants at St. Luke's, two recipients died and two are recovering and described in satisfactory condition.

CHIMP HEART FAILED

Surgeons at the University of Mississippi Medical Centre transferred the heart of a chimpanzee to a man Jan. 24, 1964. It worked for an hour.

"Unfortunately, the dimensions of the only available donor heart . . . proved too small for the requirements of the considerably larger recipient," the head of the Mississippi surgical team, Dr. James D. Hardy, said at the time.

'PM Beating Unity Drum But Won't Give Details'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's charge that the New Democratic Party is guilty of double-talk on the subject of national unity was bounced back to him Wednesday by NDP Leader T. C. Douglas.

It was Mr. Douglas' opening comment at a news conference here, the first he has had since the prime minister made the charge Tuesday nigt.

"Every party is for national unity," said Mr. Douglas before reporters began asking questions. "The only people I know who are against national unity are the separatists and the Quebec Liberals."

"It is Mr. Trudeau who is talking out of both sides of his mouth," he said in obvious reference to the Windsor, Ont., speech in which Mr. Trudeau said the NDP has waffled on national unity and spread confusion with double-talk in the June 25 election.

He complained Mr Trudeau is "beating the drum" for national unity without saying what he proposes to do that will make Canada strong and united.

Disunity is promoted by regional disparity which makes one region feel it is the "poor step-child" of Canada, but the greatest obstacle to a strong nation is Canada's obsolete constitution.

WANTS POWER SHIFT

Canada's constitution has the federal government will all the money and no powers and the provinces with the powers but no money. It must be changed to broaden the powers of the federal government to deal with problems ranging from housing to pollution.

The only change Mr. Trudeau proposes, said Mr. Douglas, is to provide for linguistic equality.

Mr. Douglas, in Winnipeg for a brief stopover en route to Saskatoon for a campaign speech today, suggested many Canadian provinces have been influenced by the "powerful insurance-company lobby," resulting in their opposition to medical care.

He did not agree that the federal medical care insurance plan, due for implementation July 1, should be altered to make it acceptable to more than two provinces.

"If we change the terms, we won't have medicare. We'll have a half-baked scheme designed to please insurance companies."

Mr. Douglas joked that he had been thrown out of better places than the Steel Co. of Canada plant in Hamilton, where he was not permitted to campaign Tuesday.

'Autopsies Blocking Transplants'

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Transplant surgeons at the Stanford University Medical School have charged that the coroner is hampering their efforts to obtain needed organs by insisting on performing lengthy autopsies.

Dr. Roy Cohn, head of Stanford's renal transplant division, said Wednesday four kidneys offered for transplant in the last three weeks were unusable.

They said that was because Santa Clara County coroner John E. Hauser insisted on lengthy autopsies before releasing them.

The Stanford surgeons said the lives of three Santa Clara County residents and a 10-year-old boy were in danger because no kidneys are available for transplanting.

The doctors offered to have Stanford perform autopsies, determine the cause of death and quickly utilize the health organs before they deteriorate.

Dr. Hauser rejected the offer.

FOREIGNERS EXPELLED IN PARIS CRACKDOWN

PARIS (AP)—French authorities said today 43 foreigners, including two Canadians, who had taken part in recent rioting had been expelled from France during the last 24 hours. All told, 73 foreigners have been sent out of France since the crisis began.

The new action was decided upon following a cabinet meeting Wednesday.

HOME GARDEN

Fill in Lawn Hollows

By JACK BEASTALL

A perfectly level lawn surace is rare in the home garden; there are always a few bumps and hollows.

Jack

When mowing the grass, the bumps are cut very low, or scalped, and the grass in the hollows is left longer than the rest.

The result is a mottled effect of thin yellowish-brown and rich dark green.

To overcome this it is wise gradually to build up the hollows by adding about one-quarter-inch of a screened compost-sand mixture at intervals of sufficient length to allow grass to grow through and fill.

The compost mixture should be fairly dry, and a corn broom used to brush it down between the leaves of grass so that the plants are not smothered.

Bumps are not so easy to handle. The turf over high spots is carefully cut and folded back, excess soil removed and the turf replaced, watered, and well tamped back into place.

Most home gardeners unconsciously start mowing at the same spot, follow the same course, and end at the same place, every time the lawn is cut.

They do it from habit, but it is a bad habit as far as the lawn is concerned. Small lawns should never be cut along the same course on consecutive mowing days.

At one mowing, the cut should be lengthwise of the lawn. The next should be at right angles, or crosswise; one diagonal is followed for the third cut and the other diagonal on the fourth.

With this practice, the mower approaches unlevel spots from a different angle each time, and a high spot has a chance to recover from its scalping, while a low spot often gets a proper clipping from at least one approach.

Home gardeners who have changed to this method of cutting, keeping note of which way the next cut should be made, have reported considerable improvement in lawn appearance.

MADE NORTHWEST PASSAGE

Historic Nonsuch Ship Rebuilt for Anniversary

APPLEDORE, England (AP) — In a tiny shipyard on a Devon riverside the clock has suddenly turned back.

A ship that helped mold the future of North America is taking shape again, built with the methods of three centuries ago and liberally supplied with nudes.

Its final berth is to be in Winnipeg.

At 53 feet from stem to stern, she looks ridiculously small to hold a giant's place in history. Yet the Nonsuch, as tough as her English oak timers, survived the ice of the Northwest Passage and made the fortune of the Hudson's Bay Co.

Now she is being reborn to celebrate the company's 300th anniversary of its Royal Charter of 1670. Shipwrights, carpenters, gunfounders, riggers and sailmakers are to work with the tools and materials of the 17th century.

Her two-inch oak planks are fastened to her frames with trenails—pronounced and sometimes spelled trunnels. These are of oak seasoned 15 years.

The nudes, 18 of various descriptions from mermaids at the prow to long-legged charmers supporting the stern cabin windows, are taking shape in the Isle of Wight workshop of Jack Whitehead, a 54-year-old artist who lately has specialized in ships' figureheads.

In 1668 the Nonsuch set off from the Thames with orders to sail "with the first wind into Hudson's Bay and there endeavor to bring your vessel into some safe harbor in order to trade with the Indians. . . ."

★ ★ ★

Six months after her successful return, the king granted her charter to "the Governor and Company of Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay."

This is the anniversary for which the new Nonsuch is being built.

In October the champagne will come out and the Nonsuch will slide into the Torridge estuary. Once the masts and rigging are put in and her 27 tons of lead ballast safely stowed, she will sail to the Thames to tie up near the company's headquarters at Beaver Hall.

Then comes a crossing of the Atlantic, whether under sail or aboard a freighter has yet to be decided. Afterward there will be a tour under sail of Canadian and United States East Coast ports and perhaps through the Panama Canal to the West Coast before an overland journey to her final berth in Winnipeg.

Wolf Boy Lived Life Of Idiot

LUCKNOW, India (AP) — Ramu "the wolf boy," who died April 20, lived the life of an idiot due to brain damage at birth, doctors say.

An autopsy which lasted 50 days provided no evidence on the story that Ramu was brought up by wolves. He hit world headlines 14 years ago when he was discovered as a young boy at a railway station.

His stunted physique, a voice resembling the howling of wolves, his liking for raw meat and obvious affinity for canine life—attributes which continued until his death—caused controversy throughout India on Ramu's antecedents.

The detailed neuro-pathological examination just completed indicates extensive damage in the right half of Ramu's brain at birth which doctors said led to severe mental retardation.

Ramu, who spent the last 14 years at Balrampur Hospital, later developed tuberculosis of the lungs and died after a prolonged illness.

The autopsy said his brain was smaller than usual for his age, which doctors reported was 27 at death.

The lungs were infected and the speech centre was damaged, making him unable to speak.

Prof. R. M. L. Mehrotra, who headed the team of three doctors, said they preferred not to enter the controversy on whether Ramu had been brought up in a cave by wolves or was a stray child abandoned by indifferent parents.

Prizes Awarded

DUNCAN — Jane Robinson was awarded the humanities prize at the Awards Day at Cowichan senior secondary school.

The science specialty prizes went to Scott Whittaker in Math and Bill Health in science; and technical specialty prizes to Roberta Jameson and Ron Shaeffer.

Outstanding student in Grade 13 was Barbara Boyd.

In the performing arts program the art specialty prize went to Ruth Hitchcock, music prize to Bill Health and drama award to Rhonda Esau.

The director's award for best performance went to Mary Ogg.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Anthony Rowe, age 10, or North Brunswick, New Jersey, for his question:

How fast can pigs run?

A well-padded paunchy old porker would plumb refuse to enter himself in a running contest. If he could talk our language, he might ask a question of his own — How fast can a two-legged human run? He also might brag that some of his wild relatives can out-run the fastest man.

The farmer who keeps domesticated porkers is not interested in how fast the fat fellows can run. Far from it. He wants them to grow fat and well padded with tender meat. The heaviest pigs, of course, yield the most bacon and pork chops, the biggest roasts and the heaviest hams. They bring more money when times comes to take them to market. A well padded domestic pig may win a blue ribbon at the county fair, but he is in no shape to compete with the horses and the fleet-footed greyhounds. In order to become a prize porker, he must stuff himfelf with all he can eat, take life easy and give up all ambition to exercise and develop speedy muscles.

In bodily biology, mankind shares many features with nature's children of the animal kingdom. Some people overeat and neglect the exhilarating exercises required to build supple muscles. If they carry this way of life too far, their everyday chores make them puffy and breathless. Even walking around becomes a wearisome effort to be avoided when possible.

Such people enjoy sit-down pastimes and rarely take part in physical sports. Certainly they never enter a running contest. Perhaps we should be glad of this, because they surely would shame the human race in a contest with nature's speedy animals. For such a contest, we need a trained athlete who eats regular, proper-sized meals of body-building foods and gives his supple muscles a happy routine of daily exercise.

Forest Dweller

We cannot blame our Mr. Porker because he cannot trot fast. But his domesticated kinfolk are descended from wild piggy relatives, and some of his cousins who kept their freedom can outrace the fastest, best trained human runner in the whole world. In a distance race, a human athlete can run about 25 miles an hour. The tough and tusky warthog of Africa can dash along at almost 35 miles an hour.

When it comes to racing, the many members of the pig family have a choice of entries. Family pride will never allow them to enter their tame cousin of the barnyard. Their best choice would be the athletic warthog. But several wild boars of Europe and Asia also can outrun camels, bison and ostriches and almost match the speed of our fastest dogs.

Like most wild pigs, the warthog enjoys life in forested regions. He is five feet long, plus an 18-inch tufted tail that has no piggy twirl. His sturdy shoulders are 2½ feet high and he tips the scales at 200 pounds. He maneuvers his muscular body on short legs and two-pronged pig-type trotters. But the athlete of the pig clan is no beauty. He has a rough, slaty skin and a stubby mane of stiff bristles. His saggy face is covered with wrinkles and bumpy warts. He has a pair of fearsome tusks, maybe two feet long, that curve up from his lower jaw around his over-sized snout. A beauty contest he could never win. But he can almost equal the speed of a fast greyhound.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to James Reimer, age 10, of St. James, Manitoba, for his question:

What exactly do they mean by atomic physics?

Physics is the science of matter and energy. If you think about it, you will see that this topic pokes a finger into just about everything in the world. All solids, liquids and gases are made of matter. If you tried to list all the different kinds of energy, you would be kept busy for years. The list would include such items as tripping over a stone, boiling a kettle of water, combing your hair and even writing to Andy. And the science of physics is not satisfied until it understands all the rules and regulations, all the laws that matter and energy must obey.

Atoms, of course, are the tiny particles of matter from which all solid, liquid and gaseous materials are made. They are energetic midgets and they act according to strict scientific laws. The science that probes into this miniature world of matter and energy is called atomic physics. The experts in the field delve into the secrets of the nucleus of the atom — which is why they refer to their science as nuclear physics.

HUNTED MAN BUNDLE OF NERVES

Ray's Europe Tour No Fun Trip

By SCOTT B. BURNS

LONDON (UPI) — James Earl Ray had a terrible tour of Europe.

The accused assassin of Martin Luther King Jr. couldn't find his way to the bathroom in a London hotel.

British currency confused him.

He was so nervous that he had his breakfast tray set down outside his hotel door.

A London hotel clerk judged him simple. A Lisbon waiter called him cheap. One hotel owner declared his going was "good riddance" and announced plans to change the name of the hotel where Ray slept.

Ray had a month to visit such sights as the Tower of London, the sunny beaches of Portugal and the British Museum. But he was on the run, it rained and Ray stayed mostly in his hotel rooms or sought out just those bars that feed on luckless travellers.

A girl in thigh-high miniskirt, a hotel clerk who thought Ray was neurotic and a night porter who refused to let the lonely man bring a girl upstairs have filled in some of the jigsaw pieces of the last days of freedom of James Earl Ray.

Ray arrived in Britain May 8. He hurried off to Lisbon to pick up some money transferred from a Swiss bank account, according to Scotland Yard sources. He flew back to London, not knowing his time was running out.

Jane Nassau, 21, first saw Ray when he showed up May 28 in a taxicab at London's new Earl's Court hotel, a building of white stone adorned with blue awnings. Miss Nassau, a hotel clerk, said he "gave the impression he had just come from an air terminal."

The clerk who checked in Ray is off on holiday on a channel island. But Jane remembers Ray. She is a north of England girl, with dark hair and shapely legs and blue miniskirt, and she came to London to better herself and see the world. Ray interested Jane.

Southern Drawl

"He was extremely shy, pathetically shy. I didn't know why he was so secretive. I just thought he was nervous," she said.

"He signed in as a Canadian. But I thought it was strange. He had this deep southern drawl. I learned about southern drawls from television and I can tell a southerner from a Canadian.

"I asked him lots of questions, like if he was seeing a lot of London. But he would just say, 'oh, yes,' and fiddle with his keys. He was extremely nervous, always doing things with his hands.

"I tried to talk to him but then I stopped myself. I was afraid he might think I was trying to chat him up (flirt)," Jane said.

Ray emerged one night from his room in search of the bathroom. In a dark hall he bowled over a porter who had climbed a ladder to change a light bulb. "He apologized," Jane said.

Patiently Jane tried to explain the intricate British currency. "But he was a bit thick and it didn't sink in. He was very slow," she said.

Spy Novel

Later another hotel clerk found a paperback spy novel, "Assignment Tangier," that Ray had dropped. In the back was a mass of figures indicating Ray's attempts to compare the value of dollars to pounds.

A second man had appeared with Ray when he checked in. Jane never saw him again. Ray left June 5, carrying the airline flight bag he always clutched, possibly containing the Liberty Chief pistol he was arrested with Saturday.

Jane called out goodbye and that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy had been shot. "He just shrugged and walked away," she said.

Contrary to what he had told Jane, Ray headed for a new hotel. It was raining and the first hotel he tried was full. The clerk recommended the Hotel Pax, owned by Mrs. Thomas.

He paid $10.80 in advance for three nights' stay. Mrs. Thomas saved the £5 note he paid with. She also saved the syringe she found in his room. She didn't like Ray.

Small Room

Ray had a "friend" with him when he asked at the first hotel. The second man was gone when he checked into his small room at the Pax.

He received four telephone calls—Scotland Yard is trying to find out who from—and a postcard. The card came from Ian Colvin, a newspaperman Ray had telephoned in search of help in joining an African mercenary unit.

Mrs. Thomas said one telephone caller was a woman with an American "twang." Ray was out and the twang was heard no more. Mrs. Thomas thought something was funny.

"I always thought he slept in bed with his clothes on. When I brought his breakfast tray, he told me to leave it outside, like he was still in bed. Then, a minute later, before I had gone a step, he was right at the door fully dressed, picking it up . . . he was so neurotic," she said.

Made Own Bed

Ray kept out the maid. He made his own bed. She ordered him into another room and had a look. "Yanks are all the same. I thought he had a lady in there. But he didn't have any lady in my hotel."

He left the hotel in the Pimlico area early. "I thought, 'Good riddance to you'," Mrs. Thomas said. She said she now will change the hotel name from Pax, meaning peace, to something else.

Ray left her hotel just in time to keep a date with police waiting at London Airport. Back in Lisbon, the police and an FBI agent found an easy but dull trail left by Ray early last month.

On May 8, at 8 p.m., Ray entered a third-class waterfront hotel and asked for a room. He apparently had yet to pick up his money. The clerk thumbed him to Room 2 on the second floor.

It overlooks a narrow street and has a bed, a wardrobe, a chest of drawers and two chairs. It costs $2.10 a day. Ray set down his suitcase and a briefcase. There he stayed nine days.

Washed Socks

Luis the receptionist remembers Ray as quiet, lonely and shy. Chambermaid Maria Celestre, 31, said he did not tip. Both recall he went out very late at night and sometimes at 6 a.m. He washed his own socks.

Ray asked Joao, the night porter, for permission to take a young woman upstairs. Joao said no. The girls in the nearby bars remember him. One named Maria can't seem to recall if she spent one or two nights with Ray. She will describe it all for a tip.

Gloria at the Galo Bar winks when asked. Paula, around the corner at the Boemia Bar, smiles. The man at the Canadian embassy remembers. They fixed up a passport for Ray when he showed a Canadian birth certificate.

No one in London or Lisbon remembers Ray sending anyone a postcard. No one remembers him smiling. But he did see one tourist site—the Bow Street Magistrate's Court, where he was arraigned Monday. Charles Dickens used to visit there.

FIRST HURDLE PASSED

Extradition Move Could Take 6 Weeks

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. application to return James Earl Ray to the United States moved steadily forward today as the British government authorized extradition proceedings to begin.

Home Secretary James Callaghan signed an order authorizing the Bow Street magistrate's court to conduct the extradition proceedings against the 40-year-old escaped convict accused of killing Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Frank Milton was expected to schedule a hearing in about a week.

The application was sent to the home office after clearing its first legal hurdle in the foreign office.

Court formalities and appeals could delay Ray's return up to six weeks or longer if he fights extradition.

The inch-thick petition contains a summary of evidence against Ray in connection with the assassination of King at a Memphis motel April 4.

It also contains information on the escape from the Missouri State Prison while serving a sentence for armed robbery, along with fingerprints and other identification material.

MUST SATISFY JUDGE

The United States is seeking extradition on both charges and must satisfy a British judge that both would be crimes under British law.

The foreign office certified that the petition came within the terms of the 1931 extradition treaty between the two countries.

Ray has been held here since he was seized at London's Heathrow Airport Saturday trying to catch a plane to Brussels.

He was arraigned in the same Bow Street court Monday on British charges of carrying a forged Canadian passport and a loaded gun.

If Milton grants extradition, Ray would have 15 days to appeal to the High Court and if the High Court upheld the extradition order, he would have another 14 days to appeal to the Privy Council.

Michael Dresden, the British lawyer appointed for Ray, has given no indication whether Ray would fight extradition and has refused to comment on the case.

Accused Crossed Into Canada Before FBI Informed RCMP

OTTAWA (CP) — The painstaking RCMP search of passport application files that led to the arrest of James Earl Ray in London last Saturday began one week after he left Canada May 6 for England.

Ray, wanted in Tennessee for the shooting of Martin Luther King, also was well ahead of the authorities in getting into Canada.

An FBI photo of him went to officers at 131 Canadian points of entry April 22, some time after he arrived in Canada. Police believe he came to Toronto shortly after Dr. King was shot April 4 in Memphis.

With the FBI photo came news that Ray had lived in Montreal last summer after escaping from a Missouri prison in April, 1967.

Ray's Canadian connections now are the subject of an intensive investigation by RCMP and FBI agents, who were reported to be scouring Montreal Wednesday for information on his movements there.

Except for the RCMP search of passport files, he might still be at large.

He obtained a passport under the alias Ramon George Sneyd April 25 and flew to London from Toronto May 6.

A few days later RCMP were given permission by the external affairs department to search the passport application files here.

A dozen Mounties under the command of a corporal trooped into the passport office after closing hours May 13 and scanned nearly 250,000 files in 20 nights.

They worked at night to avoid upsetting routine in the office—218,000 passports were issued last year—and to avoid stirring gossip that might tip their hand if Ray was in the country.

They began looking at applications since late April, 1967, when Ray escaped from prison in the U.S.

SCOTLAND YAR

The application listed a transient Toronto address, gave the name of a travel agency and allowed RCMP to find out quickly when Ray had left the country. A week later Scotland Yard had arrested him in London as he was about to board a plane for Belgium.

The force itself is hewing to a tradition of "upholding the law" anonymously and has refused to divulge the name of the constable, now back on regular duty, who spotted the Sneyd photo.

Ray's regular features were similar to those on a dozen passport photos and set off a number of routine checks before the Sneyd file turned up.

The telling features were the shape of his chin, the set of his ears and his hairline. He had disguised himself slightly by wearing heavy-rimmed glasses and tightening his mouth.

The Mounties now are quietly trying to find out how he assumed the name of four Toronto men, how he got the passport, and what connections, if any, he had in this country.

Avoid Police State On Passports—Sharp

REGINA (CP) — Procedures for obtaining Canadian passports may have to be tightened in some areas, External Affairs Minister Sharp said Wednesday, "but we don't want a police state."

Sharp, on an election campaign trip to Regina and southeastern Saskatchewan, said at a press conference that there is no substance to claims in some U.S. publications that Canadian passports are "ridiculously easy" to obtain.

He said he hopes to have a report when he returns to Ottawa on an inquiry into how James Earl Ray obtained two Canadian passports.

Sharp said, "We have to make sure criminals don't get passports, but we don't want a police state. We don't want to interfere with the free movement of Canadians about the world."

PROVINCIAL AID

He said a study of passport regulations may involve the provinces, since it is possible for some people to write to provincial governments and obtain birth certificates.

"The problem is how to tighten (regulations) without doing a disservice to Canadians," he said.

"We have to strike a balance. Most people are honest and it is important they be able to get a passport without too much trouble. We are a free and open society. This is a characteristic of Canada and I believe that is the kind of society we want to preserve."

TEACHERS BLAST FINANCING

'Averaging Process Leads to Mediocrity'

DUNCAN — An averaging process in education finance will inevitably lead to mediocrity.

British Columbia Teachers' Federation president Bob Buzza made this statement here Wednesday when outlining the BCTF objections to Bill 86.

He said, "High cost school districts in the province have already been informed they have three years in which to bring themselves into line with the provincial average."

Mr. Buzza said that essentially government policy has been to provide funds out of consolidated revenue for a basic education program.

Beyond that local trustees could build on to that basic program to meet local conditions.

Mr. Buzza said he disagreed with NDP and Liberal politicians who propose that all the costs of public school education should come out of consolidated revenue.

He said if local trustees did not have any responsibility for raising money they would no longer have any control.

Mr. Buzza said the combination approach has unique advantages and he cited Cowichan district's ability to provide special programs for the Indian population.

He said local autonomy gave rise to innovations, such as education television and kindergarten, and this would be stifled in a centralized system.

GUARANTEE OUT

Mr. Buzza said, "We don't want built-in rigidity."

He said the BCTF objections to the Bill 86 amendments were on the increased ministerial discretion and the disappearance of the government guarantee to pay 50 per cent of the basic education costs.

The BCTF assistant director of economic welfare Bruce Watson said the new formula will not allow B.C. to keep its place as an education leader in Canada.

H said, "Local districts must be free to spend above the basic or no advancements will come about. Leadership must be at the local level.

"Unless someone else is willing to introduce innovations our education department certainly won't."

Mr. Watson said in B.C. the government is indicating how much local taxpayers may spend on education and the movement is down toward the average.

Yarns To Spin At Museum?

DUNCAN — A neighbor has come up with a possible solution to the trouble between oldtimer Jimmy Leask and the majority of the other residents on Nagle Street.

This week the neighbors took a protest petition to city council asking for Mr. Leask's junk yard at his home to be cleaned up.

Council referred the matter to the city solicitor and local sanitary inspector.

But Wednesday one of the principal petitioners suggested Mr. Leask might co-operate with either the city of Cowichan Valley Forest Museum to take over his antique collection.

The neighbor suggested Mr. Leask could be hired as guide and story teller at the museum.

He said, "There's nothing I like better than to listen to Jimmy Leask tell his stories of the old days in the Cowichan Valley.

"He's a fascinating man and I bear no malice against him. His knowledge of local history could be a real benefit to the community."

Woman's Touch Added For Tourism

DUNCAN — An average of 10 visitors a day are calling at Duncan's Chamber of Commerce tourist office.

Secretary Mrs. Alisen Bonn reported to chamber directors Wednesday the visitors in the early part of June came from points between Alaska and New York.

Mrs. Bonn is the chamber's new secretary and information office hostess and is already applying the woman's touch.

The highway tourist office now boasts an accommodation board, and Mrs. Bonn plans summer-long displays on art, fishing, Cowichan Indian crafts and the lumber industry.

She will have assistance during the summer evenings and weekends from Mrs. Vivian Purney.

Chamber president Red Aspin noted with regret the departure of director Gordon Sutherland who is moving to the Penticton district.

THREE AREAS WON'T SHARE IN PROJECT

DUNCAN—A plebiscite is to be held in the unorganized areas of Glenora, Cobble Hill and Cowichan Bay to seee if the people are in favor of participating in a recreation project at Duncan.

But Cowichan Valley Regional Board heard Wednesday from directors representing Shawnigan Lake, Mill Bay and Lake Cowichan that these areas are not interested in taking part.

Duncan and North Cowichan councils are already committed to an $800,000 bylaw being voted upon in September.

The project is a covered swimming pool and community centre at Pioneer Park.

The board will meet June 26 to make final plans for the plebiscite.

New Number Listed For Sidney Police

Sidney RCMP have a new phone number.

It is 656-3931.

Sgt. Harry Chambers said the new listing will permit more lines to be installed.

Crushed by Log

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Logger Robert Lorne Duff, 20, was killed when crushed by a rolling log Wednesday at a lumber camp at Kelsey Bay, 35 miles northwest of here.

Challenging Program Proposed

The B.C. 4-H Club movement has a problem.

Today as throughout the last five year, girls outnumbered the boys six to four.

The problem is to attract more boys to a movement which, in the beginning, was a male stronghold.

Wayne Wickens, provincial supervisor of the 4-H clubs, says that the solution may be to introduce more challenging programs. Membership on the whole has been increasing steadily; it is the six to four girl-boy ration that has been static. Programs such as zoology, botany, arahaeology and some crafts will become part of the program.

Mr. Wickens points out that the emphasis in the clubs has moved away from agriculture.

Today a large percentage of the rural group earn their livelihood in towns and cities, he said.

Another problem is that while over-all enrollment is increasing, the number of people volunteering as leaders is on the decline. Today there are 551 leaders for 3,543 members. This has frequently resulted in the break-up of 4-H clubs in some districts.

Jensen's Here; Summer's Next

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

CAMPBELL RIVER — Summer time here means fish. Tourists pour in, ringing up more than $2 million on the cash registers and drift away again, clutching their salmon under their arms.

But the first sign that summer is really on the way are the non-tourists. From early spring they drift in one by one, pulling big house trailers and set up camp in two trailer parks a mile south of town, on the Island Highway.

Most of these non-tourists are retired Americans who come up from their winter camps in southern California and they stay on here until the first "south-easters" start to blow in late September.

By the time they're all in there's usually 125 trailers stretching along each side of the highway and beside the beach.

Some Canadians turn up among them like the late police chief from Victoria, John Blackstock, who spent many summers here after his retirement. Retired contractor John Pollard and his wife also come up from Victoria every year.

Residents have dubbed the area "Little America" and watching them unfurl their paraphernalia is always intriguing to the less colorful Canadians.

Once the trailers are aligned on the pads out come the brightly striped canvas extensions, the hanging basket of plastic flowers, the collapsible fences or rows of painted rocks and shells which define each person's property line.

Occasionally one of them will get carried away and plant an entire flower garden of gently waving plastic.

Once couple, Henry and Elna Jensen, from Palo Alto, California, are making their 20th visit this summer. Invariably they are the first ones in and the last to pull out each autumn.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY JENSEN

The Jensens have many personal friends in Campbell River now and Mr. Jensen chuckles as he recounts the greetings they always get from their friends when they return each spring.

"Hi! Jensen, Summer must be on it's way."

Mr. Jensen retired as a cabinet-maker 21 years ago in Palo Alto and he persuaded his wife to go on a little trip in a house-trailer, "just around the States."

"Well, we started off and we never stopped," said Mr. Jensen.

"We've bought five different trailers since then and never moved back to our house. It's rented out and we check every autumn to make sure the property is in good shape and then go on down the coast to a lovely place called Morro Bay for the winter.

Their days are spent visiting back and forth, having potluck dinners on the beach, playing poker if the weather's bad. Occasionally they all hold a salmon derby and contribute their catch to the local hospital.

They're both in their seventies, full of energy and living the good life.

"We love this town and we love the people," says Mr. Jensen, "and as long as I can steer my trailer we'll keep coming back."

STUDENTS HIT BY LAYOFF

DUNCAN — Layoffs nave occurred at all major sawmills in the district in the past month.

Duncan Manpower Centre manager Robert Robinson reported Wednesday the most serious is at Western Forest Industries Ltd. Honeymoon Bay, where cancellation of the graveyard shift idled about 30 men, most of them university students.

Total unemployment in the Duncan district in May was 1,090, a slight increase over April and due mainly to the registration of students for summer work.

Mr. Robinson said, "Students are having difficulty finding summer work.

"Some youths with two and three summers' experience in the mills have not yet obtained work.

"About half the university girls applying for summer jobs have been placed but the remainder are having difficulty getting work."

Mr. Robinson reports a continuing influx of unskilled laborers from the prairies and eastern Canada who are difficult to place.

He said, "It is doubtful if there will be much improvement until the lumber and pulp and paper workers' wage negotiations are completed."

Weather Picture All in Facts; Hotter, Wetter

GANGES — It's a bit hard to believe but last month was hot compared with May a year ago.

H. J. Carlin, official weather observer for Salt Spring Island, reports that May 9 had a high of 76 compared with a high of 68, the hottest May day in 1967. The highest recoreded temperature for May was 80 degrees in 1965.

The low of 37, on May 5 was one degree lower than last May's low of 38 degrees.

The precipitation matched the temperatures by rising to expectations. The high last month was 1.43 inches compared with 1.40 last May.

Maximum mean temperature last month was 63.6; minimum mean was 46.4.

COWICHAN-THE ISLANDS

Candidates Offer Voters Wide Choice

By DON DINGWALL
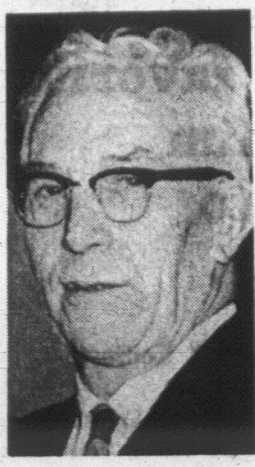
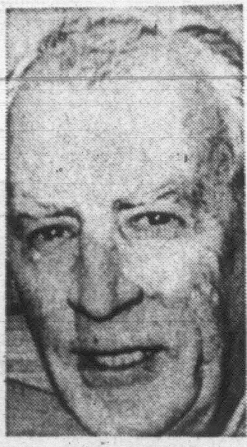
Times Staff Writer

LORNE LEE
... carpenter



COLIN CAMERON
... pipefitter

MLADEN ZORKIN
... realtor



JEFF BROCK
... sailor

DUNCAN — Voters in Cowichan-The Islands riding have a choice between a carpenter, sailor, realtor or a pipefitter on June 25.

The pipefitter is sitting NDP member Colin Cameron who worked at his trade in Harmac mill when not serving in Parliament or in the provincial legislature.

Mr. Cameron served in the legislature from 1937 to 1945, and was first elected to Parliament in 1953.

He was returned in 1957 but defeated in the Diefenbaker landslide the next year.

Since then he has been returned consecutively in 1962, 1963 and in 1965.

Mr. Cameron is the financial and economics spokesman for the NDP and methods to cure the economic ills of Canada are chief planks in his platform.

SUPPORTS REPORT

First and foremost he is campaigning for implementation of the Carter commission report, particularly the introduction of a capital gains tax.

He wants an investment control board to direct capital to where it is necessary to bolster the economy.

And Mr. Cameron wants exchange control to stem the drastic outflow of capital from the country.

He says a capital gains tax would curb stock market and land speculation.

Mr. Cameron believes funds for housing development could be derived from establishment of a government banking complex.

And he advocates price control for steel, nickel and copper which are not subject to industrial competition.

'ALL SHOULD SUFFER'

Epitomising the free enterprise spirit of Mr. Cameron's opposition is Liberal Mladen Zorkin, the realtor.

He states, "As someone who came to this country as a new immigrant I believe everyone should go through some suffering and starvation and realize that their future depends on themselves.

"Society does not owe them anything."

Mr. Zorkin said he does not disparage those who work for wages but it is men who used their individual initiative who built the prosperity of the North American continent.

He says Canada needs a complete change of mental attitude.

He said, "Our society today is one of mediocrity with people looking for security, less work and more pleasure and we are not going to survive in the world today unless we bring forward again what made this country great—hard work.

'BLESSING'

"Work is not a curse but a blessing. If we continue as we are we will become a nation of beggars blaming others for our mistakes."

Mr. Zorkin was born in Yugoslavia and practised there as a lawyer until the war years when he joined the British army in Italy.

At the end of the war he served with the British War Crimes Commission and met his English bride-to-be in London.

It was then secretary of state Paul Martin who brought Mr. Zorkin to Canada and the U.S. on a lecture tour.

When he decided to stay in Canada he first worked as a farm laborer at Cedar.

He worked four months as a real estate salesman without selling a thing but now owns one of the largest realtor and brokerage firms on the Island.

The sailor is retired admiral Jeff Brock, who is the Conservative candidate. Vancouver-born but educated at St. John's College, Winnipeg, and University of Manitoba, he came back to the coast on business.

MANY COMMANDS

At the outbreak of war he was western manager of a national advertising company.

During the war he held many commands at sea—in fact more sea time than any officer in the Commonwealth navies.

In the post-war years he was director of naval planning and worked on the formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

His dispute with Defence Minister Paul Hellyer over armed forces unification is well known and led to his enforced retirement.

Now as a Tory candidate Mr. Brock says it is urgently important to undertake a review of our defence expenditure and "what armed forces are required by Canada, if any at all."

He wants a re-examination of Canada's contribution to NATO and a House of Commons committee discussion on the question of Canada's continuing participation in NORAD.

However, he is concentrating his appeal to the electors on domestic issues and chiefly on housing.

HOUSING

He claims the Tories will set the house-building machine rolling by freeing Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to borrow money on the open market.

The Tories will establish a fund which will encourage provincial and municipal government to acquire serviced land at a reasonable price to pass on to the people.

A Tory government will also do away with the 11 per cent federal sales tax on building materials.

Mr. Brock believes these moves will generally stimulate industry and bring consumer prices down.

The carpenter is Social Credit candidate Lorne Lee.

Mr. Lee is Saskatchewan-born but came to Nanaimo in 1949.

He says, "We Socreds were laughed at a few years ago for our 'funny money' policy but it pulled a lot of people out of trouble in Alberta and today it's the monetary policy which many experts say will save the world economy."

POLITICAL GAMES

Mr. Lee said he believes a great many people have been hurt and feel hurt by the political games played in the last Parliament by the two old-guard parties.

He sees a national future for the Social Credit party, and thinks the build-up will begin in B.C. during this campaign.

Mr. Lee says he has the pledged support of provincial cabinet ministers Ray Williston, Dan Campbell and national Socred leader Herb Bruch.

He says, "A one-nation policy is a must but we must stop the centralization by the federal government and return to the original concept of our confederation."

14,000 MORE VOTERS

DUNCAN — Redistribution may have a considerable effect on the outcome of the vote in Cowichan-The Islands riding.

Returning officer Fred Spencer said the enumeration for the last election in 1965 showed approximately 36,000 voters.

Redistribution has raised this total to 50,000.

In the south Metchosin, Sooke, Otter Point, Shirley, Jordan River, San Juan, Cobble Hill, Mill Bay and Shawnigan Lake have all been incorporated into the riding.

And in the north it has taken in Hilliers, Coombs, Errington, Parksville and Qualicum.

FOR U.S. REVOLT

Students Seek Workers' Help

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Staff Writer

Leaders of the radical student group that disrupted college campuses across the United States during the last year now are talking of spreading their gospel of revolution to the working classes.

The objective, said one national officer of Students for a Democratic Society, is "an alliance between students and workers—like in France."

Carl Davidson, SDS national secretary, said as the first step an undisclosed number of SDS members are taking summer jobs in big-city factories and are moving into blue-collar neighborhoods.

"We will learn how the workers think and how they live," Davidson said. "Then we can organize."

SDS, which claims 35,000 members on more than 200 U.S. campuses, has made similar attempts at community organizing in the past—generally without success.

In 1963, it launched Economic Research and Action Projects in slum areas of 10 cities, but two years later dissolved the ERAP structure. "Our rhetoric sometimes gets ahead of our programs," Davidson said.

The renewed talk of expanding off campus follows two developments:

1. A year of unprecedented unrest on U.S. campuses, beginning with demonstrations against the Vietnam war and the military draft and ending with a paralysing student strike at Columbia University.

2. The wave of disorders in France, sparked by a student-worker alliance that plunged President de Gaulle's government into its gravest crisis.

Some SDS members contend the group should maintain its campus orientation, at least for the present, and forget about trying to organize workers. Thus, the proposals for community organizing may touch off debate today at the SDS' annual convention at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

SOVIET SLAMS FIGHT OF AGES

By ROBERT EVANS

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The French student revolt has brought to the surface the Kremlin's growing concern over the spread of radical revolutionary ideas among youth in the non-Communist world.

As the French student leader Daniel Cohn-Bendit proclaimed his continuing defiance of both French President de Gaulle and the French Communists, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda condemned him and his followers as "werewolves" who were splitting the workers' movement.

But observers here were struck by the fact that the Kremlin organ also found it necessary to accompany this attack with a repudiation of the teachings of Herbert Marcuse of the U.S., the German-born philosopher whose works are regarded by young radicals in the West as blueprints for action.

Marcuse's philosophy that the young are bound to rebel against their parents in both non-Communist and Communist societies is particularly unwelcome to the Soviet ideologists who deny stoutly that any conflict of generations exists here.

The Soviet theorists also reject outright Marcuse's creed that the working class in both East and West has become part of the society in which it lives to such an extent that it can no longer be regarded as a potential revolutionary force and that only alienated elements, such as the unemployed or Negroes in the United States, or students can be.

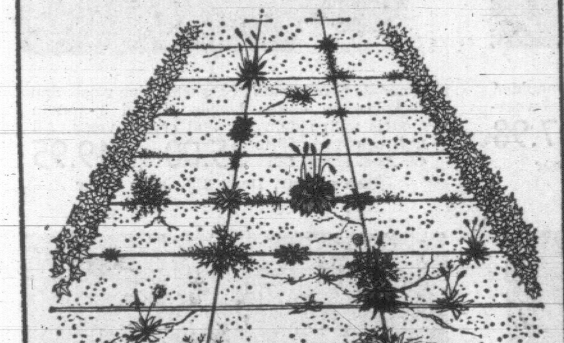
CUBA INVOLVED

Close below the surface of open Russian disapproval of the New Left is a simmering ideological dispute with Cuba and the Kremlin's disapproval of Premier Castro's guerrilla blueprint for Latin America and the "neo-colonial" world.

The influence of the late Ernesto (Che) Guevara on rebellious youth in Western Europe as well as Latin America has been studiously ignored by the Soviet press.

One of the problems for the Soviet Union is that Guevara's ideas are also spreading among foreign students in Russia who are dismayed at the Kremlin's cautious approach to revolutions abroad.

Patio or Driveway weeds?



FIGHT BACK WITH ORTHO!

TRIOX kills ugly weeds on driveways, patios, walks!

Without bending . . . without stooping . . . without digging, you can get rid of every single weed that's marring your patio, your driveways, your walks, curbs or gutters. All you do is dilute and sprinkle TRIOX. It's as simple as that.

TRIOX does more than just wipe out established weeds. It prevents new growth for as long as two full years. Seeds wither and die before they can get started again, so you can forget about the work of old-fashioned weeding for a long, long time.

ORTHO TRIOX

A word of caution. Since TRIOX application kills all vegetation, you don't want to use it on lawns or cultivated areas. For lawn weeds, use ORTHO SUPER WEED-B-GON.

Whatever your weed problem, ORTHO can have it licked this very weekend. See your garden supplier today!

Police Ignore Rebels

Thousands Take Part In French Marches

PARIS (Reuters)—Thousands of people marched through the streets of Paris and other French cities Wednesday night in open defiance of a government ban on demonstrations.

But only in Strasbourg, in eastern France near the German border, did riot police interfere, dragging away students squatting in the street outside the university.

There was none of the violence seen previously in the week which caused three deaths and led to a government ban on open air meetings until general elections June 23 and 30.

Police watched from a distance as marchers called out by students and labor unions walked quietly through Montpelier, Bordeaux, Marseille, Caen, Poitiers, Dijon and Besancon.

In Paris, members of the March 22 Movement of Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit marched around the suburban Cite Universitaire buildings housing foreign students.

They were protesting the expulsion of several foreign students accused by the government of fermenting discord and a ban on the movement and six other extreme left-wing groups.

BLAMES COMMUNISTS

But while French students and workers remained calm, politicians exchanged angry accusations in the first television appearances of the election campaign.

Premier Georges Pompidou in a prepared statement said the Communists were to blame for the recent riots.

Waldeck Rochet, Communist party secretary-general, retorted his party acted wisely to prevent establisment of a military dictatorship.

Gaullist policy "directly caused the crises and the present disorders," he alleged.

Militant car workers and employees of the state-run radio and television service virtally were the only groups still on strike today.

Talks between union leaders and employers went on at the Renault auto works at Flins, north of Paris, through the night and further discussions were arranged at the Sochaux works of the Peugeot car company where two persons died in fights earlier this week between riot police and strikers.

WIRE BRIEFS

Seventeen Injured

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)—A time bomb exploded in a cramped downtown U.S. office building at noon today, wounding 17 U.S. servicemen and South Vietnamese. Eight Americans and three Vietnamese were hospitalized in serious condition.

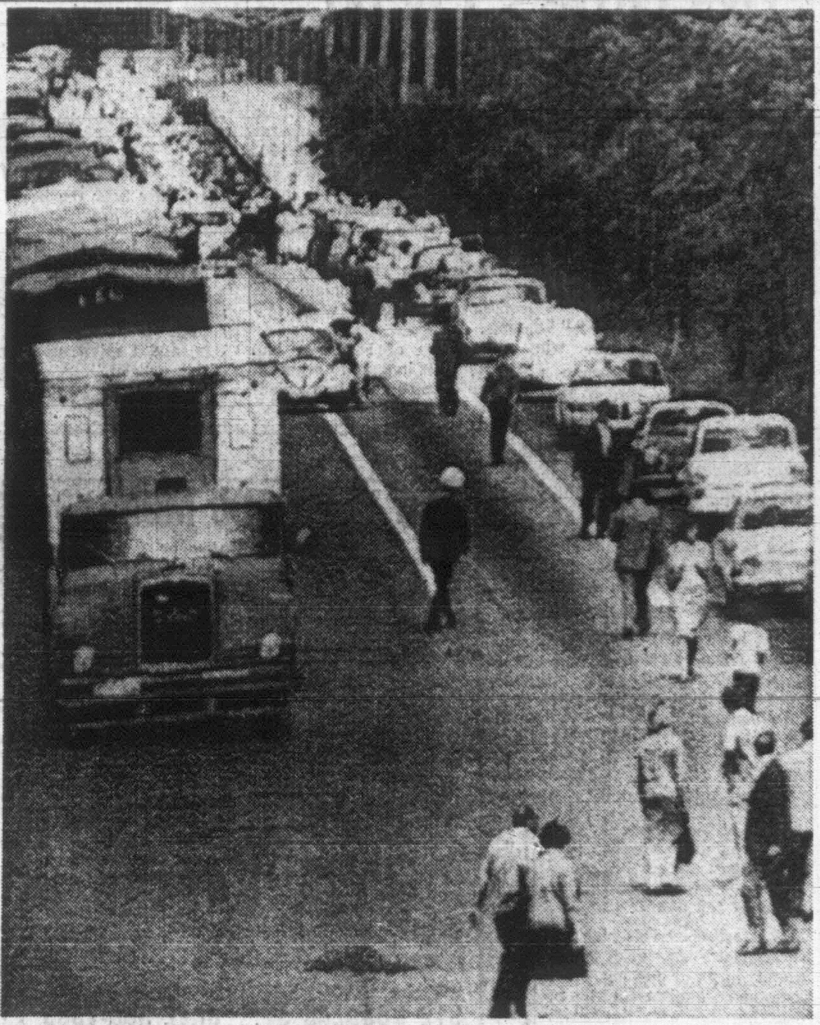
Still Negotiating

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations continued today in the British Columbia coast lumber dispute despite strike notice on the industry by 26,000 International Woodworkers of America.

Landslides Kill 12

HONK KONG (AP)—Landslides and a storm carrying 14 inches of rain killed at least 12 persons today and a number of others are missing.

Nine bodies were dug from the shattered wreckage of hillside shacks. Police said another 11 persons and possibly more were buried beneath tons of rock and silt "and there is no reasonable hope that they could live through it."



TRAFFIC JAMS UP on the autobahn from West Germany to East Germany as the East German government imposes new regulations and higher prices on autos and trucks. The line-up was taken at the Helmstedt crossing point on the autobahn. (AP Wirephoto.)

PRICES JACKED UP

East German Travel Block Worth Millions

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany today collected jacked-up prices for overland travel to West Berlin and put into effect a series of time-consuming bureaucratic regulations for travellers.

Britain, the United States and France denounced the new restrictions. By mid-morning, the measures had forced 300 trucks and thousands of cars to line up more than two miles for processing at border points.

The new regulations, which include increased freight fees, do not constitute a blockade such as that unsuccessfully imposed.

West Germans previously were able to travel by car from Berlin, a Western island surrounded by East Germany, with only their identity cards. But the new rules announced Tuesday imposed visa fees and require that West Germans obtain passports by July 15.

MAKE APPLICATION

German travellers at the Helmstedt crossing found after midnight that the East Germans had erected two tents. Entering them, they made a visa application and paid a visa fee—$1.25 for one way and $2.50 for a round trip—on the 110-mile autobahn or superhighway that runs through East Germany.

The East Germans also have imposed new taxes on goods shipped between West Germany and West Berlin.

The three Western wartime allies who still are the occupation powers in West Berlin planned official protests to the Soviet Union. They said the East German measures were "contrary to long-standing international agreements and practice, tending to deepen the division of Germany and Europe."

West German and Allied officials viewed the regulations as another East German attempt to deny the soverengity which West Germany claims over West Berlin.

West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Keisinger flew to West Berlin today to assure its 2,-

Saigon Students Seek Peace Plan

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — The students of Saigon University urged the government of Premier Tran Van Huong today to find a "realistic peace formula" to end the Vietnam war by negotiation."

The declaration issued by the central committee of the university's student association made no direct reference to negotiotions with the Viet Cong's political arm, the National Liberation Front, but seemed to suggest that was what the students had in mind.

An unknown number of students and youth leaders are in custody for advocating direct talks with the front, a course ruled out by the Saigon government.

Meanwhile a South Vietnamese minister cabled Prime Minister Tran Van Huong confirming reports that he had advocated direct talks with the National Liberation Front, government sources said here.

Dr. Phan Quang Dan, minister for the open arms defector program, was reported early this month to have suggested the talks during a speech at Stanford, Calif.

The speech caused a stir in Saigon, and the National Assembly requested a full explanation. Huong asked the minister to return home to explain the reports.

'Cocktail Party Adults Can't Give Pot Lectures'

HARRISON, B.C. (CP)—The older generation will never be able to reply to youth's demand for legalized marijuana unless it cuts out its cocktail parties, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Wednesday.

He told the annual convention of the British Columbia Pharmaceutical Association at this Fraser Valley community that young people say marijuana effects are no worse than those of alcohol.

The minister said he believes it is true that debilitating effect of marijuana is no worse than that of alcohol.

In an interview later, he said treatment of alcoholics is an enormous hospital and medical cost.

"If we are going to have publicly-financed medical and hospital services then the public has the right to expect people to live a life that will not put an undue burden on the public," he said.

The minister said it costs $30,000 to $40,000 a bed in hospital construction and another $30 to $35 a day to look after the person in it.

Attractive Girl Stood Near Gunman

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The accused assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was standing with a girl and had a "very sick looking smile on his face" when he opened fire on the senator, a grand jury was told today.

The testimony, made public today said Sirhan B. Sirhan was standing with a girl "on a tray stacker" about four to six inches off the floor in a pantry area of the Ambassador Hotel where Kennedy was shot early June 5, moments after he claimed victory in the California presidential primary.

"As he got down, he (Sirhan) was smiling," hotel waiter Vincent Thomas di Piero testified. "in fact the minute the first two shots were fired, he still had a very sick looking smile on his face. That's one thing I can never forget."

GOOD FIGURE

Di Pierro said, "the only reason I noticed him (Sirhan) was because there was a very good looking girl next to him. After the shooting I did not see her."

The witness said the girl with Sirhan was wearing a "white dress and it had either black or dark purple polka dots on it.

"She had dark hair, that was cut, I would say, just above the shoulders. She had what looked like a short nose. She wasn't too-facially, she wasn't too pretty. She was not that pretty and like I say, she had a very good figure."

NEAR KENNEDY

Di Pierro said he noticed Sirhan and the girl when he had walked up with Sen. Kennedy to an ice machine. The witness said he (Di Pierro) was within five feet of Kennedy at that moment.

"I saw him (Sirhan) get down off the tray stand and when I went to turn, the next thing I saw was him holding the gun. He kind of moved around Mr. (Karl) Uecker (assistant banquet manager of the Ambassador Hotel) and he kind of motioned around him and stuck the gun straight out and nobody could move.

"It was — you were just frozen; you didn't know what

Arabs Say Israel Massing for War

Forces Placed On Alert

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Reports reaching Amman and Beirut said today that Israeli forces are massing for a big new attack on Jordan.

There was no confirmation or comment from Israel.

Reports to Amman from the Israeli-occupied west bank of the River Jordan and a report in the Lebanese newspaper Al Nahar said all Israeli armed forces have been placed on the alert, reserves have been told to join their units, and the assembling of Israeli troops can be seen all along the hills overlooking the Jordan Valley.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban at a news conference Wednesday intimated his government might negotiate separately with the Palestine Arab community if attempts to reach a permanent peace settlement with the Arab states fails. He described Israeli contacts with the Arab community in the occupied areas as "admirable."

Al Nahar, however, reported that Israeli helicopters hovered over the town of Salt, on the east bank of the Jordan, and dropped leaflets Wednesday afternoon warning of an impending strike.

Inhabitants of Salt, the newspaper said, were told to "stay in your houses and remain quiet if the Israeli defence forces should appear to cleanse the area of saboteurs."

Salt is approximately 12 miles east of the River Jordan ceasefire line and 40 miles south of the town of Irbed, which was heavily damaged in an Israeli strike June 4.

The newspaper said about 40,000 Israeli troops were concentrated on the west bank of the river.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli army said four Israeli civilians were wounded in a brief Jordanian mortar night time attack on the settlement of Gesher, south of the Sea of Galilee.

'Arab Homes Confiscated'

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — Jordan accused Israel today of driving 5,000 Arabs from Old Jerusalem and expropriating their property.

Jordanian Ambassador Muhammed El-Farra said in a letter to Secretary - General U Thant Israel was replacing the Arabs with "thousands of Jews" to live in the former Arab dwellings and sending "thousands more" to live in buildings to be built by Israel.

30 Months For Seizing Couple

DUNCAN — The man who forcibly seized an Alberta couple in Ivy Green campsite May 15 was sentenced today to 30 months in the B.C, Penitentiary.

William Charles Smith, 38, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to the charge, which Magistrate Lance Herd said had been reduced from kidnapping, carrying a penalty of life imprisonment.

Smith acted in his own defence.

He was arrested at an RCMP roadblock in Duncan after John Howard Frank and Audrey Lois Swanson, both of Emonton got a message to a service station attendant. Smith was armed with a loaded Webley revolver and a sheathed hunting knife.

Smith had been declared mentally fit to stand trial in a report from Riverview Mental Hospital.

He was also sentenced to a concurrent term of 18 months for unlawful possession of an offensive weapon.

Relaxed Tory Chief Begins Island Tour

By BRUCE YEMEN
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield opened his Vancouver Island campaign tour here today on a folksy note.

Clutching a banana and a split-leaf philodendron which somebody handed him after he landed, Mr. Stanfield obligingly posed for photographer sitting in the Harewood Fire Department racing bathtub.

He told a crowd of about 300 at Harbor Park Shopping Plaza that he was being non-political this morning but urged Canadians to travel their country and try to understand its many points of view.

•

He thanked "those good-natured Trudeau boys" for their courteous behaviour when they infiltrated a crowd and hoisted large photographs of Prime Minister Trudeau at the plaza.

Mr. Stanfield left Vancouver without ceremony and was greeted at Cassidy airport by Geoffrey Brock, Tory candidate in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and about 25 supporters.

A 13-car motorcade accompanied the Tory leader into Nanaimo. It was infiltrated by several large and homely trucks, by accident rather than political design.

In Nanaimo Mr. Stanfield repeatedly stopped to chat with bystanders and one of them, teen-ager Ronald King of Chemainus, told reporters, "I guess he's just about the same as anybody else."

David Elgin, 11, of Nanaimo, walked up to Mr. Stanfield and asked him why he wanted to be prime minister.

"He said he wanted to make Canada better for when I grow up," said the boy.

"I think he will if he gets to be prime minister."

Early this afternoon the party leader was to address another crowd of 300 at the Tally-Ho Inn before moving on to Comox and Courtenay, where similar mainstreet appearances were planned.

•

He was to arrive in Victoria by air at about 5 p.m. and will rest at Empress Hotel until 8:30 p.m. when he is to appear at a mass rally at Memorial Arena.

Mr. Stanfield is accompanied by his wife and daughter Sarah 25 and son Max, 21.

'PM DISTORTS MY PLAN' STANFIELD COMPLAINS

Special to the Times

VANpOUVER — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday of attempting to distort his proposal for a guaranteed minimum income for those unable to earn.

"Trudeau has attempted to distort my proposal by claiming we are promising to pay everyone an unstated income." Stanfield said in a paid political telecast in Vancouver.

"That is simply Trudeau's version of my policy and it is not correct."

Stanfield said he had never pledged a guaranteed national income for everyone, but simply propose a guaranteed income for a select number of people, such as the aged and disabled who are unable to work.

Stanfield was reacting to Trudeau's statement Tuesday night that Stanfield's proposals for an eventual guaranteed income plan would cost as high as $3 billion annually.

While Stanfield did not mention any estimated cost for his selective guaranteed income plan, he said:

"Early in the campaign we committed ourselves to the goal of assisting the thousands of Canadians who live below the poverty line, namely the aged and disabled, who are prevented from earning an income through working.

DECENT INCOME

"A Conservative government would have the objective of providing them with a decent income."

At the same time, he said, the government has to encourage those able to help themselves through expanded manpower training and retraining programs.

"This would be designed for those who are physically and mentally able to work, but cannot find employment opportunities.

"We want to stop the waste and inefficiency in the present welfare system."

Stanfield denied a charge by an interviewer that he was backtracking on his minimum-income proposal.

"No, we have always spoken in these terms (of a selective guaranteed income)." he said.

An interviewer pointed out that Trudeau said the plan would cost up to $3 billion annually and quoted Trudeau as saying, "I would not make a promise if I did not know what it would cost."

Stanfield replied: "We have no intention of raising taxes. Any government I lead will not increase services until the economy expands enough to afford it."

Angry Housewives Stop St. Valentine's Day Massacre

BURNABY (CP)—A horde of housewives has stopped a re-enactment of the infamous St. Valentine's Day gangland massacre.

The housewives deluged the Brentwood Shopping Centre in this Vancouver suburb with protest telephone calls after the centre announced it would permit promoter George Patey to stage his version of the Feb. 14, 1929, slayings.

The show, a sound and light recreation—with a section of the actual bullet-riddled brick wall of a Chicago garage where the shootings took place—was to open Wednesday, but it was cancelled after about 300 protest calls.

Jack Viner, a spokesman for the centre, said most callers threatened to boycott shops if the show opened. Many also threatened to turn in their credit cards for major department stores.

One woman told the centre that if the exhibit opened, she would send her teen-age sons over to wreck it. A United Church congregation voted almost unanimously to boycott the centre.

Mr. Viner and Mr. Patey said the assassination last week of Senator Robert Kennedy apparently prompted most of the phone calls.

The show, housed in a mobile caravan, recreates the slaying of seven of Bugs Moran's gangsters by five Al Capone men dressed in police uniforms.

The market was piling up tremendous volume on the day after Wall Street took the first of a series of days off from market action in order to clear up the huge backlog of paperwork caused by record volume.

On the American Stock Exchange, too, there was a record of near-record trading volume.

Tumultuous conditions ranged on the amorphous over-the-counter market where one Wall Street source said pandemonium reigned and lines of trading houses were jammed by telephone calls.

In late dealings, American Standard preferred, up nearly a point, held the lead on volume.

Global Marine ran up more than 4, National General about 4, American Machine and Foundry, Commercial Credit and Tenneco a point or more.

Great American Holdings and RCA sagged more than a point each.

General Motors held firmly to a rise exceeding a point while other auto stocks softened. Steels were weak.

Control Data dropped 4, IBM and Raytheon 3, Union Carbide, General Foods, Penn Central and Eastern Airlines a point or more.

AT TORONTO the stock market was mixed at the close of active trading today.

On index, industrials dropped .11 to 161.60, golds rose 5.20 to 228.33, base metals climbed .66 to 103.11 and western oils advanced 4.65 to 216.64.

Final volume was 4,483,000 shares compared with 3,827,000 Wednesday.

AT VANCOUVER share values of Neon Products surged forward another $4 today during quiet morning trading.

Stock in the diversified Vancouver-based company touched a new high of $33 on a turnover of 6,785 shares. The rise comes in the wake of Neon's announced takeover bid for Imbrex a Montreal-based floor covering firm.

Imbrex share values also climbed, showing an advance of $1.25 to $12.

Prices in all sections of the market were generally strong although volume to 11 a.m. was only 951,164 shares, well below recent totals.

Kimberley Copper advanced .18 to $1.45 on a volume of 93,200 shares. Northlode was up .04 to $2.16, Interprovincial Silver moved up .06 to $2.07 and Alwin advanced .06 to $1.75.

Oil stocks were stronger with Central Del Rio up $1.12 to $18.50 Giant Reef up .09 to $1.80 and Sunlite up .10 to $6.

AT MONTREAL the exchange continued to be moderately active this afternoon.

AT LONDON Australian Nickel shares were marked sharply lower in hectic trading today.

PACIFIC LOGGING COMPANY LIMITED

The closing of the mill at Hillcrest has become the subject of considerable comment in this area.

Many suggestions have been made recently by various citizens and groups, all of whom are sincere in their attempts to find a way to extend the life of Hillcrest at Mesachie Lake.

These recent statements seem to have caused some confusion in the public's mind as to the facts of the matter and we feel that it is desirable at this time, to clarify the situation.

During the past few years, many discussions have been held between our two Companies, which explored all the possibilities under which Hillcrest could continue its operations. Every recognition was given in these discussions to the community and social interest, because of the long term association of each Company in the district.

Considerations that made a milling operation economic at Mesachie Lake 25 years ago are no longer valid and having due regard to the technological changes in milling, logging, log utilization, lumber market patterns, the location of the plant and the overall timber reserves in the area, we came to the only conclusion possible: that it was inevitable even though very much regretted by all parties, that the operation could no longer continue.

We trust that this brief statement will assist the general public in reaching a full understanding of the situation.

And Many Among Them Shall Stumble and Fall

. . . ISAIAH 9-15

By PETE LOUDON

Independent candidate in Victoria, George Burnham drew on the Bible for inspiration when he made his usual speech for readoption of the red ensign Wednesday.

Waving the Good Book before a Silver Threads audience, (see Page 17), he quoted Isaiah, champter 11, verse 12:

"And he shall set up an ensign for the nations and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."

He went on to say that Isaiah also, in chapter 32, verse 5, also relates this Biblical forecast of the present government:

"The vile person shall be no more called Liberal, nor the churl said to be bountiful."

Mr. Burnham may have opened a new and fruitful field for speechmakers.

Obviously former B.C. Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi missed a bet by not quoting Isaiah 49-11:

"I will make all my mountains a way and my highways shall be exalted."

What a wonderful day would dawn if Liquor Control Board chairman Donal McGugan should stand and quote Isaiah 55-1:

"Ho everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters and he that hath no money, come ye buy and eat, yea, come buy wine and milk without money. . . ."

Forests Minister Ray Williston could refrain from speechmaking and just issue the numbers Isaiah 55-13.

"instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree. . . ."

Opposition leader Strachan need no longer dig for eloquence when attacking government backbenchers; but just spout Isaiah 56-10:

"His watchemen are blind, they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark, sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber."

Premier Bennett's rejoinder could come from Isaiah 55-18:

"But be ye glad and rejoice forever in that which I create . . ."

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield could choose to issue Isaiah 66-21 to comfort the people caught up in the housing shortage:

"And they shall build houses and inhabit them, and they shall plant the vineyards and eat the fruit of them."

NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson (Isaiah 66-19) "And I will set a sign among them . . ."

Hydro boss Hugh Keenleyside (Isaiah 60-1) "Arise, shine, for thy light is come . . ."

Isaiah 66-4 would suit all politicians: "I also will choose their delusions and will bring their fears upon them . . ."

All seeking re-election (Isaiah 43-18): "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old."

For returning office and campaign office staffs June 25 (Isaiah) 40-30: "Even the youths shall faint and be weary and the young men shall utterly fall."

And of course, should the election bring about another minority government and the threat of another national contest, the electors might ask each other (Isaiah 1-5):

"Why should ye be stricken anymore? Ye will revolt more and more; the whole head is sick and the whole heart faint."

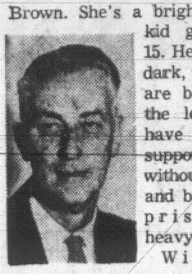
The big Shrine circus is coming to town next week with its jungle cats and acrobats, its clowns and its shambling elephants. But a Victoria girl who has a special feeling for that circus and the jolly-boy Shriners who sponsor it, won't be here to enjoy the fun.



Her name is Barbara Rae Brown. She's a bright, sweet kid going on 15. Her hair is dark, her eyes are blue, and the legs that have never supported her without boot and brace are prisoned in heavy casts.

With her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of 3205 Frechette Street, she set off by car for Portland on Wednesday morning. There, at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, the casts will be removed. Intensive therapy will follow.

When Barbara comes home, she will be almost at the end of a long, difficult painful progression. By Christmas, she hopes she will be able to do a thing she dreams of.

This is to walk into the Victoria Shrine Club's Christmas party on her own two feet.

There's another dream, and we'll come to that in due time. But first, let me tell you more about Barbara and the best friends any crippled child can have.

★

These are the fez-topped Shriners, the fellows whose convention capers and exotic parade-wear are no more than the icing on a mighty fine cake. Since 1920, this Masonic brotherhood has dedicated itself to helping crippled children throughout North America.

The Shriners have 19 orthopedic hospitals, one of which is in Montreal and the other in Winnipeg. To this string, they have added four burn-treatment centres for children.

But back to Barbara in her wheelchair, as I found her on Tuesday evening, with her casts fresh-scrubbed for the trip south:

She was born in Nelson, and when she was two years old, the Interior town's Shriners heard about her.

From that point on, young Barbara, medically-speaking, was their pigeon, and the birth-defect that kept her from walking, a Shrine concern. There have been operatins—many of them, performed by some of the finest orthopedic surgeons on this continent. There have been braces and built-to-measure boots, and endless therapy.

Last fall and winter, Barbara underwent four crucial operations in the Portland hospital which for months at a time has been her school and her second home.

A composition she wrote there begins like this:

"It was a warm, bright September afternoon, and as we walked through the forest, we saw all the beauties around us."

Walked. That's the magic word for Barbara.

★

She's a good student, smart in math and language, with three years of typing to her credit. With her to Portland this trip, she took shorthand books which she will do her best to master unaided.

It's worth noting that the family war cry is, "There's nothing we can't do."

So Barbara, when at home, helps with the cooking . . . and washes the dishes . . . and attends the Handicapped Children's Clinic . . . and in rebellion against classical music, plays swinging pop on the family piano . . . and thinks ahead to the day she calls "Uncane."

When she comes home from Portland, it will be crutches and braces for a little while more. Then a cane, which they've told her she may always need.

The Shriners and her own gallantry will bring her that far; but the girl who holds the rarely-awarded Girl Guides of Canada Badge of Fortitude cherishes a bolder dream.

Once in hospital, she watched a movie called "Five Little Pennies," in which a girl who had been similarly crippled celebrates her cure by dancing with her father.

One day, thanks to her good-doing friends in those funny little fezzes, Barbara Brown plans to throw the cane away and dance with her dad too.

Bennett Hails Wharf Scheme; 'Pay Dividends'

Premier Bennett is enthusiastic about Victoria's $30,000,000 Wharf Street waterfront development plan and says the provincial government will pay its share of the costs.

"As premier and finance minister I see no difficulty," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"Whatever is agreed on, we'll certainly do our share."

Mr. Bennett said he was "very enthusiastic" when he read about the plans in Tuesday's Daily Times.

'PAY DIVIDENDS'

"It will pay great dividends," he said.

The premier said the plans in principle appear to fit in well with the overall development of the provincial capital area.

He said British Columbia is the only province that has a capital area improvement commission and stressed that the $200,000 spent annually by the body is aimed at making the entire area beautiful.

"We're anxious to greatly improve the whole region — Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich . . ." he said.

PROVINCIAL SHARE

Projected provincial share of the more than $3,000,000 in estimated public expenditure is about $743,000. The premier made no direct comment on the figure, simply pledging the province would do its part in any three-way including municipal and federal governments.

The plan envisions an urban renewal facelift for 44 acres in the waterfront area and includes provision for high-rise apartment units, a hotel-convention centre, tourist-oriented retail outlets and pedestrian malls and parks.

Mr. Bennett was interviewed as he readied for a two week tour of the Interior and northern B.C. He left for Kelowna today.

Mayor Hugh Stephen termed the premier's reaction as "the most encouraging reaction we could receive at this time."

The mayor added that the proposed development was just a part of a continuing city program designed to give British Columbia a capital city of which all citizens could be proud.

"Coming at this time the premier's enthusiastic endorsement of the scheme is most gratifying. It means that we can move into phase two of the study and the eventual actual implementation of the scheme with a great deal of confidence.

"We know that Ottawa looks on the project with favor, and now with the premier supporting us we can look forward to moving ahead at the earliest possible moment."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh also expressed pleasure at the premier's reaction.

ALL LEVELS AGREE

"It is very reassuring to know that all levels of government like what has been done to this time and what we propose to do in the near future," he said.

"But I think it should be pointed out that whatever the three levels of government do, the success of the scheme depends entirely on private enterprise.

"Government has demonstrated and will continue to demonstrate its confidence—it's up to private enterprise now to make the proposals work."

City manager Dennis Young agreed.

"We can't help but be happy at the premier's enthusiastic support," he said. "I think it demonstrates that although there has been some criticism over the time taken to prepare the report, the consultants and our city planning staff did their homework well.

"I am sure that with the premier as a supporter, private enterprise will realize that the Wharf Street waterfront proposals offer the most exciting development prospects in Canada today."

Theft from Mails Brings 6 Months For 18-Year-Old

An 18-year-old was sentenced today to six months in prison for theft from the mails.

Stephen Lambert, of 4649 Cordova Bay Road, was an employee of a messenger company contracted to deliver special delivery letters.

He was arrested June 5 after two special investigators for the post office sent marked special delivery letters to themselves.

The letters were not delivered. Lambert pleaded guilty to the charge.

Magistrate Ostler told the accused the offence "strikes at the heart of one of the vital services to the country."

Sayward Man May Have Shot Rare Island Variety Wolf

Did a Sayward man kill the one and only wolf on Vancouver Island?

It all happened early this week when Mrs. Andy Zaplottiski looked out of her farm house window and was startled to see a wolf staring back at her.

It was about 40 feet from the house and gazing intently at it.

She hollered for her husband but by the time he had hung up the phone and grabbed his rifle, the animal had vanished.

Monday it was back!

This time it was behind the house on the Zaplotiskis' 30 acres of partly cleared property, three miles north of Sayward.

From a distance of about 100 feet it was again looking intently at the building. This time Mr. Zaplotiski dropped it with a single shot.

"It's definitely a wolf," said Don Blood in Nanaimo today. He is regional wildlife biologist for Vancouver Island with the fish and wildlife branch of the provincial government.

The question still unanswered is whether it is one of the last wolves native to Vancouver Island.

They are a sub-species or variety, explained Mr. Blood. Such fine differences are generally determined by minute differences in skull measurement.

WEIGHED 76 POUNDS

The dead wolf was a male, weighed 76 pounds and was a little over five feet long, dark on the back and a golden brown on its sides.

Wolves have a different shaped face from wolf-like dogs, said the biologist. They have a slim lanky build with long legs and large feet.

They are usually furtive and Mr. Blood is at a loss to account for this one's behavior.

The Vancouver Island variety is rare—so rare it has been classified as in danger of extinction by the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

Are they worth saving?

"We think so," said the biologist. "Just the fact that they are here makes them of value."

They are not generally a menace and for several years have been classified as a game animal which means a licence is required to hunt them.

Wildlife authorities are thinking of putting the Island wolf on the protected list. Before the First World War it was quite common but has dwindled over the years.

A specimen was last shot 15 years ago.

"Man doesn't gain anything by wiping ou an animal," said Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the provincial museum.

Mrs. Zaplotiski said today her neighbors report there is a second wolf in the area, about 15 miles north of Campbell River.

That's not all.

Wednesday morning she called her husband out of bed to get a bear off their property.

Fair Selected To 'Dump' Drug

Middle Man Testifies At Hearing

An American had "set up a deal with about 30 guys" for the distribution of narcotics at the Jaycee Fair, central court was told today.

Philip Palucci, of Pennsylvania, employed on the midway at the time of the fair, was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Maruice Racine, 20, 739 Kings.

Racine was charged with possession of marijuana for trafficking after police said they seized 1¼ pounds of Marijuana from a car near the fair.

MIDDLE MAN

Palucci said he was to be the middle man in a deal to "dump" the marijuana.

Asked by defence counsel Don Farquhar if he went around the country doing this, Palucci replied "Oh yea, it keeps people happy."

Palucci said there was nothing in itfor him. he just did it for "friendship."

Police said the witness is in custody and is to be deported for illegal entry into Canada.

A second witness, 20-year-old Rajindar Singh, who said he was the driver of the car involved, testified Racine and another man asked him if he would keep the marijuana in his car overnight May 13, but he said he did not see if Racine actually put anything in the car.

RCMP Const. Daniel Creally testified he found a large green bag containing several smaller bags of green plant like material under the back seat of the car on the morning of May 14.

Racine was arrested on a warrant later that day at the fair. The hearing is continuing.

B.C. NURSES GOING AHEAD WITH STRIKE VOTE FRIDAY

The Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia said Wednesday it is going ahead with its government-supervised strike vote Friday despite possible government intervention.

"If nothing is done to meet nurses' demands we will have to proceed on the course we are taking," said Evelyn Hood, the association's personnel director.

However, she said that if the provincial government brings its newly-created mediation commission into the dispute and it advances a binding decision, the nurses will discard any strike plans.

12 DAYS TO GO

Rain Big Concern Of Grit Planners

Use of Beacon Hill Park for an open-air rally for Prime Minister Trudeau Monday has now been given full approval by Victoria City Hall.

The prime minister will speak at about 8 p.m. on the south slope near the Mile Zero sign. He'll arrive on the scene by helicopter.

From there the PM travels to the airport in an open car, with a brief pause at Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Big concern of the Liberal campaigners now is whether or not it will rain Monday night.

If it does, what happens? Victoria campaign manager Alan Cox was asked. His reply "Mass suicide."

There are plans for a sudden shift to Esquimalt Arena in event of a deluge but the shift won't be lightly made.

The PM, incidentally, will be flying here direct from a one-hour telecast at Vancouver which will be carried over channels 6 and 8 at 6:30 p.m. He goes from here to Calgary.

National Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield will have one advantage over his rivals by being the first "big gun" to speak to local audiences.

People who are voting in the advance polls can do so with his words ringing in their ears; but the advance poll will be completed before the Liberal and NDP leaders speak.

The advance poll voting takes place Saturday and Monday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.. closing an hour later than the regular polls on June 25. Mr. Stanfield will be here tonight at Memorial Arena, 8:30.

Prime Minister Trudeau will be here Monday night but voters will have time to do little more than see him before the advance polls close. Mr. Douglas doesn't appear until June 23. He'll have the last word before the general voting begins.

The advance poll, for people who intend to be out of their own polling division on election day, will be conducted at various places.

In Victoria — Victoria West, Central Junior Secondary, S. J. Willis Junior Secomdary, Sir James Douglas, Monteray and Uplands schools.

In Esquimalt-Saanich K of P Hall, Sidney; St. Luke's Church Hall, St. Martin's-In-The-Field Hall, Esquimalt United Church Hall and St. Matthew's Parish Hall, Langford.

Victoria returning officer Dave Wilson says its' too late now to change location of some polling places where there were complaints about stairs. But he says anyone who can't handle the stairs should phone him and "I'll see they have an opportunity to vote." Number is 386-6384.

Fernwood Ladies March to a Snappy Self-Help Tune

By PETE LOUDON

If there was to be a poor people's march in Victoria, most of the Fernwood Ladies would be qualified for the first platoon.

Not that they'd be there. They're not much for demonstrating, weeping or complaining. But they're a snappy bunch when it comes to doing.

Take last week when they heard about the girl they call Val—a young wife, her husband melted away with the winter snows and she, not only left to care for a two-year-old, but in hospital having a new baby.

Prior to going to hospital Val's toddler had been with grandparents but they didn't have room for another baby they said. She could get welfare assistance. She couldn't get a place to live.

There's a woman salesman with a city real estate firm who's a soft touch in situations like this. She ran her feet off looking but the best she could come up with was an unfurnished apartment. And Val didn't have anything to put in it.

And that's where the Fernwood Ladies came in. They call themselves ladies rather than just women because although half of them are on welfare and almost all have experienced some family troubles, they aim to maintain a ladylike manner in meeting their problems.

They came together through a mutual association with the Family and Children's Service and Children's Aid workers at the field office at Fernwood and Gladstone. Like the mothers of the better known Low Income Group, they're a self-help organization, pooling their efforts to give each other a break from housework, in painting bees, or canvassing for the Red Shield.

Sometimes they just get together to swap ways of stretching a pound of hamburger to feed a houseful of kids.

It was their vice-president Mrs. June Akehurst who spent four hours on the phone marshalling the Fernwood Ladies to help Val. She was on the verge of giving up her new baby to adoption.

Not any more. The Fernwood gals came up with a chesterfield, dishes, bedding, curtains, pots, pans, even some baby toys.

One member throughout her personal distress had carefully preserved a dinner set for better days—kept it packed away where she could count on finding it. It went to Val. So did enough clothes to keep both infants going for years.

What the Fernwood Ladies didn't have they cadged from relatives and friends. That's how they got some male muscle and trucks and cars for the supply line too.

Why didn't they draw on their own experiences and call in the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, St. Vincent de Paul Society—or just leave the matter to the professional social workers?

"It occurred to us," said Mrs. Akehurst, "but sometimes there are waits and delays, you know brick walls. We went ahead and did it so fast the welfare worker was outpaced."

And here's the kicker—to be thrown in the teeth of the next person who tells you the trouble with people on welfare is they won't help themselves:

"We wanted to show we just don't sit back and say 'gimmee.'

"We wanted to do it without asking others for help."

For once, the Fernwood Ladies wanted to feel rich.

And they are, aren't they?

Police Ignore Rebels

Thousands Take Part In French Marches

PARIS (Reuters)—Thousands of people marched through the streets of Paris and other French cities Wednesday night in open defiance of a government ban on demonstrations.

But only in Strasbourg, in eastern France near the German border, did riot police interfere, dragging away students squatting in the street outside the university.

There was none of the violence seen previously in the week which caused three deaths and led to a government ban on open air meetings until general elections June 23 and 30.

Police watched from a distance as marchers called out by students and labor unions walked quietly through Montpelier, Bordeaux, Marseille, Caen, Poitiers, Dijon and Besancon.

In Paris, members of the March 22 Movement of Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit marched around the suburban Cite Universitaire buildings housing foreign students.

They were protesting the expulsion of several foreign students accused by the government of fermenting discord and a ban on the movement and six other extreme left-wing groups.

BLAMES COMMUNISTS

But while French students and workers remained calm, politicians exchanged angry accusations in the first television appearances of the election campaign.

Premier Georges Pompidou in a prepared statement said the Communists were to blame for the recent riots.

Waldeck Rochet, Communist party secretary-general, retorted his party acted wisely to prevent establishment of a military dictatorship.

Gaullist policy "directly caused the crises and the present disorders," he alleged.

Militant car workers and employees of the state-run radio and television service virtually were the only groups still on strike today.

Talks between union leaders and employers went on at the Renault auto works at Flins, north of Paris, through the night and further discussions were arranged at the Sochaux works of the Peugeot car company where two persons died in fights earlier this week between riot police and strikers.

WIRE BRIEFS

Seventeen Injured

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)—A time bomb exploded in a cramped downtown U.S. office building at noon today, wounding 17 U.S. servicemen and South Vietnamese. Eight Americans and three Vietnamese were hospitalized in serious condition.

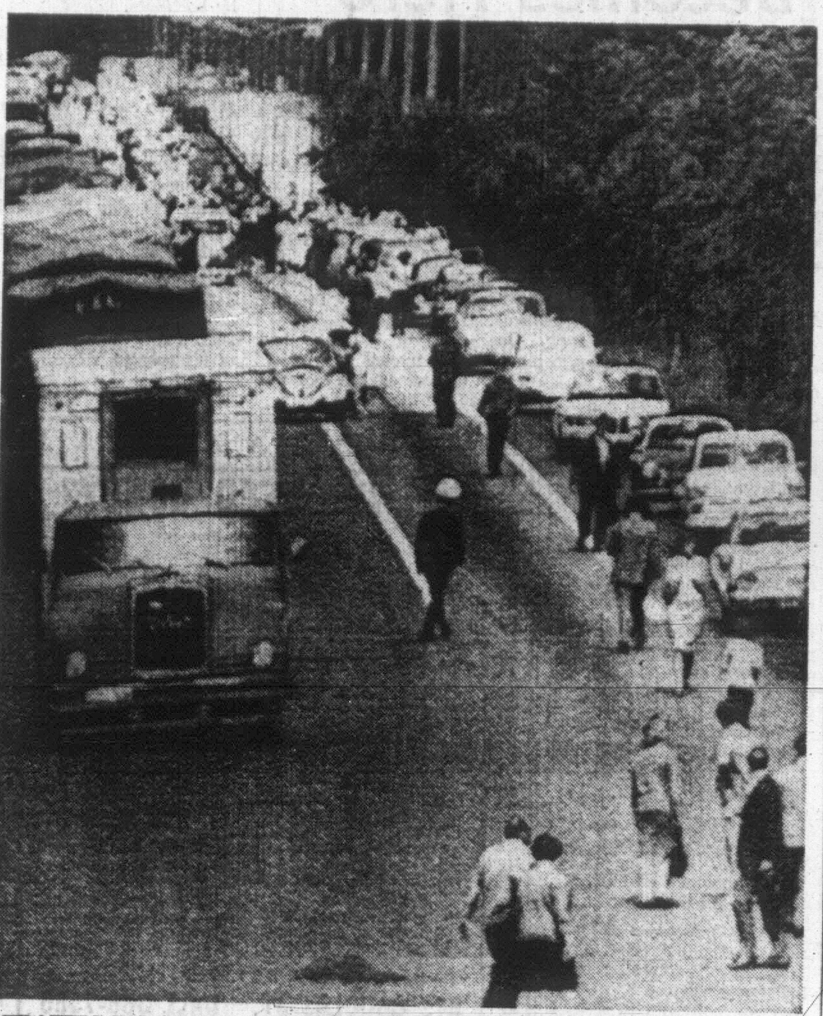
Still Negotiating

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations continued today in the British Columbia coast lumber dispute despite strike notice on the industry by 26,000 International Woodworkers of America.

Landslides Kill 12

HONK KONG (AP)—Landslides and a storm carrying 14 inches of rain killed at least 12 persons today and a number of others are missing.

Nine bodies were dug from the shattered wreckage of hillside shacks. Police said another 11 persons and possibly more were buried beneath tons of rock and silt "and there is no reasonable hope that they could live through it."



TRAFFIC JAMS UP on the autobahn from West Germany to East Germany as the East German government imposes new regulations and higher fees on autos and trucks. The line-up was taken at the Helmstedt crossing point on the autobahn. (AP Wirephoto.)

PRICES JACKED UP

East German Travel Block Worth Millions

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany today collected jacked-up prices for overland travel to West Berlin and put into effect a series of time-consuming bureaucratic regulations for travellers.

Britain, the United States and France denounced the new restrictions. By mid-morning, the measures had forced 300 trucks and thousands of cars to line up more than two miles for processing at border points.

The new regulations, which include increased freight fees, do not constitute a blockade such as that unsuccessfully imposed.

West Germans previously were able to travel by car from Berlin, a Western island surrounded by East Germany, with only their identity cards. But the new rules announced Tuesday imposed visa fees and require that West Germans obtain passports by July 15.

MAKE APPLICATION

German travellers at the Helmstedt crossing found after midnight that the East Germans had erected two tents. Entering them, they made a visa application and paid a visa fee—$1.25 for one way and $2.50 for a round trip—on the 110-mile autobahn or superhighway that runs through East Germany.

The East Germans also have imposed new taxes on goods shipped between West Germany and West Berlin.

The three Western wartime allies who still are the occupation powers in West Berlin planned official protests to the Soviet Union. They said the East German measures were "contrary to long-standing international agreements and practice, tending to deepen the division of Germany and Europe."

West German and Allied officials viewed the regulations as another East German attempt to deny the sovereignty which West Germany claims over West Berlin.

West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger flew to West Berlin today to assure its 2,-

Saigon Students Seek Peace Plan

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — The students of Saigon University urged the government of Premier Tran Van Huong today to find a "realistic peace formula" to end the Vietnam war by negotiation."

The declaration issued by the central committee of the university's student association made no direct reference to negotiotions with the Viet Cong's political arm, the National Liberation Front, but seemed to suggest that was what the students had in mind.

An unknown number of students and youth leaders are in custody for advocating direct talks with the front, a course ruled out by the Saigon government.

Meanwhile a South Vietnamese minister cabled Prime Minister Tran Van Huong confirming reports that he had advocated direct talks with the National Liberation Front, government sources said here.

Dr. Phan Quang Dan, minister for the open arms defector program, was reported early this month to have suggested the talks during a speech at Stanford, Calif.

The speech caused a stir in Saigon, and the National Assembly requested a full explanation. Huong asked the minister to return home to explain the reports.

'Cocktail Party Adults Can't Give Pot Lectures'

HARRISON, B.C. (CP)—The older generation will never be able to reply to youth's demand for legalized marijuana unless it cuts out its cocktail parties, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Wednesday.

He told the annual convention of the British Columbia Pharmaceutical Association at this Fraser Valley community that young people say marijuana effects are no worse than those of alcohol.

The minister said he believes it is true that debilitating effect of marijuana is no worse than that of alcohol.

In an interview later, he said treatment of alcoholics is an enormous hospital and medical cost.

"If we are going to have publicly-financed medical and hospital services then the public has the right to expect people to live a life that will not put an undue burden on the public," he said.

The minister said it costs $30,000 to $40,000 a bed in hospital construction and another $30 to $35 a day to look after the person in it.

Attractive Girl Stood Near Gunman

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The accused assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was standing with a girl and had a "very sick looking smile on his face" when he opened fire on the senator, a grand jury was told.

The testimony, made public today said Sirhan B. Sirhan was standing with a girl "on a tray stacker" about four to six inches off the floor in a pantry area of the Ambassador Hotel where Kennedy was shot early June 5, moments after he claimed victory in the California presidential primary.

"As he got down, he (Sirhan) was smiling," hotel waiter Vincent Thomas di Pierro testified. "In fact the minute the first two shots were fired, he still had a very sick looking smile on his face. That's one thing I can never forget."

GOOD FIGURE

Di Pierro said, "the only reason I noticed him (Sirhan) was because there was a very good looking girl next to him. After the shooting I did not see her."

The witness said the girl with Sirhan was wearing a "white dress and it had either black or dark purple polka dots on it.

"She had dark hair, that was cut, I would say, just above the shoulders. She had what looked like a short nose. She wasn't too-facially, she wasn't too pretty. She was not that pretty and like I say, she had a very good figure."

NEAR KENNEDY

Di Pierro said he noticed Sirhan and the girl when he had walked up with Sen. Kennedy to an ice machine. The witness said he (Di Pierro) was within five feet of Kennedy at that moment.

"I saw him (Sirhan) get down off the tray stand and when I went to turn, the next thing I saw was him holding the gun. He kind of moved around Mr. (Karl) Uecker (assistant banquet manager of the Ambassador Hotel) and he kind of motioned around him and stuck the gun straight out and nobody could move.

"It was — you were just frozen; you didn't know what

Arabs Say Israel Massing for War

Forces Placed On Alert

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Reports reaching Amman and Beirut said today that Israeli forces are massing for a big new attack on Jordan.

There was no confirmation or comment from Israel.

Reports to Amman from the Israeli-occupied west bank of the River Jordan and a report in the Lebanese newspaper Al Nahar said all Israeli armed forces have been placed on the alert, reserves have been told to join their units, and the assembling of Israeli troops can be seen all along the hills overlooking the Jordan Valley.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban at a news conference Wednesday intimated his government might negotiate separately with the Palestine Arab community if attempts to reach a permanent peace settlement with the Arab states fails. He described Israeli contacts with the Arab community in the occupied areas as "admirable."

Al Nahar, however, reported that Israeli helicopters hovered over the town of Salt, on the east bank of the Jordan, and dropped leaflets Wednesday afternoon warning of an impending strike.

Inhabitants of Salt, the newspaper said, were told to "stay in your houses and remain quiet if the Israeli defence forces should appear to cleanse the area of saboteurs."

Salt is approximately 12 miles east of the River Jordan ceasefire line and 40 miles south of the town of Irbed, which was heavily damaged in an Israeli strike June 4.

The newspaper said about 40,000 Israeli troops were concentrated on the west bank of the river.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli army said four Israeli civilians were wounded in a brief Jordanian mortar night time attack on the settlement of Gesher, south of the Sea of Galilee.

'Arab Homes Confiscated'

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — Jordan accused Israel today of driving 5,000 Arabs from Old Jerusalem and expropriating their property.

Jordanian Ambassador Muhammed El-Farra said in a letter to Secretary-General U Thant Israel was replacing the Arabs with "thousands of Jews" to live in the former Arab dwellings and sending "thousands more" to live in buildings to be built by Israel.

30 Months For Seizing Couple

DUNCAN—The man charged with forcibly seizing an Alberta couple in Ivy Green campsite May 15 was sentenced today to 30 months in the B.C, Penitentiary.

William Charles Smith, 38, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to the charge, which Magistrate Lance Heard said had been reduced from kidnapping, carrying a penalty of life imprisonment.

Smith acted in his own defence.

He was arrested at an RCMP roadblock in Duncan after John Howard Frank and Audrey Lois Swanson, both of Emonton got a message to a service station attendant. Smith was armed with a loaded Webley revolver and a sheathed hunting knife.

Smith had been declared mentally fit to stand trial in a report from Riverview Mental Hospital.

He was also sentenced to a concurrent term of 18 months for unlawful possession of an offensive weapon.

PIPED TO TOWN after arrival at Vancouver airport Wednesday are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanfield, who are scheduled to land at Victoria airport about 5 p.m. today. The national Conservative leader will address rally in Memorial Arena at 8:30 p.m. today. (CP Wirephoto.)

Relaxed Tory Chief Begins Island Tour

By BRUCE YEMEN
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield opened his Vancouver Island campaign tour here today on a folksy note.

Clutching a banana and a split-leaf philodendron which somebody handed him after he landed, Mr. Stanfield obligingly posed for photographers sitting in the Harewood Fire Department racing bathtub.

He told a crowd of about 300 at Harbor Park Shopping Plaza that he was being nonpolitical this morning but urged Canadians to travel their country and try to understand its many points of view.

●

He thanked "those good-natured Trudeau boys" for their courteous behaviour when they infiltrated a crowd and hoisted large photographs of Prime Minister Trudeau at the plaza.

Mr. Stanfield left Vancouver without ceremony and was greeted at Cassidy airport by Jeffrey Brock, Tory candidate in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and about 25 supporters.

A 13-car motorcade accompanyied the Tory leader into Nanaimo. It was infiltrated by several large and homely trucks, by accident rather than political design.

In Nanaimo Mr. Stanfield repeatedly stopped to chat with bystanders and one of them, teen-ager Ronald King of Chemainus, told reporters, "I guess he's just about the same as anybody else."

David Elgin, 11, of Nanaimo, walked up to Mr. Stanfield and asked him why he wanted to be prime minister.

"He said he wanted to make Canada better for when I grow up," said the boy.

"I think he will if he gets to be prime minister."

Early this afternoon the party leader was to address another crowd of 300 at the Tally-Ho Inn before moving on to Comox and Courtenay, where similar mainstreet appearances were planned.

●

He was to arrive in Victoria by air at about 5 p.m. and will rest at Empress Hotel until 8:30 p.m. when he is to appear at a mass rally at Memorial Arena.

Mr. Stanfield is accompanied by his wife and daughter Sarah 25 and son Max, 21.

'PM DISTORTS MY PLAN' STANFIELD COMPLAINS

Special to the Times

VANCOUVER — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday of attempting to distort his proposal for a guaranteed minimum income for those unable to earn.

"Trudeau has attempted to distort my proposal by claiming we are promising to pay everyone an unstated income." Stanfield said in a paid political telecast in Vancouver.

"That is simply Trudeau's version of my policy and it is not correct."

Stanfield said he had never pledged a guaranteed national income for everyone, but simply propose a guaranteed income for a select number of people, such as the aged and disabled who are unable to work.

Stanfield was reacting to Trudeau's statement Tuesday night that Stanfield's proposals for an eventual guaranteed income plan would cost as high as $3 billion annually.

While Stanfield did not mention any estimated cost for his selective guaranteed income plan, he said:

"Early in the campaign we committed ourselves to the goal of assisting the thousands of Canadians who live below the poverty line, namely the aged and disabled, who are prevented from earning an income through working.

DECENT INCOME

"A Conservative government would have the objective of providing them with a decent income."

At the same time, he said, the government has to encourage those able to help themselves through expanded manpower training and retraining programs.

"This would be designed for those who are physically and mentally able to work, but cannot find employment opportunities.

"We want to stop the waste and inefficiency in the present welfare system."

Stanfield denied a charge by an interviewer that he was backtracking on his minimum-income proposal.

"No, we have always spoken in these terms (of a selective guaranteed income)." he said.

An interviewer pointed out that Trudeau said the plan would cost up to $3 billion annually and quoted Trudeau as saying, "I would not make a promise if I did not know what it would cost."

Stanfield replied: "We have no intention of raising taxes. Any government I lead will not increase services until the economy expands enough to afford it."

Angry Housewives Stop St. Valentine's Day Massacre

BURNABY (CP)—A horde of housewives has stopped a re-enactment of the infamous St. Valentine's Day gangland massacre.

The housewives deluged the Brentwood Shopping Centre in this Vancouver suburb with protest telephone calls after the centre announced it would permit promoter George Patey to stage his version of the Feb. 14, 1929, slayings.

The show, a sound and light re-creation—with a section of the actual bullet-riddled brick wall of a Chicago garage where the shootings took place—was to open Wednesday, but it was cancelled after about 300 protest calls.

Jack Viner, a spokesman for the centre, said most callers threatened to boycott shops if the show opened. Many also threatened to turn in their credit cards for major department stores.

One woman told the centre that if the exhibit opened, she would send her teen-age sons over to wreck it. A United Church congregation voted almost unanimously to boycott the centre.

Mr. Viner and Mr. Patey said the assassination last week of Senator Robert Kennedy apparently prompted most of the phone calls.

The show, housed in a mobile caravan, recreates the slaying of seven of Bugs Moran's gangsters by five Al Capone men dressed in police uniforms.

TWO-WEEK VISA PROTESTED

Agitator's Visit Ires U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Conservative members of Parliament today protested the Labor government's decision to let Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit into Britain for two weeks to appear on a radio-television program Students in Revolt.

The critics feared he would incite British students whose scattered rebellions have been a pale imitation of the Continental ones.

Cohn-Bendit, 23, German-born idol of France's rioting students, arrived in England Tuesday night to appear with student dissidents from other countries on the BBC program. Admitted for 24 hours only, he was given a two-week visa Wednesday.

Patrick Wall, a Conservative MP who was beaten up by Leeds University students three weeks ago, called the government decision "very foolish."

TIME TO ORGANIZE

"This means that with Tariq Ali (a Pakistani organizer of British student demonstrations) he has two weeks to organize whatever trouble he can at British universities," Wall added.

"I understand the French government regards it as an unfriendly act that we have let him in. Anyway, we have quite enough student agitators of our own."

Danny, called "the Red" because of the red hair he dyed black to slip back into France recently, said he may try to visit the United States and Soviet Union.

Although coming to Britain with 10 other students to take part in the BBC program to be shown tonight, his main activity likely will centre on a three-hour seminar on studentt protests at the London School of Economics.

The conference, set for Friday and Saturday, will see about 200 youthful radicals trying to organize a British equivalent of student groups which set off widespread agitation in France and West Germany.

The projected organization would oppose control of education by "the ruling class," fight "imperialism," denounce restrictions on immigration and work for greater employee control of factories.

Cohn-Bendit told students Wednesday night he will seek to set up a "Free French" resistance movement against the man who organized the first "Free French" movement in London—President de Gaulle.

Pope Takes Mass to Beach

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI, concerned that so many Italians forsake the church for the seaside, headed for the beach today to take the church to the people. The Pope was to celebrate mass at Ostia Lido, the favorite beach of Romans since the days of Julius Caesar. The holy day is the Feast of Corpus Christi.

Law Reform Commission Planned to Update B.C. Statutes

VERNON (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today announced that a law reform commission will be established in British Columbia.

Speaking at the opening session of the joint meeting of the Canadian Bar Association's B.C. branch and the Law Society of B.C., Mr. Peterson said the commission would likely consist of five to seven members who would "be of great help to us in simplifying and updating law."

"Illustrations would include the law of landlord and tenant, the whole statute of limitations and other limitations scattered throughout other statutes, the four or five statutes dealing with the courts, together with the Laws Declaratory Act which might be revised into one judicature act, the legislation dealing with jails and probation services, some of which require rescuing from antiquity, and a new jury act."

Mr. Peterson said also to be examined is "the whole of our legislation on personal property security transactions now dealt with by way of chattel mortgages, conditional sales, bills of sale, bulk sales and other chattel securities."

Mr. Peterson, who became attorney general May 27 following the resignation of Robert Bonner, said the law reform commission would not interfere with the "normal day-to-day activity" of the attorney - general's department but would supplement and add continuing review to the existing methods of improving B.C. laws."

"I think the work of such a commission would be extremely helpful to those of us who have responsibility for framing new laws or administering existing laws," Mr. Peterson said. "In this respect I think the sections of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association could well be assigned specific work."

"As well, the University of British Columbia law faculty presents a most fertile field for research work."

Mr. Peterson said he had not yet determined the precise constitution of the law reform committee or worked out the detailed terms of reference for it. He said he would welcome suggestions as to the topics that should be referred to it but "it would be my intention to refer specific problems for their consideration."

FRET FOR MET

Carried off field after stumble near first base, New York slugger Ron Swoboda gave Mets' anxious moment during National League baseball game at Los Angeles on Wednesday. Injury proved to be ankle sprain, not break. Carrying Swoboda are Ed Kranepool and Ed Charles. (AP Wirephoto.)

Hot Cards Cooled By Atlanta Hurler

By Associated Press

Pat Jarvis dazzled St. Louis Cardinals with speed to end a long-standing hex on Atlanta Braves.

Jarvis, Atlanta's hard-throwing right-hander, hurled a three-hitter Wednesday night as the Braves drubbed the National League leaders 7-1.

New York Mets, blanked by Don Drysdale for eight innings, caught up with the Los Angeles shutout king in the ninth and nipped the Dodgers 2-1.

San Francisco Giants trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and Chicago Cubs downed Cincinnati Reds 4-1 in afternoon action. Houston was rained out at Philadelphia.

Jarvis (6-4) held St. Louis hitless until the fifth inning and drove in the only two runs he needed with a pair of singles as Atlanta cooled off the sizzling Cardinals with a 13-hit attack.

The Cards had won 13 of their previous 15 starts and had beaten the Braves 10 times in a row, sweeping their first six meetings this season.

HITS DEFEAT CARDS

Hank Aaron clubbed a two-run homer, Tito Francona laced a bases-empty homer and two singles and Marty Martinez socked two doubles and a triple in the Braves' assault against loser Nelson Briles and three St. Louis relievers.

Drysdale, who set an all-time record of 58 2-3 scoreless innings in succession last Saturday night before Pittsburgh clipped him for a run, went into the ninth inning against the Mets with a five-hitter and a 1-0 lead.

But with one out Art Shamsky singled off the glove of second baseman Paul Popovich and J. C. Martin followed with a double to left centre, scoring pinch runner Dick Selma with the tying run and driving Drysdale from the mound.

Jerry Groge then greeted reliever Jack Billingham with a run-scoring single, giving the Mets their third victory in a row over the Dodgers at Los Angeles.

DRYSDALE SLIPS

Drysdale, who had appeared headed for his eighth straight triumph and eighth shutout of the year, slipped to 8-4. Al Jackson picked up the victory in relief of rookie Nolan Ryan, who wild pitched the Dodgers' run home in the fourth and left for a pinch hitter in the eighth after yielding six hits.

Hal Lanier scored the tie-breaking run at San Francisco as second baseman Bill Mazeroski booted Dave Marshall's two-out grounder in the seventh inning. Jim Hart's 12th homer gave the Giants an insurance run in the eighth.

Mazeroski's error pinned the loss on Jim Bunning (3-8) while Bob Bolin, making only his second start of the season, posted his first victory with late help from reliever Frank Linzy.

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., pitched a five-hitter and Ron Santo delivered two runs with a double and his 10th homer, leading the Cubs past Cincinnati.

Only two games were played in the American circuit as rain washed out three other scheduled games. John Odom hurled a seven-hitter and smacked a home run as Oakland Athletics blanked Cleveland Indians 7-0 and Detroit Tigers edged Minnesota Twins 2-1.

The victory boosted Tigers five games ahead of second-place Baltimore Orioles, one of the clubs idled Wednesday.

Defenders Upset By Skillings, Hill

Roger Skillings and Nancy Hill gained final berths of mixed doubles competition at the Victoria Racquet Club's annual tennis tournament during play Wednesday.

Combining well, they upset defending champions Ted Smythe and Sally Wood 6-4, 8-6, and meet John Fraser and Theo Booker in the final Saturday.

In the Oak Bay Club tournament, results stayed true to form Wednesday as Felicity Graham and Faith Graham advanced to the women's doubles final with a 6-1, 7-5 win over Ivy Hill and Janet Kenny.

Tonight's draws and starting times:

Barry's Standbys Doing Their Duty

It may be embarassing to playing-manager Barry Cosier to know that he isn't being missed.

He's on the injured list but his replacements on the Independents' roster are filling in quite nicely, as was the case Wednesday when the Senior Amateur Baseball League squad clipped Orphans 2-1 at Layritz Park.

Acting as manager for the injured Cosier, John Martin took a walk to lead off the bottom of the first inning.

Ken Hawkins, taking over at shortstop for Cosier, promptly followed with a home run to give Independents all the runs they needed

Tom Sallaway pitched a five-hitter, striking out 10 batters and walking only three, for his fourth win in five starts.

O'Keefes Appoint Metcalfe

Jack Metcalfe, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria District Soccer League for several years, was named Wednesday as successor to manager Frank Grealy of the Pacific Coast League's Victoria O'Keefes.

Metcalfe, 44, was a member of the old Esquimalt team and managed the now-defunct Evcoes.

And Many Among Them Shall Stumble and Fall

. . . ISAIAH 9-15

By PETE LOUDON

Independent candidate in Victoria, George Burnham drew on the Bible for inspiration when he made his usual speech for re-adoption of the red ensign Wednesday.

Waving the Good Book before a Silver Threads audience, (see Page 17), he quoted Isaiah, chapter 11, verse 12:

"And He shall set up an ensign for the nations and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."

He went on to say that Isaiah in chapter 32, verse 5, also relates this Biblical forecast of the present government:

"The vile person shall be no more called Liberal, nor the churl said to be bountiful."

Mr. Burnham may have opened a new and fruitful field for speechmakers.

Obviously former B.C. Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi missed a bet by not quoting Isiaiah 49-11:

"I will make all my mountains a way and my highways shall be exalted."

What a wonderful day would dawn if Liquor Control Board chairman Donald McGugan should stand and quote Isaiah 55-1:

"Ho everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters and he that hath no money, come ye buy and eat, yea, come buy wine and milk without money. . . ."

Forests Minister Ray Williston could refrain from speechmaking and just issue the numbers Isaiah 55-13.

"Instead of the thorn snall come up the fir tree. . . ."

Opposition leader Strachan need no longer dig for eloquence when attacking government backbenchers; but just spout Isaiah 56-10:

"His watchemen are blind, they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark, sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber."

Premier Bennett's rejoinder could come from Isaiah 55-18:

"But be ye glad and rejoice forever in that which I create . . ."

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield could choose to issue Isaiah 66-21 to comfort the people caught up in the housing shortage:

"And they shall build houses and inhabit them, and they shall plant the vineyards and eat the fruit of them."

NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson (Isaiah 66-19) "And I will set a sign among them . . ."

Hydro boss Hugh Keenleyside (Isaiah 60-1) "Arise, shine, for thy light is come . . ."

Isaiah 66-4 would suit all politicians: "I also will choose their delusions and will bring their fears upon them . . ."

All seeking re-election (Isaiah 43-18): "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old."

For returning office and campaign office staffs June 25 (Isaiah) 40-30: "Even the youths shall faint and be weary and the young men shall utterly fall."

And of course, should the election bring about another minority government and the threat of another national contest, the electors might ask each other (Isaiah 1-5):

"Why should ye be stricken anymore? Ye will revolt more and more; the whole head is sick and the whole heart faint."

Arthur Mayse

The big Shrine circus is coming to town next week with its jungle cats and acrobats, its clowns and its shambling elephants. But a Victoria girl who has a special feeling for that circus and the jolly-boy Shriners who sponsor it, won't be here to enjoy the fun.

Her name is Barbara Rae Brown. She's a bright, sweet kid going on 15. Her hair is dark, her eyes are blue, and the legs that have never supported her without boot and brace are prisoned in heavy casts.

With her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of 3205 Frechette Street, she set off by car for Portland on Wednesday morning. There, at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, the casts will be removed. Intensive therapy will follow.

When Barbara comes home, she will be almost at the end of a long, difficult painful progression. By Christmas, she hopes she will be able to do a thing she dreams of.

This is to walk into the Victoria Shrine Club's Christmas party on her own two feet.

There's another dream, and we'll come to that in due time. But first, let me tell you more about Barbara and some of the best friends any crippled child can have.

★

These are the fez-topped Shriners, the fellows whose convention capers and exotic parade-wear are no more than the icing on a mighty fine cake. Since 1920, this Masonic brotherhood has dedicated itself to helping crippled children throughout North America.

The Shriners have 19 orthopedic hospitals, one of which is in Montreal and the other in Winnipeg. To this string, they have added four burn-treatment centres for children.

But back to Barbara in her wheelchair, as I found her on Tuesday evening, with her casts fresh-scrubbed for the trip south:

She was born in Nelson, and when she was two years old, the Interior town's Shriners heard about her.

From that point on, young Barbara, medically-speaking, was their pigeon, and the birth-defect that kept her from walking, a Shrine concern. There have been operatins—many of them, performed by some of the finest orthopedic surgeons on this continent. There have been braces and built-to-measure boots, and endless therapy.

Last fall and winter, Barbara underwent four crucial operations in the Portland hospital which for months at a time has been her school and her second home.

A composition she wrote there begins like this:

"It was a warm, bright September afternoon, and as we walked through the forest, we saw all the beauties around us."

Walked. That's the magic word for Barbara.

★

She's a good student, smart in math and language, with three years of typing to her credit. With her to Portland this trip, she took shorthand books which she will do her best to master unaided.

It's worth noting that the family war cry is, "There's nothing we can't do."

So Barbara, when at home, helps with the cooking . . . and washes the dishes . . . and attends the Handicapped Children's Clinic . . . and in rebellion against classical music, plays swinging pop on the family piano . . . and thinks ahead to the day she calls "Uncane."

When she comes home from Portland, it will be crutches and braces for a little while more. Then a cane, which they've told her she may always need.

The Shriners and her own gallantry will bring her that far; but the girl who holds the rarely-awarded Girl Guides of Canada Badge of Fortitude cherishes a bolder dream.

Once in hospital, she watched a movie called "Five Little Pennies," in which a girl who had been similarly crippled celebrates her cure by dancing with her father.

One day, thanks to her good-doing friends in those funny little fezzes, Barbara Brown plans to throw the cane away and dance with her dad too.

Bennett Hails Wharf Scheme; 'Pay Dividends'

Premier Bennett is enthusiastic about Victoria's $30,000,000 Wharf Street waterfront development plan and says the provincial government will pay its share of the costs.

"As premier and finance minister I see no difficulty," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"Whatever is agreed on, we'll certainly do our share."

Mr. Bennett said he was "very enthusiastic" when he read about the plans in Tuesday's Daily Times.

'PAY DIVIDENDS'

"It will pay great dividends," he said.

The premier said the plans in principle appear to fit in well with the overall development of the provincial capital area.

He said British Columbia is the only province that has a capital area improvement commission and stressed that the $200,000 spent annually by the body is aimed at making the entire area beautiful.

"We're anxious to greatly improve the whole region — Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich . . ." he said.

PROVINCIAL SHARE

Projected provincial share of the more than $3,000,000 in estimated public expenditure is about $743,000. The premier made no direct comment on the figure, simply pledging the province would do its part in any three-way including municipal and federal governments.

The plan envisions an urban renewal facelift for 44 acres in the waterfront area and includes provision for high-rise apartment units, a hotel-convention centre, tourist-oriented retail outlets and pedestrian malls and parks.

Mr. Bennett was interviewed as he readied for a two week tour of the Interior and northern B.C. He left for Kelowna today.

Mayor Hugh Stephen termed the premier's reaction as "the most encouraging reaction we could receive at this time."

The mayor added that the proposed development was just a part of a continuing city program designed to give British Columbia a capital city of which all citizens could be proud.

"Coming at this time the premier's enthusiastic endorsement of the scheme is most gratifying. It means that we can move into phase two of the study and the eventual actual implementation of the scheme with a great deal of confidence.

"We know that Ottawa looks on the project with favor. and now with the premier supporting us we can look forward to moving ahead at the earliest possible moment."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh also expressed pleasure at the premier's reaction.

ALL LEVELS AGREE

"It is very reassuring to know that all levels of government like what has been done to this time and what we propose to do in the near future," he said.

"But I think it should be pointed out that whatever the three levels of government do, the success of the scheme depends entirely on private enterprise.

"Government has demonstrated and will continue to demonstrate its confidence—it's up to private enterprise now to make the proposals work."

City manager Dennis Young agreed.

"We can't help but be happy at the premier's enthusiastic support," he said. "I think it demonstrates that although there has been some criticism over the time taken to prepare the report, the consultants and our city planning staff did their homework well.

"I am sure that with the premier as a supporter, private enterprise will realize that the Wharf Street waterfront proposals offer the most exciting development prospects in Canada today."

Theft from Mails Brings 6 Months For 18-Year-Old

An 18-year-old was sentenced today to six months in prison for theft from the mails.

Stephen Lambert, of 4649 Cordova Bay Road, was an employee of a messenger company contracted to deliver special delivery letters.

He was arrested June 5 after two special investigators for the post office sent marked special delivery letters to themselves.

The letters were not delivered. Lambert pleaded guilty to the charge.

Magistrate Ostler told the accused the offence "strikes at the heart of one of the vital services to the country."

$500 Impairment

A man was fined $500 today for impaired driving.

Morris Hamilton, 3126 Irma, was arrested May 20, after police observed him sitting in his car at Burnside and Irma with the engine running.

Sayward Man May Have Shot Rare Island Variety Wolf

Did a Sayward man kill the one and only wolf on Vancouver Island?

It all happened early this week when Mrs. Andy Zaplottiski looked out of her farm house window and was startled to see a wolf staring back at her.

It was about 40 feet from the house and gazing intently at it.

She hollered for her husband but by the time he had hung up the phone and grabbed his rifle, the animal had vanished.

Monday it was back!

This time it was behind the house on the Zaplotiskis' 30 acres of partly cleared property, three miles north of Sayward.

From a distance of about 100 feet it was again looking intently at the building. This time Mr. Zaplotiski dropped it with a single shot.

"It's definitely a wolf," said Don Blood in Nanaimo today. He is regional wildlife biologist for Vancouver Island with the fish and wildlife branch of the provincial government.

The question still unanswered is whether it is one of the last wolves native to Vancouver Island.

They are a sub-species or variety, explained Mr. Blood. Such fine differences are generally determined by minute differences in skull measurement.

WEIGHED 76 POUNDS

The dead wolf was a male, weighed 76 pounds and was a little over five feet long, dark on the back and a golden brown on its sides.

Wolves have a different shaped face from wolf-like dogs, said the biologist. They have a slim lanky build with long legs and large feet.

They are usually furtive and Mr. Blood is at a loss to account for this one's behavior.

The Vancouver Island variety is rare—so rare it has been classified as in danger of extinction by the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

Are they worth saving?

"We think so," said the biologist. "Just the fact that they are here makes them of value."

They are not generally a menace and for several years have been classified as a game animal which means a licence is required to hunt them.

Wildlife authorities are thinking of putting the Island wolf on the protected list. Before the First World War it was quite common but has dwindled over the years.

A specimen was last shot 15 years ago.

"Man doesn't gain anything by wiping ou an animal," said Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the provincial museum.

Mrs. Zaplotiski said today her neighbors report there is a second wolf in the area, about 15 miles north of Campbell River.

That's not all.

Wednesday morning she called her husband out of bed to get a bear off their property.

Fair Selected To 'Dump' Drug

Middle Man Testifies At Hearing

An American had "set up a deal with about 30 guys" for the distribution of narcotics at the Jaycee Fair, central court was told today.

Philip Palucci, of Pennsylvania, employed on the midway at the time of the fair, was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Maurice Racine, 20, 739 Kings.

Racine was charged with possession of marijuana for trafficking after police said they seized 1¼ pounds of Marijuana from a car near the fair.

MIDDLE MAN

Palucci said he was to be the middle man in a deal to "dump" the marijuana.

Asked by defence counsel Don Farquhar if he went around the country doing this, Palucci replied "Oh yea, it keeps people happy."

Palucci said there was nothing in it for him, he just did it for "friendship."

Police said the witness is in custody and is to be deported for illegal entry into Canada.

A second witness, 20-year-old Rajindar Singh, who said he was the driver of the car involved, testified Racine and another man asked him if he would keep the marijuana in his car overnight May 13, but he said he did not see if Racine actually put anything in the car.

RCMP Const. Daniel Crealy testified he found a large green bag containing several smaller bags of green plant like material under the back seat of the car on the morning of May 14.

Racine was arrested on a warrant later that day at the fair. The hearing is continuing.

B.C. NURSES GOING AHEAD WITH STRIKE VOTE FRIDAY

The Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia said Wednesday it is going ahead with its government-supervised strike vote Friday despite possible government intervention.

"If nothing is done to meet nurses' demands we will have to proceed on the course we are taking," said Evelyn Hood, the association's personnel director.

However, she said that if the provincial government brings its newly-created mediation commission iuto the dispute and it advances a binding decision, the nurses will discard any strike plans.

12 DAYS TO GO

Rain Big Concern Of Grit Planners

Use of Beacon Hill Park for an open-air rally for Prime Minister Trudeau Monday has now been given full approval by Victoria City Hall.

The prime minister will speak at about 8 p.m. on the south slope near the Mile Zero sign. He'll arrive on the scene by helicopter.

From there the PM travels to the airport in an open car, with a brief pause at Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Big concern of the Liberal campaigners now is whether or not it will rain Monday night.

If it does, what happens? Victoria campaign manager Alan Cox was asked. His reply "Mass suicide."

There are plans for a sudden shift to Esquimalt Arena in event of a deluge but the shift won't be lightly made.

The PM, incidentally, will be flying here direct from a one-hour telecast at Vancouver which will be carried over channels 6 and 8 at 6:30 p.m. He goes from here to Calgary.

National Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield will have one advantage over his rivals by being the first "big gun" to speak to local audiences.

People who are voting in the advance polls can do so with his words ringing in their ears, but the advance poll will be completed before the Liberal and NDP leaders speak.

The advance poll voting takes place Saturday and Monday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.. closing an hour later than the regular polls on June 25. Mr. Stanfield will be here tonight at Memorial Arena, 8:30.

Prime Minister Trudeau will be here Monday night but voters will have time to do little more than see him before the advance polls close. Mr. Douglas doesn't appear until June 23. He'll have the last word before the general voting begins.

The advance poll, for people who intend to be out of their own polling division on election day, will be conducted at various places.

In Victoria — Victoria West, Central Junior Secondary, S. J. Willis Junior Secondary, Sir James Douglas, Monterey and Uplands schools.

In Esquimalt-Saanich K of P Hall, Sidney; St. Luke's Church Hall, St. Martin's-In-The-Field Hall, Esquimalt United Church Hall and St. Matthew's Parish Hall, Langford.

Victoria returning officer Dave Wilson says it's too late now to change location of some polling places where there were complaints about stairs. But he says anyone who can't handle the stairs should phone him and "I'll see they have an opportunity to vote." Number is 386-6384.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me who selects the All-Star teams of the National Hockey League and what are their qualifications?—B.H.F.

A. The coaches of the 12 NHL teams select the All-Star teams as well as the major individual awards—Hart (most valuable player), Lady Byng (gentlemanly player), Norris (top defenceman) and Calder (best rookie) trophies.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Fernwood Ladies March to a Snappy Self-Help Tune

By PETE LOUDON

If there was to be a poor people's march in Victoria, most of the Fernwood Ladies would be qualified for the first platoon.

Not that they'd be there. They're not much for demonstrating, weeping or complaining. But they're a snappy bunch when it comes to doing.

Take last week when they heard about the girl they call Val—a young wife, her husband melted away with the winter snows and she, not only left to care for a two-year-old, but in hospital having a new baby.

Prior to going to hospital Val's toddler had been with grandparents but they didn't have room for another baby they said. She could get welfare assistance. She couldn't get a place to live.

There's a woman salesman with a city real estate firm who's a soft touch in situations like this. She ran her feet off looking but the best she could come up with was an unfurnished apartment. And Val didn't have anything to put in it.

And that's where the Fernwood Ladies came in. They call themselves ladies rather than just women because although half of them are on welfare and almost all have experienced some family troubles, they aim to maintain a ladylike manner in meeting their problems.

They came together through a mutual association with the Family and Children's Service and Children's Aid workers at the field office at Fernwood and Gladstone. Like the mothers of the better known Low Income Group, they're a self-help organization, pooling their efforts to give each other a break from housework, in painting bees, or canvassing for the Red Shield.

Sometimes they just get together to swap ways of stretching a pound of hamburger to feed a houseful of kids.

It was their vice-president Mrs. June Akehurst who spent four hours on the phone marshalling the Fernwood Ladies to help Val. She was on the verge of giving up her new baby to adoption.

Not any more. The Fernwood gals came up with a chesterfield, dishes, bedding, curtains, pots, pans, even some baby toys.

One member throughout her personal distress had carefully preserved a dinner set for better days—kept it packed away where she could count on finding it. It went to Val. So did enough clothes to keep both infants going for years.

What the Fernwood Ladies didn't have they cadged from relatives and friends. That's how they got some male muscle and trucks and cars for the supply line too.

Why didn't they draw on their own experiences and call in the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, St. Vincent de Paul Society—or just leave the matter to the professional social workers?

"It occurred to us," said Mrs. Akehurst, "but sometimes there are waits and delays, you know brick walls. We went ahead and did it so fast the welfare worker was outpaced."

And here's the kicker—to be thrown in the teeth of the next person who tells you the trouble with people on welfare is they won't help themselves:

"We wanted to show we just don't sit back and say 'gimmee.'

"We wanted to do it without asking others for help."

For once, the Fernwood Ladies wanted to feel rich.

And they are, aren't they?

Color Television Sales to Triple Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians are buying color television sets at a faster rate and will almost triple the number of sets now in use by the end of next year, an industry survey released today shows.

The survey of sales forecasts made by members of the Electronic Industries Association of Canada was released at the start of the association's annual convention.

At the end of last year there were about 220,000 color TV sets in operation in Canada, about 4.5 per cent of all television sets in the country.

Sales this year are expected to number 160,000, rising to 210,000 next year and 270,000 in 1970.

New Horn Tested

The Department of Transport has finished preliminary testing of a new horn for light stations.

The horn—put out by Air Chime Ltd.—is run by an electric motor.

The diaphone, a horn currently in use, is run by a diesel and is about seven times the size of an air chime.

Currently about six stations have the air chime in operation. Tests are being run on a modified version that can produce two more decibles of sound.

The market was piling up tremendous volume on the day after Wall Street took the first of a series of days off from market action in order to clear up the huge backlog of paperwork caused by record volume.

On the American Stock Exchange, too, there was a record of near-record trading volume.

Tumultuous conditions ranged on the amorphous over-the-counter market where one Wall Street source said pandemonium reigned and lines of trading houses were jammed by telephone calls.

In late dealings, American Standard preferred, up nearly a point, held the lead on volume.

Global Marine ran up more than 4, National General about 4, American Machine and Foundry, Commercial Credit and Tenneco a point or more.

Great American Holdings and RCA sagged more than a point each.

General Motors held firmly to a rise exceeding a point while other auto stocks softened. Steels were weak.

Control Data dropped 4, IBM and Raytheon 3, Union Carbide, General Foods, Penn Central and Eastern Airlines a point or more.

AT TORONTO the stock market was mixed at the close of active trading today.

On index, industrials dropped .11 to 161.60, golds rose 5.20 to 228.33, base metals climbed .66 to 103.11 and western oils advanced 4.65 to 216.64.

Final volume was 4,483,000 shares compared with 3,827,000 Wednesday.

AT VANCOUVER share values of Neon Products surged forward another $4 today during quiet morning trading.

Stock in the diversified Vancouver-based company touched a new high of $33 on a turnover of 6,785 shares. The rise comes in the wake of Neon's announced takeover bid for Imbrex a Montreal-based floor covering firm.

Imbrex share values also climbed, showing an advance of $1.25 to $12.

Prices in all sections of the market were generally strong although volume to 11 a.m. was only 951,164 shares, well below recent totals.

Kimberley Copper advanced .18 to $1.45 on a volume of 93,200 shares. Northlode was up .04 to $2.16, Interprovincial Silver moved up .06 to $2.07 and Alwin advanced .06 to $1.75.

Oil stocks were stronger with Central Del Rio up $1.12 to $18.50 Giant Reef up .09 to $1.80 and Sunlite up .10 to $6.

AT MONTREAL the exchange continued to be moderately active this afternoon.

AT LONDON Australian Nickel shares were marked sharply lower in hectic trading today.

PACIFIC LOGGING COMPANY LIMITED

The closing of the mill at Hillcrest has become the subject of considerable comment in this area.

Many suggestions have been made recently by various citizens and groups, all of whom are sincere in their attempts to find a way to extend the life of Hillcrest at Mesachie Lake.

These recent statements seem to have caused some confusion in the public's mind as to the facts of the matter and we feel that it is desirable at this time, to clarify the situation.

During the past few years, many discussions have been held between our two Companies, which explored all the possibilities under which Hillcrest could continue its operations. Every recognition was given in these discussions to the community and social interest, because of the long term association of each Company in the district.

Considerations that made a milling operation economic at Mesachie Lake 25 years ago are no longer valid and having due regard to the technological changes in milling, logging, log utilization, lumber market patterns, the location of the plant and the overall timber reserves in the area, we came to the only conclusion possible: that it was inevitable even though very much regretted by all parties, that the operation could no longer continue.

We trust that this brief statement will assist the general public in reaching a full understanding of the situation.
